DR. SURFACE HITS SUPERSTITIONS

Says That Stuff About Moving Cats and Having Misfortune Is Buncombe

State Zoologist Surface is crusading against superstitions. "There is nothing more cruel and unjust to both cats and birds than the absurd and superstitious notion, that to move a cat brings bad luck," he declared to-day. "The moving season is at hand. Through the very foolish and superstitious notion about the possibility of bad luck due to moving the cat, the faithful house cat, or her kittens, may be deserted. Under such conditions she starves and is forced to become half wild, and is liable to be a destroyer of birds. Necessarily these are the birds of the garden and orchard in the vicinity that was home to her, and this means that they are the beneficial birds, which feed chiefly upon the insects most destructive to fruits and truck crops.

"We have already seen this year several examples of persons moving and leaving their cats behind. In some cases other tenants were not to follow soon, and the cats have nearly died of starvation. In other cases where the new tenants are to come soon to the premises, the cats are unfamiliar with these newcomers, and if they act shy, it is too often taken for granted that they are too wild, too timid or too ferocious to be desirable in the new home, and hence they are stoned, dogged and persecuted. The fate of the cat at moving time is very serious. There is no reason whatever why the faithful house cat should not be either taken along when moving, the same as the dog, or be mercifully killed, rather than permitted to starve and run wild. If the fundamental principles of decency and humanity do not prompt persons to give proper heed to their cats when moving, this indeed becomes a fit subject for the attention of that worthy organization known as the society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

There should be a branch of this society in each county of the State. Those persons who have no conscience should at least be made to observe the law concerning cruelty to the infliction of pain upon the lowly creatures. In most localities in this State officers of this society are available, and can be learned by making inquiry of local policemen.
"Aside from the feature of humane treatment of the cat, this subject has a very important economical bearing upon the preservation of our birds. As the birds roost in trees and the cats are climbers, they can readily become the chief enemies of our feathered friends at this time of year. One cat has been known to destroy eighty birds within a year. This means the removal of the natural control of more insect pests than would be required to destroy practically all the farm crops and fruits of any farmer or fruit grower in the State. Let the cats be preserved and fed, the birds saved, the insects destroyed and better and cheaper crops produced."

HE BELIEVES IN ADVERTISING
What faith in advertising, put to the test and persistently followed, will accomplish is strikingly exemplified in the case of Gen. J. S. Carr, of Durham, N. C. In twenty-five years Gen. Carr has built up a fortune of $4,000,000 from an initial investment of $12,000—and built it up by advertising.

LOSS OF SHEEP IS GROWING SERIOUS

Figures Compiled by the State Department Officials Show Extent of Ravages

Details of the official figures collected by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture show that there are assessed in the boroughs and townships of the State 263,511 dogs. This total does not include the dogs in Lebanon, Lehigh, Philadelphia and Susquehanna counties. In Lehigh and Lebanon counties the commissioners ignored the dog assessment and tax act and Susquehanna county is working under a special act whereby each township and borough collects its own dog tax and pays the damages. No report was made from Philadelphia county.
As it is impossible for the assessors to make return on all the dogs in the boroughs and townships, it is estimated that twenty-five per cent. of the dogs are missed and that the total figures of dogs in the State that are liable for assessment in boroughs and townships will reach close to the 400,000 mark. Officials of the Department of Agriculture estimate that with the dogs in the cities which are assessed and licensed under special acts, there are over 1,000,000 dogs in Pennsylvania.
The total amount of dog tax collected in the boroughs and townships during 1915 was $135,278.70. Figures show that the taxes are highest in Greene, Mercer and Washington counties where a large number of sheep are yearly killed and injured. In the former two counties the tax is $2.00 for each male dog and $4.00 for female dogs while in Washington county the tax is $1.50 for males and $3.00 for females. The general average in sheep raising counties is $1.00 and $2.00, although some counties have a rate as low as 15 and 25 cents. In a number of counties of counties the dog tax collected did not pay for the damages allowed for the killing and injury to sheep and the dog license plates.

There were 3,330 unlicensed dogs killed by the direction of the county officials with Westmoreland officials especially active in carrying out the provisions of the recent act of the legislature by having 1,052 dogs killed. In addition to the damages paid for the sheep killing it cost the counties $4,502.41 for payment in cases where horses or other animals were bitten by mad dogs.
Some of the amount of taxes collected by the various counties were: Washington, $7,058.00; Westmoreland, $6,807.35; Mercer, $6,081.58; Erie, $5,362.85; Allegheny, $5,258.10. The high amounts paid for the killing and injury to sheep were Washington, $3,656.70; Mercer, $2,908.75; Greene, $2,465.40; Tioga, $2,402.70; Bradford, $2,337.37 and Crawford, $2,741.50.
