WHAT THE SHOPS ARE SHOWING

Rising above the demure droop of a little mushroom brim, a high crown almost surrounds itself with an extra collar of straw, flared, curved and pointed in the most whimsical outline, after a fashion that is a study in bits of fancy of the same new citron shade at exactly the most fascinating angle, back and front, this charming creation in Astrich's French room, Fourth and Market streets, awaits its owner. This is but one of the many attractive models, which have caused so much favorable comment at the opening display, and new hats are daily being added, each of unique beauty, priced as low as $5.98.

Sepla Brown
The new Sepla brown boots shown by the Walk-Over Boot Shop, 226 Market street, are especially smart and attractive, combining beauty of color with distinction of line. The graceful lines of this marvel fast are emphasized by the white stitching, which, however, is not in the least conspicuous. These boots are high enough to be strictly fashionable, and the French heel is unusually stiff and graceful. The expert care with which the boot is finished and the fitness of the kid, add the little touches of perfection which make this boot an exceptional model. It sells for $3.00.

Autographic Photography
The newest development in Eastman photography is the autographic kodak, and the charm of kodaking is doubled by this simple but most useful device. These kodaks are equipped with a little spring door on the back, covering a slit through which the writing is done on the red paper which covers the film, by means
