

TORRENTIAL RAINS CAUSE MENACING FLOOD STAGES THROUGHOUT BIG SECTION

Susquehanna River Will Rise to 13 Feet by Tomorrow Morning, Demain's Forecast; Melting Snows in Upper End of State Swell Streams Throughout Valley; Downpour to Continue

Juniata 14 Feet Above Normal, and Many Are Rescued From Inundated Homes by Boat; Buffalo Threatened With Most Disastrous Flood in History of City; Hundreds Homeless at Columbus, Ohio

Torrential rains during the last forty-eight hours have caused menacing flood conditions in many sections of the country, driving many people from their homes, and causing heavy damage to property.

Much of the snow which has lain for several weeks in the mountains along the watersheds of the rivers, melted with the rising temperature, and flood stages are reported at many of the river stations in states in the eastern part of the United States.

No immediate danger of flood here is expected, although the river will go to thirteen feet before to-morrow morning, according to E. R. Demain, United States Weather Bureau forecaster.

State Water Supply Sends Out Flood Warnings; 15 Ft. to Be Maximum Rise Here

Three-quarters of an inch of rain fell in the city since early this morning and heavier rainfall in other sections of the State along the West and Juniata branches of the Susquehanna river caused a rise of four feet within the last twenty-four hours.

The stage will reach 13 feet to-morrow morning, according to the forecast. Rapid rises of the Juniata and West branches, due to the melting of much of the snow along the watershed, caused flood conditions at many points along these smaller streams, and in several places more than an inch of rainfall was reported at 8 o'clock this morning.

The storm which caused heavy rains in the eastern part of the country remains centered over the upper Ohio river valley, according to reports. The State Water Supply Commission report issued at 1 o'clock announced that should the rainfall continue along the Susquehanna and its branches, a flood stage may be reached at Harrisburg; otherwise the stage will not exceed 15 feet, which will be reached at noon.

Flood warnings were sent out this morning to a number of towns along the Juniata and West branches with the maximum stages to be expected at the various points.

Flood conditions according to the commission are expected at a number of points on the branches, with the Juniata rising and the rain continuing. Plats on the opposite side of the river at Huntingdon on the site of the old fair grounds were inundated, and in the warnings sent out by the commission maximum stages were predicted as follows along the Juniata: 25 feet at Newport; 27 feet above low water mark at Lewisburg; 29 feet at Milltown and an approximate stage for Mt. Union.

The main stream and principal tributaries of the west branch along the river reached their reported rising with the following stages: Clearfield, 8.6 feet; Renovo, 15.4 feet; Williamsport, 16.1 feet. Maximum stages predicted on this branch by the commission follow: Renovo, 17 feet; Lock Haven, 12 feet; Jersey Shore, 25 feet, and Lewisburg, 29 feet. No exceptional stages were reported from stations along the North branch.

The United States Weather Bureau office at Pittsburgh furnished the Water Supply commission with a bulletin at noon predicting a stage of 24 feet at Pittsburgh to-morrow morning and 26 feet at Wheeling, W. V., on Thursday evening.

Stages near the flood point have occurred in the Juniata and the West Branch and flood stages are likely to be reached and probably slightly exceeded within the next twenty-four hours at Renovo and Williamsport and probably at Clearfield. There is no immediate danger of flood stages in the North Branch, but under proper weather conditions they may occur within four or five days. A stage of about thirteen feet is indicated for Harrisburg Wednesday morning.

Midnight Prowler at Cleveland Successful in Second Attempt to Burn Building

By Associated Press

Cleveland, Ohio, March 28.—Fire which swept through an apartment house in Prospect avenue early to-day, causing the deaths of two persons and injuring more than a score of others, was of incendiary origin, according to police and detectives.

Police early to-day were holding three men and one woman at headquarters and had established a police guard at the bedside of Bessie Reimer at Huron Road Hospital.

All of the five were involved in a white slave investigation a few days ago, following which one woman was sent to the workhouse. In this case the Reimer girl was the alleged victim. Most of these injured were hurt by jumping from the third floor windows. Of these, three Mrs. Albert Melchior, Dwight Emptage and an unidentified man are fatally injured. Fireman Ross and Lieut. Thomas Nestor were also injured so badly in attempting to rescue occupants of the building that they may die. Both fell from third floor windows.

The apartment contained 25 suites and more than a hundred persons were in the building at the time the fire started.

Masked Man Enters Room Fire started in the building on Monday morning in a closet in Miss Reimer's room and she was rescued by firemen and taken to a hospital. The fire was easily distinguished, but Miss Reimer was nearly suffocated. She revived in the hospital, however, and last night returned to her room. According to the story she told police this morning, a masked man entered her room shortly after 1:30 this morning, raised her hair and her hands, and after which he started a fire in the room with papers.

Second Attempt She managed to get to her feet and hobble out of the room, but not before the fire had spread and other occupants of the building had become

PURSUIT OF VILLA MAY BE HALTED IF RAILROADS ARE NOT SOON MADE AVAILABLE

Bandit Fleeing Southward Is Meeting With Little Opposition; American Troops Experiencing Greater Hardships as They Get Farther From Their Base; Imperative That Mexican Lines are Turned Over

Tension Along Border Increases With Reported Raid on Ranch of Former Mayor of El Paso; Troops and Texas Rangers Fail to Find Traces of Bandits; Carranza Forces Dissatisfied

El Paso, Tex., March 28.—The pursuit of Francisco Villa may be hampered if not actually halted, unless Mexican railroads are made available as the main line of communication for the American army in Mexico.

Military men expressed that view to-day after studying dispatches from the front that Villa was still in full flight southward and meeting with little if any opposition.

The American forces are more than 200 miles below the border. Mexican assistant foreman with death if he interfered with them.

Fail to Find Trace Word was immediately sent to the troops at Pecos, at Fabens, two miles east of the ranch, and to Yate, eight miles in another direction. Two detachments of the Eighth Cavalry, accompanied by four Texas Rangers, were sent in pursuit of the raiders. After three hours' search they returned to camp and Captain G. W. Moses reported to General Bell that nothing had been seen of the Mexicans and that he believed the whole affair to be a false alarm. Barker, however, insisted on the truth of his story.

The reported raid served to give a fresh start to the alarming reports about the attitude of the Mexicans and conditions in the interior which have kept residents here in a state bordering on hysteria ever since the American troops crossed the border. This feeling had seemed to be dying away for the last couple of days.

Railroad Problem Serious Matters were not improved by the news from Washington that General Carranza had again deferred a decision on the question of permitting the use of the Mexican railroads for the transportation of supplies to the American troops in the field.

Army officers here admit freely that the question of the use of the railroads is becoming an increasingly serious one. General Pershing's columns have attempted to drive off one hundred head of cattle belonging to Kelley. He ran to a neighboring ranch house and called his employer on the long distance telephone here. In the meantime three of the raiders went to the Kelley ranch house and threatened the

Two-Day Rain on Top of Heavy Snow Sends Streams Over Banks in Michigan

Detroit, Mich., March 28.—Southern Michigan to-day was menaced by flood conditions which in some sections were the most serious in a dozen years. A two-days' rain coming immediately after a snowfall which averaged nearly a foot in depth, sent rivers and creeks out of their banks in practically the whole State south of the Straits of Mackinac.

The situation in the Saginaw river valley probably was the most dangerous to-day. At Day City, at the mouth of the river and Saginaw, about fifteen miles up stream, were threatened with further inundation by the flood waters pouring into the Saginaw from a dozen tributaries. In some of these, ice barges were being dynamited in an effort to let loose the backed-up water.

The Michigan Central and Detroit and Mackinac railroads were unable to run trains north of Bay City, their tracks being washed out in numerous

Washington, March 28.—Reopening of the fight in the House over the repeal of the free sugar clause of the action of the Senate Democratic caucus last night in voting 23 to 7, to substitute for the House repeal resolution, a resolution extending the present duty on sugar. The struggle is expected to come when the Senate proposal is returned to the House for concurrence.

Louisiana Senators lead the opposition to the House bill declaring that a four-year extension was no assurance to sugar growers and producers of that State and that it would be futile to restore activity to its sugar industry.

IMMIGRATION BILL TO PASS Washington, March 28.—The House to-day continued work on the immigration bill with indications that the measure, together with its literacy test provision intact, would be passed by an overwhelming vote during the day. Kuhn & Co., at 46-48 North Cameron street. It is understood the work will start at once. The estimated cost is not given, but it is said to be between $50,000 and $75,000.

The work will be under the direction of George L. Titzel, of Lancaster, a member of the firm, who has for a number of years been identified with large railroad contracts. In addition to the necessary excavations, the work will require extensive masonry and concrete work. The latter will include large foundations for steel pillars.

The new freight station building will be four stories in height and will be of brick and concrete. Plans for the new structure are still under consideration because of a number of changes in interior details made a short time ago.
