Ever Eat Grape-Nuts?

There's a vast army of physical and mental workers who do.

One reason — its delicious nut-like flavour.

Another — it is easily and quickly digested — generally in about one hour.

But the big reason is — Grape-Nuts, besides having delicious taste, supplies all the rich nutriment of whole wheat and malted barley, including the "vital" mineral salts necessary for building brain, nerve and muscle.

Always ready to eat direct from the package, Grape-Nuts with cream or good milk is a well balanced ration — the utmost in sound nourishment.

WASSON WORKING ON DELEGATE LISTS

Ex-Senator George M. Wertz of Cambria; C. T. Evans, Jr., Germantown; F. W. Fleitz, Scranton and Paul W. Houck, referee in compensation, Shenandoah, and is understood to have reiterated his desires for a reunited Republican party and desire for harmony. The Governor declined to make any statement and his friends pointed out that it was not his move.

Setting Up Candidates

Mr. Wasson and Mr. Detrich were in consultation part of the day with Mr. Brown and the national committeeman said that some details about the selection of candidates were being arranged. Mr. Wasson was in touch with a number of men throughout the State. Mr. Wasson said to some newspapermen that he was "putting fuel on the fire" and Mr. Detrich was facetiously referred to as a "stoker," too. Neither one would discuss the names of the men under consideration.

Mr. Detrich said to-day that he expected there would be candidates for Republican national delegate in opposition to Messrs. Green and Byron, who were picked out at the Seventeenth district conference here some time ago.

Capitol Hill was inclined to await developments in the harmony program to-day and there was not much activity shown in political affairs. Insurance Commissioner Charles Johnson said to-day that he was attending to business.

The State Committee

While many at the Capitol have high hopes of avoiding a contest over delegates in spite of conferences and reports to the contrary, there are not many who see how a contest for election of members of the State committee can be prevented. Both sides are busy putting up candidates for committeemen all over the State and control of the committee, which in the opinion of Mr. Wasson, will nominate the next national committeemen, is looming large as an issue.

Men who do not share Mr. Wasson's opinion, say that the action of the Republican State Committee in selecting a national committeeman will be final.

The Governor will leave here late in the week for Luzerne county, but his schedule is not made up. He has been pledged earnest support for national delegates from various parts of the State and by many on Capitol Hill.

What Headquarters Gave Out

The Erumbach headquarters to-day gave out a letter sent to the Governor by Walter L. Vanaman, former secretary of the Washington party committee in Harrisburg, as follows:

"I wish to tender you such assistance as I may be able to render. Have resigned my position as secretary of the Washington party, and aligned myself with the Republican party, mainly for the purpose of trying to get delegates from this district that would stand for the kind of a man for President a Progressive could consistently support.

"To my mind, the elimination of Penrose, as dictator in Pennsylvania politics would entirely remove the necessity for a third party, providing, of course, that Barnes, Root, and others of that type do not again make the mistake they did in 1912. I feel that the issues of the Pennsylvania Progressives are safe in your hands, and, for the reason, wish to help you in any way that I can. You have but to command me."

Two other letters made public to-day from men in other States indicate the outside interest being manifested in the Governor's candidacy. One, from M. H. Nell, an attorney of Lusk, Wyo., read in part:

"I just wish to say that I trust very much you will be the next President, as I have watched your progress for a number of years and am in sympathy with your ideals as well as a member of your party. If I can be of service later in my present home State will be only too glad to do so."

The other letter was from Frank D. McQuiston, of New York City, who attended Harvard at the same time as the Governor. It read, in part: "I am glad to read of the stand you have taken in Pennsylvania politics, for in case the home of contentions narrows down at the National Convention to former President Roosevelt and Chief Justice Hughes, with you in the running as Pennsylvania's candidate, the final selection may rest on you. I wish you success."

WINDOW BOXES ARE ENDORSED

not only be economical for the first year, but for years to come. Mr. Beckley is the originator of the sectional windowbox which can be easily installed and in the Spring and stored for winter in the Fall.

The Berryhill Nursery Company and all the other flower dealers of town see not only a future profit in the windowbox movement in Harrisburg but are anxious to further the enterprise in order to see the city beautified as they believe it should be, and Mr. Beckley for one assures the Telegraph that he is most anxious to help in the project this year than he can possibly hope to get out of it.

Mr. Beckley's Letter

Mr. Beckley's letter, as president of the Berryhill Nursery Co., is as follows:

The Editor of the Telegraph: The announcement of your proposed campaign of window and porch boxes in the making of a more beautiful city is exceedingly interesting and timely. Harrisburg has won great fame in its improvement and many citizens have caught the spirit in the beautifying of their own premises. But there has not been that enthusiastic concerted effort in the beautifying of home grounds, and the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers that has characterized Dayton, Des Moines and other American cities. If private enterprise would match public improvements Harrisburg could be the most beautiful city in America.

The window and porch box campaign is one in which every resident can join. Even the apartment dweller can have a window or porch garden—at small cost to begin with very little effort to keep continuously beautiful. With the idea of making it easy for folks to have flowerboxes we devised the sectional boxes made in foot and half foot lengths from two to five feet. The idea is the same as has been worked out so practically in the sectional book-boxes. The lighter, more durable, easier to store in winter and they fit any space. By proper planting the plants soon cover the joints and the effect is that of one box.

Attention has been given in the making of the boxes to proper width and depth. This is important for many of the flowerboxes in the city have been too small to allow room for the maturing of the plants, with the result that long before Fall the boxes are unsightly and need to be removed.

The soil used in flowerboxes should be of the very best, just as good as is used in greenhouse benches for rose culture, if the best results are to be obtained. It will not do to use just any old garden soil to fill the boxes and expect to have a beautiful display place with no bother to the owner but to enjoy them, thereafter. We shall be glad to be of service in the promotion of this very excellent campaign. Further information will be mailed to anyone interested, on request.

Yours truly,
THE BERRYHILL NURSERY CO.
O. P. Beckley, President.
