ELUSIVE BANDIT SLIPS AWAY

Several other large bodies of men disposed at convenient positions in the continental divide and that Colonel Dodd and his men were to come in contact with them at any time. While the search for Villa continues, Colonel Dodd will seek to destroy armed bands which are reported to be a constant menace to the line of American communication.

There is no light on the recent operations of the Carranza forces against the Villa bands, which general Bentel has sent no report to the Juarez headquarters for several days and what assistance the troops of the de facto government are giving to the Carranza and his men is not known.

Nothing was said in the reports of Villa's alleged injuries, an omission which helped to confirm the opinion already freely expressed on the border that the bandit's wounds were an invention of his own, reported with the intention of deceiving his pursuers.

Hopes Are Dashed. The absence of any official news from the front since the defeat of the Villa bandits has considerably dashed the hopes of those who saw in the victory the beginning of the end of the bandit's career. At the same time, it is pointed out, that the American troops are facing a formidable task before them in searching the barren mountain wastes where Villa is supposed to have taken refuge.

The fact that the recent fighting has been reported is taken as an indication that the bandits have been effectively scattered by the American troops.

As usual in the case of definite information, the border is again a hive of rumors of an alarming and sensational character. The majority of these rumors are based on stories brought from the interior by Mexicans and the few Americans who struggle in here by ones and twos daily. The most circumstantial of these stories at present depicts the capture and defection of Colonel Cano, the Carranza commander at Namiquipa.

Cano is the chief lieutenant of General Luis Herrera, who was supposed to have declared against Carranza several days ago, a report that was vigorously denied by the officials of the de facto government.

There is something of a mystery attached to the movement of Mexican troops at points close to the border. It is known that large bodies of Carranza's soldiers have been moved from camps in the interior to the international line but no explanation has been given of these maneuvers beyond a general intimation that the de facto government is anticipating possible action by the followers of Felix Diaz.

Washington Believes That Col. Cano Has Bolted With at Least Part of His Men

Washington, April 3.—Reports that Colonel Cano has deserted General Carranza and joined the bandit forces with his command or part of it, were credited today by officials of the State and War Departments and it was stated authoritatively that while official intimations that Colonel Cano had revolted had been received, no actual confirmation had come.

The impression prevailed that a number of Cano's men were in the fight last Wednesday when Colonel Dodd struck the bandits near Guerrero.

Major General Funston has been instructed to warn the American aviators not to use machines which may be defective or to take unnecessary risks in flying over dangerous mountainous country.

HARRISBURG SOLDIERS WHO FOUGHT IN REGULAR ARMY AND WON HONORS

JOE MORAN

Harrisburg has a number of veterans who have seen service at the front, and are ready to take up arms in defense of their country, if needed. This is the opinion of William P. Messenger, department commander of the United States War Veterans, who is compiling a history of these war heroes. He says their records leave no doubt as to their ability as fighting men.

Commander Messenger will include in his records all soldiers who enlisted or entered the service from Dauphin county and especially soldiers who are members of the 3rd, 5th, 8th and 9th Spanish War Veterans. He says: "In writing of men who served their country in time of war, I take great pleasure in referring to the late Thomas D. Moran, Company D, One Hundred and First volunteers, and his three sons, James T., John J., and Thomas P. Moran. The latter is the only survivor of this family of war heroes and he is ready to answer the first call if needed."

Thomas D. Moran, the father, who served in Company D, One Hundred and First Pennsylvania Volunteers in the War of the Rebellion, was born in County Limerick, Ireland, in 1825. He emigrated to this country in 1850 and settled in Harrisburg. He married Bridget Grimes, who was born in Dublin, Ireland. Eleven children were born, only two surviving, Thomas and Theresa K. Salsman and Thomas P. Moran.

James T. Moran, the eldest son, James T. Moran, enlisted in Harrisburg in 1878, being assigned to the Seventh United States Infantry at Fort Laramie, Wyoming. He served ten years in Company E and F, and also served an enlistment in Company G, Tenth United States Infantry at Fort Wingate, New Mexico.

When the Spanish-American war broke out he enlisted in Company E, Fifteenth United States Infantry, which was one of the first regiments to reach the Philippine Islands. He was mustered out at Manila and enlisted in the United States Volunteer Infantry, being made quartermaster sergeant. After his regiment was mustered out at the Presidio of San Francisco, he re-enlisted in the regular army and was sent back to Manila, being assigned to the Fourteenth United States Infantry.

After "Tom" as he was familiarly known in Harrisburg, reached Manila he was ordered to join his regiment. He boarded a Casco at Manila to take a transport and was stricken down with cholera. He died at a detention camp in Manila and was buried there. Six years later his body was exhumed and brought to the United States and buried at the Presidio of San Francisco.

John J. Moran was born in this city in 1861 and enlisted in Troop A, First United States Cavalry, in 1881. "Joe" as he was known, served ten years as trumpeter in Troop A, First United States Cavalry, and at the expiration of his five-year enlistment in 1891 he returned to Harrisburg and was employed as a brakeman on the Philadelphia division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, Moran enlisted in the Second Pennsylvania Volunteers. After being mustered out he took charge of the Boy Scout Troop, Chester Springs Soldiers' Orphan School and from there went to the Philippine Islands with Light Battery F, Fourth United States Artillery. He was enlisted by Lieutenant Samuel A. Kenhart, also of the same battery, and a brave young officer who was also a McAllisterville Soldiers' Orphan School graduate.

After returning from the Philippine Islands "Tom" was employed at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco and has been following hotel business ever since. He is now employed at Hotel Columbus, this city.

Mrs. Theresa K. Salsman had a suitable monument erected in Mt. Calvary cemetery, large enough to have the war records of her father and brothers inscribed thereon.

Plan Unfair Competition Legislation to Meet All Conditions After War

Washington, D. C., April 3.—President Wilson and Majority Leader Kitchin of the House today agreed on the general terms of the anti-dumping and unfair competition legislation to meet conditions after the European war. The bill, which Kitchin will put them in the revenue bill, which Mr. Kitchin told the President, would be ready for the House about April 20.

The anti-dumping legislation will be along the general lines of that enacted from the present tariff law. On foreign goods to be sold in the United States at less than the market price in the country from which they shipped the new provision will impose an additional tariff to bring the selling price in the United States up to what it would be if the goods were sold at the market price in the foreign country.

The unfair competition legislation will be along the same lines as the present law applying to unfair competition in the United States. The President, Mr. Kitchin discussed protecting the newly grown dyestuff industry in the United States from competition from abroad, but no conclusion was reached. Mr. Kitchin said he expected an additional tariff on dyestuffs would be imposed in the revenue bill, but the details had not been worked out.

Auto Thief Caught by Newsboy Detective

Walter Headrick, who says he lives at Connelville, was arrested Saturday night, charged with stealing an automobile owned by Bertram Shelley, of Steelton, which was standing along the curb at Third and Market streets while the owner was at Chestnut Street Hall at the dance and basketball game. Two other men who were in the car with Headrick escaped.

The police were notified shortly after the car was taken and two detectives started on the chase in a Jiffy. Just as Headrick reached one of the busy intersections in the downtown district traffic held him up and David Klavansky, a newsboy, darted out from the car and remained there until the officers arrested their man. Headrick, according to the police, claims that the two men who escaped told him to drive the machine for them, as they owned it.

THOMAS MORAN

When the Pennsylvania Railroad, which he enlisted as a second-class fireman in the United States Navy, assigned to battleship Vicksburg, which did good work in Cuba after peace was declared he was mustered out of service and returned home. He died in Harrisburg in 1900.

Thomas P. Moran, the youngest son was born in Harrisburg in 1869, and at the age of eleven years was admitted to the McAllisterville Soldiers' Orphan School. He is now employed in Harrisburg in 1885. At the age of seventeen he enlisted in the Regular Army, and was assigned to Company B, Twentieth Infantry, commanded by Captain William S. McCaskey, now Major General, retired. His regiment saw considerable Indian campaigning in Montana.

In 1892 he enlisted in Troop A, Eighth Cavalry and was sent to Fort Meade, South Dakota. He procured his discharge and had charge of the dispensary at the Government Camp, Fort Custer, Montana.

After Fort Custer was abandoned he returned East and was appointed military instructor at Scotland Soldiers' Orphan School. After leaving Scotland he was employed by Department of Public Safety in Philadelphia.

Seventy members were present and James P. McCullough, superintendent of The Telegraph Printing Company, was chairman of the Rotary Club luncheon at the Senate Hotel today. The speaker was E. J. Stackpole, president of The Telegraph Printing Company. Mr. Stackpole talked principally on individual and community co-operation.

"It is a fortunate city that has back of it the push and energy of such an organization as the Rotary Club," said Mr. Stackpole, "but after all it is not so much the big things that you do as the little things that you do. If you enjoy on occasions like this, the standing shoulder to shoulder in time of stress, the personal interest you manifest in one another, the hand-clasp and the pat on the shoulder that mean most, for life is made up of just such little things. And when one of you helps another or says a kind word to a fellow member, it is in need of aid or a little encouragement the whole community is benefited, for each of you is a unit and the strength of the whole town depends upon its individuals."

Mr. Stackpole spoke optimistically of the ability of the country to weather any storm, no matter what the future may hold in that respect, and he said that the business of the country today is being taken care of by the men who are in the hot fire of preparation for any future, no matter how trying it may prove. Co-operation is the keynote of the hour, he said, and cited the recent getting together of Root and Roosevelt as an example.

March 18, the Rotary Club will entertain Frank Harris, of Washington, district governor, at luncheon and in the evening at the Public Library. Afterward a number of the members will give a "performance" at the Majestic theater after the regular performance.

Violence of Bombardment Indicates That Germans Will Make Another Try

By Associated Press

Paris, April 3.—A new phase of the battle of Verdun has begun and the belief prevails that the violence of the latest attacks foreshadows another attempt by the Germans to rush the fortress with vast forces. New batteries of large caliber have been moved up closer to the French front and the German infantry has been retrained and reorganized.

Yesterday's fighting on the whole was not unfavorable to the French, it was authoritatively stated. The object of the Germans was to clear the approaches to Fort Daumont and 15,000 men were thrown forward on the mile and a half line between Douaumont fort and the village of Vaux. The attacking force, which was found in crossing a little ravine which hitherto had stopped them and in entering the Callette wood. Further east they dislodged the French from the last ruined houses of the village of Vaux, but the French positions were so played as to make it practically impossible for the Germans to debouch from the village and strike French counter attacks drove them back to the upper fringe of Callette.

Rumors That Holland Will Enter War Are Unfounded

By Associated Press

The Hague, April 3.—via London. (Delayed)—The Associated Press is again authoritatively informed that all apprehensions regarding an impending embolism of Holland with any German power are wholly unfounded, but a considerable section of the public persists in believing that the expected coming offensive by the allies, supposedly planned at the Paris conference, holds the possibility of danger to Holland's neutrality.

Michigan Is Naming Candidates Expected to Figure in Big Conventions

By Associated Press

Detroit, Mich., April 3.—Michigan's presidential primary law, enacted in 1912, was given its initial trial today. Electors of the various political parties went to the polls to register their preference for candidates who are expected to figure in the national convention this summer.

The Progressive party, which swept the State four years ago, was without a candidate, Theodore Roosevelt having notified the Secretary of State to disregard the petition which Progressive leaders had filed to place his name on the primary ballot. Woodrow Wilson is the only Democratic candidate, on a sharp contest over the nomination of a national committee man is expected to enliven the balloting of the party. Three names are on the Republican ballot—William Alden Smith, United States Senator, Grand Rapids; Henry Ford, of Detroit, and William G. Snipson, of Detroit. After Mr. Ford's name was placed on the ballot he announced that he should not be seriously considered as a candidate.

Amendment to Armor Plant Opposed By Daniels

By Associated Press

Washington, D. C., April 3.—Secretary Daniels outlined further details of the navy's needs when he resumed today his editorial work of the House naval committee.

Secretary Daniels opposed any amendment to the armor plant bill which would have the Federal Trade Commission determine the cost of armor manufacture and with that figure as a basis have the Secretary fix the price of armor for ten years. If the private manufacturers failed to enter into a contract within thirty days after the price was fixed the Government plant would be built.

ROOT-ROOSEVELT HARMONY TALK

Leaders of Progressives and Republicans Alike Please With the Reunion

New York, April 3.—The Root-Roosevelt meeting continues to be an absorbing topic in political and business circles.

Many prominent Republicans foregathered at the Republican Club and the chief topic of animated discussion when any two members got together was the Bacon luncheon. There were many signed and unsigned interviews given out. They all agreed that the meeting presaged the complete reconciliation of the Republicans and Progressives. Some went so far as to say that it might end the nomination of Roosevelt at Chicago.

James R. Sheffield, president of the club, said: "The only political significance of the luncheon seemed to me to lie in the fact that the national situation is so grave as to unite strong men, no matter what their differences, in a determination to elect a President and Congress pledged to national honor and praiseworthy."

Olcott Sees Harmony. J. Van Vechten Olcott went a little further. "The meeting of Root and Roosevelt is very significant," he said. "It showed that there won't be any serious differences between the Republicans and Progressives when the conventions meet in Chicago. It means that the last bridge between the factions has been crossed."

The suggestion of Roosevelt for President and Root as Secretary of State met general approval among the Republican Club members.
