FIVE STARS IN SPARKLING PLAY

Story of Stock Exchange, With Love and Intrigue Interwoven, Pleases Orpheum Goers

The presence of William H. Crane, Thomas W. Rose, Maclay Arbuckle, Amelia Bingham and Edith Tallafiero (order of succession, but it is emphatically said, being not in precisely the same ratio as to popular reception last evening) in "The New Henrietta" at the Orpheum made for the presentation of a four-act comedy richer in clever situations and more sparkling with clean-cut wit and humor than has been seen in Harrisburg for many a day. Founded on Bronson Howard's famous comedy, "The New Henrietta," by reason of the aggregation of stars who make up the cast, must be a vast improvement over "The Henrietta" from which it was adapted; must be, I say, because it is hard to imagine wherein the famous old comedy can possibly have been better than the new one.

The beauty of the play was in its wonderful sense of balance. One was not compelled to rivet one's attention exclusively upon a particular individual, and the large and enthusiastic audience was ever on the qui vive to discover some coup that would enable the palm of superiority to be handed to one or another of the five stars. It is absolutely impossible to sit down and cold-bloodedly try to figure out who carried off the individual honors. It simply can't be done. William H. Crane, as the genial old millionaire broker with a keen mind but a tender and susceptible heart, was unsurpassed. Thomas W. Rose as Bertie, the headless, coat-model type of individual who, in spite of his ineffectual efforts to take his "beat" on the stock exchange, has the "real stuff" hidden away beneath a veneer of simplicity and cheerful vivacity, won the heart of every single one of the audience by the beautiful, inimitable, unimpaired way in which he pronounced the name of his beloved Agnes. Maclay Arbuckle breezed in as the Rev. Murray Hilton, a fashionable clergyman, a cigar-smoking, willing-to-take-a-chance-on-a-flier-on-the-exchange, altogether human sort of a clerkman, whose delightfully mingling and winning ways somehow lacked the dignity of the clergy but detracted not a whit from the truthness to life which characterized the entire production.

Now that the men have received some attention, it is the turn of the fairer members of the cast. Here I pause for want of adequate words to describe the dainty pettiness of little Edith Tallafiero, whose acting was the same of charm and simplicity; and the mature, nonchalant, but wholly capable way in which Amelia Bingham handled the part of the fashionable widow, Cornelia Opydyke, one to cause the hearts of the old dog of a broker and the poorly but chipper clergyman to flutter as with the trembling of the first call of love.

The "villain," too, came in for his share of praise, although to his credit he said that he received very little applause. It is strange that an audience will not applaud the man who commits the crime, although it is a rather roundabout but emphatic assurance that he is carrying out his part to perfection. Arthur S. Hull as Dr. Wainwright, Malcolm Bradley as Musgrave, "the old man's" private secretary, and the others, all did their best sort of taste in the mouths of those who went to the Orpheum to be entertained and who were decidedly not disappointed.

LOCAL THEATERS
Bessie Barriscale in the story of her theatrical venture, "The Last Act," will be exhibited at the Colonial for the last time today. Admirers of the actress are fairly enthusiastic over this her most recent success, for aside from having much opportunity for splendid acting, the drama is a very interesting one and on somewhat different lines. Lillian Gish, the girl who won fame in "The Birth of a Nation," and who was also declared by David Belasco to be the most beautiful blonde in the world, once more comes to the front in "The Last Act," this time "Daphne and the Pirate," and this interesting Triangle will be shown at the Colonial on Monday and Tuesday. The play is said to be historically correct and deals with the early days of American history when girls were sold from England to the colonists for wives. See special amusement page for further particulars.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR HIGHWAY SESSION

Jennings will welcome the out-of-town visitors to Harrisburg and call the meeting to order. Governor Brumbaugh will address the morning session and State Highway Commissioner Cunningham the afternoon meeting.

Many Delegates Coming
Every mail is bringing to the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce advice of delegations from cities along the route. The Johnstown Chamber of Commerce wired the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce this morning that they have forty-two men lined up to come to Harrisburg on Monday, C. F. Moore, president of the Chamber of Commerce at Bellwood writes that he and twelve other members of the Chamber will be on hand Monday.

John M. Drass, secretary of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce, has just telephoned to the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce that twelve or fifteen of their leading citizens will be present on Monday, E. M. C. Africa of Huntingdon advises that twenty-five or thirty businessmen from that city will be present.

There will be a delegation of ten representatives from the present representing the Board of Trade of Newport, Pa. The Good Roads Committee and half dozen other members of the Altoona Chamber of Commerce making a delegation of about twenty men, will be on hand Monday.

Ebensburg, Lewistown, Duncannon, Lebanon, Reading and other cities will be represented. Richard Beston, Burgess of Tyrone, will head a delegation of eight or ten men from that community. A. S. Welch, Burgess of Mt. Union advises this morning that he and seven other men from Mt. Union will attend the William Penn Highway meeting, J. W. Donahy, manager, and Lewis Parks, of the new William Penn Hotel, of Pittsburgh have written that they are intensely interested in the new highway and will both be present at the meeting. F. M. Graff, a prominent booster of Blairsville will represent that borough at the meeting.

Representatives to Attend
Leading members of the Legislature from counties that will be traversed by the William Penn Highway will attend the meeting. Among them being Senator E. E. Beideman, of Harrisburg; Senator Snyder, of Helderberg; Senator Tompkins of Ebensburg and others.

The Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce earnestly requests that all good roads and automobile enthusiasts of Harrisburg who can spare the time attend the meetings and show the out-of-town people the interest Harrisburg people have in this great movement.

"Officers of the Chamber feel that if 42 busy men can come from Johnstown on Monday, that at least twice that number of Harrisburg men can take the time to attend this meeting and thus put their shoulders to the wheel," said Secretary E. L. McColgin today.

After to-day's performances at the Majestic, the Great Pauline, who interested thousands during the present week, for Pauline will leave that playhouse, at previous occasions, but the new act is a bill that is somewhat unusual in the matter of the talent it includes a most pleasing one is James Kennedy and company, who were popular in Harrisburg on previous occasions, but the new act is a play of comedy, romance and Chauncey Olcott atmosphere, called "The Hero of the West," in which comedians and pretty girls are found in the remaining acts and in each instance they are varied and pleasing. About the most extensively advertised headliner that the management of that playhouse has presented this season is "The Fashion Girls," a pretentious musical comedy playlet, employing some twelve or more players, special scenery and many changes of wardrobe, a vaudeville feature which is slated to head the offering during the early half of the coming week.

For to-day the management of the Victoria has arranged one of its best bills. It has ever presented an All-Feature Day on a Saturday. The headliner is "The Hero of the West"—a stirring picture, featuring Charles Richman in the cast, are Eleanor Woodruff, Anders Randolph, J. Rogers Leyton, James Morrison, Charles Weller, Thomas Mills and Irene Seefe. In the making of the picture the United States Government co-operated. A three-part picturization of "La Paloma," the famous stage play, is also shown and features Mary Anderson. Another feature is "The Birth of a Nation," the famous stage play, also shown and features Harry Watson in a comedy, "Mishap of Musty Suffer," of which Kitty Kelly, in the Chicago Tribune, says: "At last an original comedy has been produced which is a trace of Chaplinism. He is Harry Watson of Klein, and as dilapidated tramp he is the stimulator of spontaneous laughter, his fun is clean."

It lively, unceasing action makes a picture, "The Wrong Door" which is the attraction at the Regent today, may be classified as a comedy. Carter De Haven is leading man. Heaven is the wealthy Iron King. He sees and falls in love with a dancer at the theater, and finally makes her his mistress. When he disappears the effects of the old home are sold at auction, and the Iron King buys in a single stroke. He then returns and the girl is anxious to keep. He tries to present it to the girl, but she refuses to marry him and pays him with the money which she leaves is found to be a part of that stolen from the safe. After the succeeding action leaves nothing to be desired.

delphia on the lists of members of the campaign committee, the national delegates and the State committee-men whom they plan to support. Mr. Brown appears to have no idea of discontinuing the contest and neither does the headquarters here. To-day the headquarters issued several endorsements of the Governor, including one by ex-representative William Wood, Jr., former mayor of Chester, who writes: "I am very glad to read your statement as to the possibility of your being a candidate for the highest honor. I am sure you will be able to do so."

Meanwhile numerous calls are coming into the Governor asking for him to speak in various counties. The latest is Reading.

Excerpts from communications received by the Governor and given out at headquarters to-day included two from Dr. A. A. Killip, superintendent of schools of Susquehanna, and H. L. Johnson, a Wyoming county business man.

E. W. VanHorn, who is associated with the Pennsylvania Banking and business in New Enterprise, Bedford county, wrote: "I am very glad to read your statement as to the possibility of your being a candidate for the highest honor. I am sure you will be able to do so."

Jewish Discussion Causes Split in Russian Duma
Petrograd, March 25.—The first day's discussion in the duma of an interpellation brought by opposition members urging a cessation of alleged illegal acts against the Jews and an extension of their privileges caused a tumult in the chamber.

A speech by M. Zamyslovsky, conservative against the adoption of the interpellation was continually interrupted with shouts from the opposition and he was finally forced to abandon the floor. Thereupon the conservative faction moved out of the hall. M. Zamyslovsky contended that adoption of an interpellation resolution would be interpreted as an act favoring Hebrewism, and the conduct of Jews was not such as to deserve a favorable declaration from the duma.

San Carlos Grand Opera Co. Has Great Success
Charles R. Baker to-day wired the local management arranging for the production of the San Carlos Grand Opera Company here from Pittsburgh as follows:

"Opera 'Lucia' great success here last night before an audience that packed the Nixon Theater from footlights to skylights."

DENTIST ACCUSED OF POISONING IS FAST RECOVERING

Dr. Waite Admits Getting Arsenic But Says It Was at Mr. Peck's Request

[By Associated Press]

New York, March 25.—Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, accused of the murder of his father-in-law John E. Peck, millionaire drug manufacturer of Grand Rapids, Mich., awoke to-day in Bellevue Hospital to find himself closely guarded and forbidden to receive visitors with two exceptions. These were his aged parents who came here from Grand Rapids last night prepared to furnish legal assistance for their son. The young dentist, although still suffering from the effects of the drug which he took two days ago was reported much improved to-day.

Believe Son Innocent
Waite was cheered to-day by prospects of seeing his father and mother. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Waite, who came here last night from their home in Grand Rapids, said that they were not permitted to see him when he called at the hospital late last night.

"Our son never committed this awful crime of which they charge him," said Mrs. Waite, "give him a chance and we feel certain it will be cleared up." Mr. Waite added that he brought a message to the accused man from his wife, who is ill at the Peck home in Grand Rapids. Mr. Waite said his daughter-in-law had called him to her home before he started for New York and told him to tell her husband she wanted to come to New York and see him.

"Tell him I have heard what they say about him and another woman," said Mrs. Waite, "give him a chance and we feel certain it will be cleared up." It makes absolutely no difference to me. And even if it were true about that other woman tell him that I forgive him.

Mysterious Woman
Detectives say to-day they have found and identified the woman with whom Dr. Arthur Warren Waite had registered at a hotel here as "Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Walters." She was described as formerly a singer in public and now the wife of an inventor and electrical engineer. She said Dr. Waite had told her up a studio in the hotel so that they could study music and languages there together. Dr. Waite, she said, had often expressed to her his great affection for his father-in-law, John E. Peck, of whose murder he is accused.

Dr. Waite's admission to the district attorney that he had handed to Mr. Peck a package of arsenic and the young dentist's assertion that Peck wanted him to commit suicide because of his wife's death, does not alter the intention of the prosecution to continue his investigation.

Striking Statements in Confession of Dr. Waite

New York, March 25.—In the examination of Dr. A. W. Waite, by District Attorney Swann yesterday afternoon the prisoner said:

That John E. Peck, his father-in-law, old and dependent upon the recent death of his wife, had asked that "a poison that would kill" be got for him.

That without a demer he purchased arsenic, ostensibly to kill "a cat that had been annoying" him and gave it to Mr. Peck on March 9, three days before he died.

That he did not see Mr. Peck take the poison, that he did not ask him if he had, but that "if you found arsenic in his stomach he must have taken it."

50,000 Shells Fired in Short Time by Russians on East Front Against Germans

Berlin, March 24, via London, March 25.—The importance of the struggle around Verdun naturally overshadowed interest in the contest on the eastern front, but the latest dispatches show that hard fighting is in progress in the northern sector of the Russian line. The Russian fire became intense on the evening of March 19. More than 50,000 shells, chiefly of heavy caliber, fell over a small section of the front near Postavy. German wire entanglements and the front line trenches were damaged by this fire. At night the Russians attacked in thick waves.

DO YOU WANT TO HELP BEAUTIFY THE CITY

box gardens this Spring will have a two-fold effect—first, the beautification of the city and second an increased interest in gardening that should make of Harrisburg a veritable bower of floral bloom in the years to come.

An effort will be made not only to interest the individual resident, but to have whole blocks organize for the placing of windowboxes, so that the effect may be uniform and impressive. There is nothing that grows so in beauty as plant life when massed. Business houses will be asked to co-operate and big industries like the Harrisburg Railways Company which has landscaped its car barn yards, will be urged to take part in this city beautiful campaign.

Window and Veranda Boxes

Ellen E. Rexford, a well-known plant authority, writing of window and veranda boxes, says that this form of gardening has not only come to stay, but that it may be safely attempted by even those who know nothing of the care of flowers. He says:

"The windowbox was first made use of as a substitute for the garden for those who loved plants and flowers but had no place in which to grow them. So satisfactory was it, when successful, that it steadily became popular, and those who had ample garden-room soon adopted it because it brought a bit of the real garden to the various rooms of the house, thus making it easy for the occupants of the home to enjoy 'the green things growing' without obliging them to take a visit to the garden in order to do so. We may have plants growing at the windows of our sitting-rooms, our parlors and our private rooms, with all the luxuriance which characterize their growth in the garden beds from early Spring to the coming of frost if we make a judicious selection of varieties and give them the necessary care. And in this way we really get more pleasure from our plants that the garden can afford us because we have them close at hand at all times. We can get the benefit of them while about our work."

"So popular is this phase of gardening becoming that the country home is rapidly adopting this system of plant culture in addition to outdoor gardening. The window garden has come to stay, and it is going to be the garden of the future in more ways than one, especially in the cities where no other facilities for plant culture are available."

"This system of gardening has not proven successful in many instances. In fact, there has been so large a percentage of failures that many persons have abandoned it, declaring that only those who had the knack of growing plants need hope of success with it. This is a mistake. There is no 'knack' about it. Anyone can grow plants in windowboxes and grow them well, if they make a proper selection of varieties, and give them proper attention."

Instructions by Experts
The Telegraph has arranged to publish from time to time a series of articles by experts on the planting and care of windowboxes. Some of this matter is already prepared and will be given to the readers of this newspaper as soon as the season is far enough advanced to make the information valuable.

Announcement of carefully compiled estimates may be expected shortly showing how a window or two, or a whole house, or a store or a factory, may be beautified with windowboxes at the lowest possible cost. What to plant and how to plant will be told from time to time and the articles will be illustrated with pictures showing what has been accomplished in Dayton and other cities where windowboxes have become one of the features of summer life.

Watch the Telegraph for further details.

COCKILL HERE TO-DAY

Manager George Cockill was here to-day in conference with the Pennsylvania State League promoters. Manager Cockill returned home this afternoon and will attend the meeting in Philadelphia next Thursday, at which time he will give his final answer on the question of managing the Harrisburg team.

Kill Germs and Save Human Life

The menace of militarism, the horrors of war and the toll of death taken in all frightful accidents is nothing compared to the danger of unseen deadly germs.

Even in war itself the toll of human life taken outright by the whizzing bullet the bursting shrapnel, or the piercing steel is less than that caused by the unseen deadly germs that attack the wounded and the well alike.

Human life will be lengthened and human happiness increased when we learn better to guard ourselves against the danger of the ever present germs of disease.

Powdered boric is one of Nature's most wonderful gifts to man, for it enables us, through antiseptis, to ward off the danger of infection.

Owing to its wonderful antiseptic properties it cannot be too highly recommended for liberal use in the care of the person wherever and whenever exposed to the germs of disease.

Pure powdered boric may be used with absolute freedom and safety in all the natural cavities of the body. To realize how healing it is, yet how safe, we have but to recall that the physician almost always prescribes it as the principal ingredient of an eye water.

The manufacture of powdered boric has been brought to such a high degree of efficiency by one concern that if we always remember to specify "20 Mule Team Powdered Boric" we know that we have the real article in full strength.

On every package of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric will be found directions for its multitude of uses and the expense is so little that no one should ever be without it.

A solution of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric in water makes an absolute and positive antiseptic for personal use. It is excellent for a shampoo, for it kills the germ which makes the dandruff that spoils the lustre of the hair and causes it to fall out and cease to grow.

It should be used as a mouth wash on account of its antiseptic qualities whenever there is the slightest danger of having been exposed by being brought in contact with persons suffering with colds, sore throats, etc.

To overcome the unpleasant effect consequent upon excessive perspiration the use of 20 Mule Team Boric will give great satisfaction, making everything sweet and clean and healing any abrasion that may have occurred.

A hot foot bath with a liberal quantity of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric will make the feet feel ten years younger.

For the baby a liberal dusting with 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric not only assures freedom from chafing but helps to maintain an antiseptically clean condition on the little body.

To any cut or abrasion 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric should be freely applied.

20 Mule Team Powdered Boric is a foe to germ life. It should be used on the dressing table of every dainty woman and liberally used in every household where health is prized. Authorized representative will soon call at your home and make arrangements for you to obtain, FREE, a full size package of 20 Mule Team Powdered Boric from any of the following druggists: C. M. Forney, 31 N. 2nd St.; C. S. Few, Middletown; J. H. Parks, 621 S. Race St., Harrisburg; Steelton Store, Steelton, Pa.; Hershey Store Co., Hershey, Pa.; I. Irvin Ruff, Hummelstown.
