A PENNSYLVANIA MOTHER'S ADVICE

"Every Young Girl Should Use It"

McKeesport, Pa.—"When I was 15 years old. my mother being dead, a lady insisted on my using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I cannot tell you how glad I was of this and how I wish now glad I was of this and now I wish every young girl would use it at this time. I am now 45 years of age, have had 13 children, seven of whom are well, strong boys and girls. With the first four children I used 'Favorite Prescription' as well as 'Pleasant Pel-lets,' according to directions, both be-fore and after and had very little trou-ble. Occasiors come now when I turn fore and after and had very little trou-ble. Occasiors come now when I turn to Dr. Pierce's remedies for help and they never fail. The 'Piensant Pellets' have been a 'stand-by' with me for years for sick headache, constipation, etc. They do all you claim for them." MRS. FRANK H. MILBURN, 2323 Fifth Avenue, McKeesport, Pa. Heed the warnings of nature, Back-ache, headache, low spirits, lassitude

Heed the warnings of nature. Backache, headache, low spirits, lassitude and pains are hard enough to hear. Act! Don't wait! If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother sistermeed help get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form from any medicine dealer to-day. The medicine that every woman needs when passing through the changing days. It is not a secret prescription, for its ingredients are printed en the wrapper; it's a temperance medicine.

Not only does it build up the entire system and make it strong and vigorous enough to withstand the organic disturbances, but it has a quieting effect upon the feminine organism.

If Alan had any qualms about introducing Kemp to Red Hill they were soon allayed. Kemp was duly present-ed on the lawn at Maple House. To everything in petticoats he took off his hat and said "ma'am," but before the men he stood hatted and vouchsafed a short "Howdy!" accompanied by a handshake where it was invited.

Strange to Kemp must have seemed the group of which he found himself the center. At a tea table under the Kemp and motioned to a chair beside her. Kemp let his lanky frame down slowly on the fragile structure, took off his domed hat and laid it on the grass at his side. For an instant Mrs. J. Y. fixed her soft, myopic gaze on him and then looked away. Clem brought him a cup of tea and a biscuit. Kemp held the cup and saucer in the hollow of his hand and looked dublously at their group. He saw that nobody was taking anything but tea and at the same time he noted gratefully that nobody was watching him. The judge and J. Y. were talking to each other. Nance, junior, and Cousin Tom were kneeling before Gerry, junior, stolen for a short hour from Alix. That dwarf Moloch, arrayed in starchy white that stuck out like a ballet skirt above his sturdy, fat legs, was gravely Sterling lay full length on the ground while his brood, with shrill cries at his frequent eruptions, buried and reburied him with sofa pillows. Nance. Alan and Clem sipped tea and cheered on the children's efforts.

Kemp turned a twinkling eye on Mrs. J. Y. "I ain't sayin', ma'am, thet this mixture is my usual bev'rage, but a man don't expect to have his usual handed down f'm a pulpit, and likewise I see no call for folks turnin' their front lawns into a bar."

Kemp could feel a scene; his strange nature was moved at finding itself rubbing elbows with such a group and when Kemp was moved he always talked to hide his emotion. Mrs. J. Y.'s kindly eyes led him on, made him feel weirdly akin to those quiet, contented men and women and clean-frocked, rosy-cheeked children frolicking against the peaceful setting of shady trees, old lawns and the rambling house that staidly watched them like some motherly hen, wings out-spread, ever ready to brood and shel-

Kemp's eyes left Mrs. J. Y.'s face and swept over the scene again. "Speakin' of bars," he went on in his soft drawl, "I don't think a missus ever has no call to handle drinks over milk pail, which isn't drink in a manner o' speakin'. I can't rightly rec'llect that I ever seen a missus leanin' over either side of a bar in this country, but I've strayed some from the home fence an' you may be su'prised. Mis' Wayne. to know that they's lands where no one ain't never heerd tell on a barman an' where barmaids is some commoner'n the milkin' brand."

"Yes?" said Mrs. J. Y. encouragingly.

"Sho' thing," replied Kemp; "I seen 'em. I won't forget the fust time be-cause I was consid'able embarrassed. I missed a steamer in Noo Yawk an' the firm was in a hurry, so they sent me acrost to S'uthampton, an' while I was waitin' for the Brazil boat a feller I'd picked up on boa'd showed me around some. Well, it wa'n't long before he corralled me, quite willin', in a bar. I pulled off my hat and he says, 'Why d'you take off yo' hat?' and I says, 'Why don't you take off yourn? I says, 'Why don't you take off yourn? atist, is Don't you see they's a lady hea'?' Then Thing."

Thing." he bust out laughin' and everybody that was nea' enough to hea' bust out laughin' an' the missus behind the bar laughed, too, though somehow it didn't sound as if she laughed because she couldn't he'p it."

Kemp paused to blush over the memory. He did not notice that the judge and J. Y. had drawn quietly nearer and that the rest of the group of grown-ups were intent on his words. "They's times," he continued, "when it's fittin' that a man should be without shootin' irons an' that was one of 'em. I can't rightly say what would have happened but guessin's easy. When he was through laughin' the feller that was showin' me around slapped me on the back and sez, 'That ain't no lady; it's a barmaid.' An' then they all laughed some mo' and the missus just kind o' laughed an' I mought 'a' been dreamin', but I thought I seen a look in her eyes thet says she wasn't laugh in' inside at all. Ever sence then I've been of opinion that a missus has no call to handle drinks an' I ce'tainly hope I'll never see one a'doin' of it under the home fence."

If Horace Walpole, who died before Lincoln was born, had lived in this modern-day period of superabundance of comedy and tragedy oftentimes "so-called" perhaps he would not have been moved to utter that famous passage in which he expresses the opinion that "The world is a comedy to those that think, a tragedy to those who feel," because under existing circumstances the quality of the thought and the depth of the feeling would scarcely be flattering to those who compose the world

We have had our "Passing Shows" in various years, but nothing like the "Surpassing Show" that it is reputed the Young Men's Business Club, of Pittsburgh, will give on May 1 and 2. If the young men can act and dance as well as the members of the U of F. Mask and Wig Club, it will certainly be worth seeing.

"The Ballet Russe," which has had such a big run at the Metropolitan Opera House, in Philadelphia, closed a successful season there on Saturday evening with a huge crowd. Probably nothing that has appeared on the stage during the present season has created so much of a stir as the "Ballet Russe." be it opera, comedy, drama, melodrama, dramatic tragedy, musical comedy or what not.

Just before he went away Kemp took it upon himself to call on Alix. Alan led him to where she sat on the lawn among the trees at The Firs and left him. TO HELP WOMEN

After terrible sufferings, numberless women have used Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound and recovered from ailments peculiar to their sex. Many of these, who cannot bear that other women should suffer as they did without knowing what to do, have written letters telling their experience to be published to the world. These honest, helpful stories are constantly appearing in the newspapers. Read them, ailing women, they are written with no motive but your good.—Adv.
