WHEW! BUT MARCH 1916 WAS CHILLY

Only Twice Before in Fourteen Years Was Record Equaled

101-2 INCHES OF SNOW

Mercury Got Down to 6 Degrees Once; Never Above Sixty-Eight

March, 1916, will go down in weather history as the coldest month of the lion-and-the-lamb in ten years, according to the monthly meteorological summary just issued by the Weather Bureau of the Federal Department of Agriculture. On only two other months in the departmental records has this occurred.

The mercury never got higher than 68 degrees and that point was only reached on the last day, the farthest drop was to 6 degrees and March 18 the date. In 1896 the 33-degree mark was reached and the other occasion was in 1892.

But there was more evidence of the ugliness of March weather; just 1 1/2 inches of snow fell during the month, and the rainfall precipitation totaled 4.14 inches. Furthermore, it was mighty windy, and the prevailing winds, by the way, were northwesterly, with an average velocity of nine miles. For five minutes on March 28 the wind blew hardest. It reached a velocity of twenty-seven miles an hour and it was from the east at that.

Throughout the month there were but nine really clear days; nine were partly cloudy, on thirteen days the heavens were laden with clouds, while on the other thirteen there was a tenth of an inch or more of rain or snow. While the month wasn't remarkable for fogs, auroras, hail nor thunder storms, there was plenty of sleet. On four different occasions there was some of that.

"All in all," said the man who likes to keep tabs on the weather, "March not only came in like a lion, but it behaved like a regular Leo nearly all month."

The Susquehanna behaved well throughout March except during the last few days. The lowest stage above low water mark that was reached was 4.4 feet and this figure was recorded on March 8 and 20; the highest stage was March 30, when the 18.3 foot level was topped. At that the average height was 6.2 feet.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes, all denote liver uncleanness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.—Adv.

GASOLINE PROBE IS FAR-REACHING

Vast Mass of Data on Rise in Price Collected; Report Soon to Congress

Washington, D. C., April 3.—Government agencies investigating the spectacular rise in the price of gasoline have virtually concluded preliminary phases of their work and will report to Congress this week. In the meantime the Department of Justice, which has kept in close touch with the situation, will consider the evidence with a view to determining whether prosecutors are warranted under the antitrust law. Every available field agent of the Federal Trade Commission has been assigned to the gasoline inquiry, under the direction of Commissioner W. J. Harris. Reports by the various companies involved have been checked, so far as possible. "Crude oil producers, manufacturing companies, pipe lines, selling agencies, even tank wagons, in every section of the country has been under surveillance. A tremendous mass of data has resulted, bearing on all phases of the industry. The first report to Congress in response to Senate resolutions will contain comparative figures showing the amount of gasoline and crude oil produced at present and two or three years ago, the volume exported, relative costs of production, amounts sold in each section of the country then and now and comparative wholesale and retail prices. No comment will be made on the reasons for the rise. A second report, data for which is not yet complete, will supplement the first with an analysis of the situation and will set forth reasons to which the commission attributes the tremendous increase. Still another report, dealing with any facts the investigation may disclose relating to unjust discrimination by manufacturing and producing companies, is contemplated later. Four Salient Points The investigation has been conducted with a view to determining four salient points, as follows: 1. The extent of production and use of gasoline now and two and three years ago. 2. The volume of gasoline exported and the supply remaining here for domestic use, particularly as to whether the rise, or any portion of it, could be attributed to a scarcity of product. 3. Whether there has been discrimination by big producers in favor of big buyers. 4. Whether there is actual competition among the former elements that went to make up the oil trust; if there is, to what extent and how the small independent producer is affected thereby.

This Is the Birthday Anniversary of—

GUERT W. ENSIGN

In city, county, State, engineering and contracting circles it isn't necessary to explain about "Guert"; neither is it necessary to tell of him to hosts of other friends. The Camp Hill contracting engineer is mighty well known and in addition to the big army of friends who may call him "En" his public improvement jobs in city, county and even in other parts of the State have given him more than passing acquaintance in official and professional fields. Scores of sewers and bridges will stand for years to come as monuments of Guert Ensign's ability in city and county. His principal works, perhaps, include the big four-foot concrete and steel drain that extends from Paxtang through Cameron Extension to the river, the Spring creek sewer, as it is officially called, the Maclay street, Herr street bridges, in Harrisburg, and the splendid curving concrete arch viaduct that spans the Wiconisco creek at Millerburg. But it isn't only because he builds builds 'em so well, that scores and scores of folks to-day give him, figuratively or literally, "here's how, and many of 'em;" it's largely because he's just "En!"
