PETITIONS SLOW IN REACHING HILL

Total List on File Is Not Yet 1,000 and Many More Are Expected

Only about 850 nominating petitions of the 4,500 expected to be filed for the May primary have reached the State Capitol and the time for filing such papers expires on Tuesday, April 18, at 6 p. m. A number of those presented were returned as not in form or without the requisite number of signers. A big rush is expected on Monday and Tuesday as never before have petitions been held back so long.

In some districts no papers at all have been filed, although notice that some may be expected has been given. Comparatively few papers for delegates to national conventions are on file.

The State Department, which receives and files the papers, will start preparations to certify the lists on Wednesday and it is expected that there will be some curious line-ups as under the law names must be arranged alphabetically. Names can not be printed in groups, according to affiliations.

Speaker Charles A. Ambler of the State House of Representatives, late yesterday filed a petition to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Auditor of Pottsville, has already filed. Mr. Ambler's papers were signed by voters in Philadelphia, Wyoming, Armstrong, Adams, Montgomery, Berks, Cambria, Delaware, Indiana, Juniata and Luzerne.

Thomas Ross, Doylestown, and Jacob B. Waldreich, Allentown, filed petitions to be candidates for Democratic nominations for Congress-at-large and district congressional petitions were filed by Congressman John R. Farr, Scranton, Republican, 10th, and John M. Rose, Johnstown, Republican, 15th.

Democratic delegate petitions were filed as follows: Republican, T. W. Tobias, John P. Stouch, Altoona, and John C. Ogden, Johnstown, 19th; L. A. Watres, Scranton, 10th; and Democratic, W. F. Lauster, Rural Valley, 27th.

Democratic petitions to run for alternate delegate-at-large were filed by A. V. Dively, Altoona; M. J. Clemens, Murray; John P. Stone, Coudersport; C. H. Akens, New Castle; Jacob L. Butt, Gettysburg, and for district alternates by George R. Bull, Milford, 14th, and John W. Hawes, Windber, 23rd.

A REAL "CANNONBALL"

Erwin G. Baker, the Indianapolis boy who made a new world's record for a motorcycle of 1,000 miles in 21 hours and 3 minutes in Australia, January 29, riding an Indian, has been taking part in road and track events, both motorcycle and automobile, since 1907. His nickname of "cannonball" is well deserved, as his distance annihilating events, often running as high as 500 and 100 miles a day over period of a number of days in succession have proved in half a dozen cases. He is the undisputed titleholder for the coast-to-coast motorcycle and automobile records in this country having made the distance, San Diego, Cal., to New York City, in not far from 11 1/2 days with both types of vehicles.

The Social Pirates

Little Monte Carlo
Plot by George Bronson Howard.
Novelization by Hugh C. Weir.
Copyright Kalem Company.

"I'm glad to get back, at that," said Mona Hartley to her chum, Mary Burnett.

The two girls were leaning over the rail of a steamer that was being warped into her dock by tugs. They had been having a vacation trip, and, though that was over now, and they faced the necessity of replenishing the store of money, heavily drawn upon for the trip, they looked happy.

"So'm," said Mary. "I was tired when we went back."

Mona laughed. These two girls, so well dressed, so fashionable in their appearance, had no visible means of support.

They had become embittered some time before by the experiences of some close friends who had suffered at the hands of unscrupulous leeches of society, blackmailers and parasites.

Mona had therefore decided to conduct a campaign against this class of men and make them suffer, especially financially, in what the two girls considered a partial retribution for their misdeeds.

They had pledged themselves to select for their victims only those whose despicable and contemptible actions had already marked them as belonging to the pack of wolves who prey on society, and in this way the two girls considered that they merely collected the bill of expense due them for conducting this crusade against the individual and the wiles to which they were obliged to resort were simply a minor detail in this process of collection.

Mona and Mary Avert a Threatened Suicide.

A few minutes later they were ashore. For some reason they did not secure some of the first flight of taxis, and the wheat crop in this county next summer will be short.

They strolled to the end of the pier, to look at the boats. No boats, they said that "Nobody loves a villain."

"Walk This Way"

"Walk This Way," a little musical comedy with Billy Clifford in the title role, is the attraction announced for the Orpheum this evening. The story of the play is carefully worked out, the climaxes are right to the point and the humor is up to the minute. The season Mr. Clifford is carrying a ladies' brass band, whose open-air concerts are features.

Thurston

Thurston, the magician, who will appear at the Orpheum for three days, beginning Monday, with matinee Monday and Wednesday, should give thanks that he is living in the present instead of in the past, waiting to be discovered, enjoying it all with an intelligence that is a surprise to the intelligence when the time comes with the lowering of the final curtain.

"It Pays to Advertise"

Contracts have been signed, sealed and delivered, and a definite date set for the presentation at the Orpheum of the greatest laughing hit Cohen and Worth.

Mrs. Adaline Spayd Dies at Lansdowne

Mrs. Adaline Spayd, widow of John W. Spayd, a well-known citizen of Harrisburg, died yesterday morning at the home of her son, Charles H. Spayd, 28 Lexington avenue, Lansdowne, a suburb of Philadelphia, after a lingering illness extending over several months. Heart failure was the cause of death. She was in her seventy-first year.

The body will be brought to Harrisburg to-morrow and laid to rest in the Spayd family plot in the Harrisburg Cemetery.

Prior to moving to Philadelphia Mr. and Mrs. John W. Spayd lived at 45 North Thirteenth street, this city. The deceased was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Buffington and was born near Casarsa, Jefferson township, in the upper part of Dauphin county. She married John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Spayd, who at the time of her death in Philadelphia about twelve years ago, was prominently identified with educational work and also devoted much of his time to the publishing business. His father, Jonathan Spayd, was one of the leading citizens of this section, being an influential figure in Republican politics up to the time of his death in this city about eighteen years ago.

Mrs. Spayd is survived by two sons, Clarence E. Spayd, of New York city, who for years was editor of the Star-Independent, occupying this position to become confidential man for Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, and Charles H., a chemist with the Charles Emswiler printing ink manufacturing concern of Philadelphia. She is also survived by three sisters—Mrs. Uriah Snyder, of Caronsville; Mrs. Charles W. Enders, of Elizabethville, and Mrs. Lawrence several bell, of Millersburg, all in the upper end of Dauphin county.

"ROBIN HOOD" AND "MADAME BUTTERFLY" COMING MAY 27

The Philadelphia Operatic Society has been engaged for two performances of Grand opera in this city the latter part of next month. To be exact the date is Saturday, May 27. The attempt will be more or less experimental and the probability of the return of this and other operatic societies to Harrisburg will depend entirely upon the support given to the company which will present "Madame Butterfly" in the evening of the date given.

The entire personnel of the Philadelphia Operatic Society numbers 250 members, including an orchestra of 22 pieces under the direction of Wassili Leps, a ballet of 18 dancers and 27 principals. The presentation of Robin Hood, in Harrisburg will be identical with the Philadelphia presentation in the Metropolitan Opera House. Scenery, costumes, and all stage equipment will be furnished by the Metropolitan Opera House.

The gradual transformation of Harrisburg into a community which will give hearty and enthusiastic support to opera and the better performances by famous artists like Kreisler and Spalding will mean an increased prestige for the city in comparison to other cities and will be just one more advance step toward metropolitanism in a city that is destined to become one of the most important and influential in the State of Pennsylvania.
