

HER HOME NO LONGER CHILDLESS

Operation not Necessary after Taking the Great Medicine for Women.

Miller's Falls, Mass.—"Doctors said I had displacement very badly and I would have to have an operation. I had a soreness in both sides and a pulling sensation in my right side. I could not do much work the pain was so bad. I was also troubled with irregularity and other weaknesses. My blood was poor. We had been married four years and had no children.

After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I became well and strong and was saved from the operation. We are now the parents of a big baby girl and I praise your remedies to others and give you permission to publish my letter."—Mrs. JOSEPH GUILBAULT, JR., Bridge Street, Miller's Falls, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is famous for restoring women to normal health and strength. When this is done wives no longer despair of having children.

A woman should be reluctant to submit to a surgical operation until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. If you have a case that needs special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin—a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from lines are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions, each morning before breakfast a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting morning dew on the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated, very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—Advertisement.

For Economy's Sake

Use borax! Borax saves 50 per cent of laundry soap. Borax makes soap do more work at less expense. It makes better, easier washings.

The clothes last longer, too. Borax is absolutely noninjurious. And its cost is trifling.

A 25c package of "20 Mule Team Borax Soap Chips" will do more cleaning than 50c worth of bar soap or washing powders.

To Avoid Dandruff

You do not want a slow treatment when hair is falling and the dandruff germ is killing the hair roots. Delay means no hair.

Get at any drug store, a bottle of zemo for 25c or $1.00 for extra large size. Use as directed, for it does the work quickly. It kills the dandruff germ, nourishes the hair roots and immediately stops itching scalp. It is sure and safe, is not greasy, is easy to use and will not stain. Soaps and shampoos are harmful, as they contain alkali. The best thing to use is zemo, for it is pure and also inexpensive.

Eggs Show Great Decrease Lately

Eggs in cold storage in Pennsylvania cold storage warehouses on April 1 showed the most remarkable decrease as compared with the number stored at the close of the preceding quarter ever known in the State since the cold storage law went into effect according to a summary of such reports made public here to-day by the State Department of Agriculture.

On April 1 only 21 cold storage warehouses out of 72 in the State reported any eggs.

The total in storage on the first of the month was 19,122 dozens against 2,613,541 dozens and 1,677,752 dozens a year before. State officials attribute the decline to the late winter and to the Easter demand.

The reports on butter showed 445,465 pounds in storage on April 1 against 3,452,796 pounds on January 1 and 906,040 pounds a year ago. A big decrease in fish stored was also shown, the April report being 3,037,185 pounds against 4,172,492 on January 1. Poultry in storage was 2,305,311 on January 1 and 2,365,386 on April 1.

Marked decreases in the meat in storage, with exception of veal, were also reported.

HOME A NOVEL

GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

"When a man learns to eat work just like he does food because he's hungry for it, there's bound to be a place for him anywhere. It has struck me there are a lot of seeds around here, some of them mine, that are about ready for resurrection, and resurrection is my job."

"I don't know exactly how I'm going to start but it may be planting potatoes. You can begin a resurrection with any one of a number of simple things. It doesn't matter much which one you pick on as long as you start right down at the bottom and spread yourself in the subsoil of things. Everything that grows starts down deep except your orchards and they are parasites—"

"Easy on orchards," interjected Kemp. "Sorry, Kemp. Orchards are ornamental but excepting your favorites they're not even beautiful. Look at a Cypridium Verillarium—"

"Hybrid," granted Kemp.

"A man in his D. T.'s couldn't beat it for gorgeous horror," finished Gerry. "But that's neither here nor there. What I'm driving at is this. If I had never been tossed over the home fence I would have lived and died an ornamental citizen with the girl and a beer barrel. But now my eyes are a bit open and I can see that the simple things of life are the big things. Growth from the roots is the strength of a man and of his people. I've come home in more senses than one. I'm going to send down my roots right here."

Kemp had been whittling. When Gerry had finished he pocketed his knife and gazed thoughtfully down the valley. "It seems to me, Mr. Lansing, that you 'nd me have been travelling different trails but come together at the same gap. You remember 'The Purple City'?"

"Wal, seems to me the 'ceptin' in a man's own mind ain't no purple city. What a man's got to find ain't purple cities but the power to see one when he's got it. You had your right here in this valley an' your side on Red Hill. You grew up in it but you never seen it—not till you learned how. What you been sayin' about the simple things of life—the things that is at the bottom—has he'ped my seein' parts a powerful lot. I knowed before I come to Red Hill that I was goin' out West to stay but I didn't rightly know why. Now of you ask me what I know I can tell you I know considerable."

"In in Noo Mexico they's a ranch in the fork of Big and Little creek that's the greenest patch in the shadow of White Mountain. It's mine and it's got a three-room shack on it that could grow if need was. I know a girl that's been holdin' a four-fush against an orchid's weak pair till she's just about sick of the game, but she's drawn and filled on the last hand though she ain't had a chance to look at her cards yet.

"For some while the's been a purple light hangin' over Big and Little creek an' I reckon I'll be able to see it plain an' plainer the nigher I get to it an' if the girl will he'p me I reckon that in a small way we'll soon be growin' a purple city that will feed from yo' hand. Ef ever you feel the need of some bran' new air, Mr. Lansing, you come out to Big and Little. There won't be much besides air but it'll be fresh made on White Mountain an' you can smell it comin' down through the pines an' see it playin' with the leaves on the cottonwoods an' plowin' through the tops of the sorghum."

They sat for some time in silence then Gerry said, "I've been calling you 'Kemp' since I first saw you but you still hang on to the 'mister' when you talk to me. Cut it out, Kemp."

Kemp flushed slightly. "Some things is fittin' an' some ain't," he said, "an' we can't always rightly say why. Some folks is governed by conscience but most by pride. Its goin' to be 'Kemp' and 'Mister Lansing' to the end of the chapter, Mr. Lansing, an' no friendship lost either. Shake."

They shook hands solemnly, mounted and started back to Red Hill. Gerry had found the key to Kemp's strength. It was the key of strength. Kemp belonged on the Hill, and with the people of true blood anywhere, not only because he was himself always but because he defended what he could hold and no more. He was a definition for independence.

And then the peace of home descended upon him. On his scarred spirit he felt the touch of the healing hands of love. Its sweetness and its power, its love everlasting demanding love forever, knocked at his waking heart and found the door open. Far, far had he wandered in the world of mind and the world of men, but in the end he had come back like a Wayne to the eternal mother of the Waynes. Tonight he knew that his drifting soul had dropped anchor at last.

(THE END.)

COULD KILL ANYTHING
[From the Christian Herald.]
We may well ask what virtue there is in obedience so far as education of the will is concerned, if a man knows that he will be court-martialed and perhaps shot if he disobeys. The evidence that military training does not develop that self-mastery which is the goal of all education, is the fact that disbanded soldiery are rather less temperate, chaste, and law-abiding as a usual thing than those who have never been to war or lived in barracks. As Kipling says: "Single men in barracks don't grow into plaster saints."

The most dangerous feature of the demand for military training is that it is based on a new fear and suspicion which is infecting the minds of all youth, and is planting the seeds of a future world-war. Imagination and not reason is appealed to. "I have just got my new uniform," writes a boy in a Concord, N. H., school which has adopted military training, "and I feel as if I could kill anything."

It was late afternoon of a day in the gorgeous month. A shower had fallen on Red Hill and after it had come the sun. Wisps of mare's-tail cloud hurried across the clean-washed heavens as though they were ashamed to be caught in their ragged clothes under a blue sky. Downy-topped masses of cumulus poked drowsy heads over the horizon and watched them run. Out of the dome of heaven filtered a single trill of song.

The Hill was very still but presently from far away on the West Lake road came the whinny of a horse; a little later, a little nearer, a peal of laughter; then the sound of wheels and chattering voices. A wagonette, two

AMBITION MUST NOT HIT HEALTH

Commissioner Dixon Discusses the Importance of the Peaceful Life

Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Pennsylvania's commissioner of health, gives expression to some of his views in regard to the manner in which ambition makes people forget health and warns that the intensity of modern civilized life tends to lead people from the paths of peace and contentment.

The commissioner's talk declares that "Those who plunge unrestrainedly into the exhausting struggle for great riches and power cast aside what the philosophers of all ages have said is best. The condition of the mind, he says, makes a profound impression on health and is apt to affect people in many ways.

In his talk the commissioner says: "The accumulated knowledge of science regarding the workings of the human mind demonstrates how little has been accomplished toward discovering the relationship between the physical and the mental. It is however, plain to even the most casual observer that the condition of the mind makes a profound impression upon our health.

In his talk the commissioner says: "The intensity of life in modern civilization makes demands upon us in many ways that are in excess of those which a more primitive environment required of our forefathers. This often results in a mental and nervous condition detrimental to good health."

"We Americans have often been accused by observers from other lands of living under an intense strain and
