800 AT ROBERT BURNS BANQUET

Masonic Event One of Most Enjoyable in History of Organization

Hundreds of members of the Masonic fraternity attended the annual banquet of the Robert Burns Lodge at the Masonic Temple last night. These annual banquets are largely attended, but the event of last night reached the high mark with more than eight hundred members of this particular lodge and their guests present.

Never before has the large banquet hall been more attractively decorated. On the window ledges and pendant from the chandeliers were beautiful flowers and a stand of the national and state colors was the chief feature in the rear of the toastmaster.

and among the banqueters breaking into song, the occasion reaching its climax when all rose to the national air.

Captain Lumb as worshipful master presided and introduced the speakers, who included W. M. Donaldson, Frank B. Weckersham and Jesse E. Cunningham. The speakers were all given frequent evidences of approval and the talk of Mr. Donaldson on the work of the Temple organization was received with great favor and approval.

In the preliminary exercises the address of welcome was made by Charles P. Lusk, the senior warden. Among those present was Fred Beech, worshipful master of the new lodge at Camp Hill. Quite a number of the members of the baby lodge were also present. It was in every way a great occasion and establishes another historic mark in the development of the Robert Burns Lodge.

SPRING STYLES; BAND CONCERT

Living Models in Kaufman Window Will Display Spring Attractions This Evening

Market Square and its environs will resound this evening with the music of the Commonwealth Band. Between the hours of 7.30 and 9.30 living models will pose in the show windows of the Kaufman Underselling Store and will display a myriad of Spring gowns, hats, suits and other garments that are said to be destined to turn the eyes of mother and the girls inside out with desire. All the exhibitions will be of garments that will be placed on sale in connection with the Kaufman pre-Easter Underselling Event, which begins to-morrow morning and continues for fifteen days thereafter.

Former style shows under the auspices of the Kaufman store have always proven popular and are largely held under such chances are that with the weatherman in a genial mood, the crowds that have congested the lower end of the Square in the past will be duplicated. The ever-popular Commonwealth Band will have a position on a raised stand in front of the store and the display will take place in the windows. The store proper will not be open to the public.

Confer With Fire Underwriter Engineer on Risks in City

Following a survey of the city today by automobile, an informal discussion of the fire underwriting risks was held at a luncheon at the Harrisburg Club by City Commissioner Harry F. Bowman and Z. Irving Cross, superintendent of public safety and parks and public property; Henderson Gilbert and E. L. McColgin, of the City of Commerce, and Chief Engineer Wheelock of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

The problems threshed out related to the report on the fire risk recommendations which were made several months ago by the national board to city council.

Mr. Bowman said that he and Building Inspector J. H. Grove are collecting data for the new building code. Similar statistics are being compiled by Mr. McColgin and a new code will probably be revised from all the data.

INVESTIGATION OF WRECK UNDER WAY

Commission, the Utilities Commission of Ohio and various department heads of the New York Central were conducting investigations in Cleveland and at other points in the vicinity of the wreck.

Coroner Charles Garver, of Lorain county, planned to begin an inquest at Elyria into the death of the wreck victims and the causes leading thereto.

The question of whether the so-called "death coach" on train No. 86 was of modern steel construction or was of mainly of wood construction promised to be an important feature of the investigation.

Railroad officials to-day were still divided in opinion as to whether the blame should be placed upon the towerman who, it is alleged by some officials, was asleep and failed to give the proper signal, or upon the engineer either failed to see the signal or exceeded his orders.

27 Bodies Recovered
Of the more than 200 persons injured in the wreck, several were said to be in a precarious condition early to-day and further fatalities were feared. Railroad officials said that only twenty-seven bodies were recovered and that they regard it as impossible that more bodies are in the ruins. Unofficial, but what was regarded as reliable reports, late yesterday placed the number of dead at thirty. It is believed the actual number of dead may be a matter of uncertainty for some hours at least.

The two men at whom most of the questions were to be directed at today's investigation to be held in the offices of Division Superintendent W. F. Schaaf, were Engineer Herman Hess, of the second section of train 86 and Towerman A. R. Ernst, of Amherst.

Engineer D. W. Leonard, of the first section of train 86, which pulled the "death car," asserted he stopped his train on a signal originating in Ernst's tower.

No Signal for Second Train
Engineer Hess declares he saw no signal when he brought his section booming along at a fifty miles an hour speed about three minutes later.

Ernst asserts he set no stop signal, declaring the number of dead in the train was only a baby's tiny crib in the Ernst home at Elyria.

The baby was born Sunday night. Since that time Ernst has had little sleep, railroad officials say.

Baby May Be To Blame
Ernst, the towerman, early to-day made a statement in which he stoutly denied that he was asleep or that he asserted that he brought his train to a stop on the signal.

While my wife was ill," said Ernst, "I got my regular sleep and about my duties as usual. The signal simply failed to work. The is all."

H. W. Belnap, representing the Interstate Commerce Commission, early today opened the federal investigation at a downtown hotel.

A. S. Inzalls, general superintendent of the New York Central lines west of Buffalo, sought out Belnap at the hotel shortly after his arrival and spent an hour in laying before him all the railroad officials had learned so far in their investigations of the cause of the accident.

Asserts Signal Failed
Belnap was joined here by George E. Ellis, an assistant, stationed at Chicago, and H. L. McAdams, stationed at Pittsburgh. M. J. Heffernan and W. P. Packard, inspectors for the State Utilities Commission, began their information investigations simultaneously. Supplementing his statement, Tow-
