Madame Lyra Corsets Fulfill Every Requisite of Style, Fit and Comfort: $3.50 to $10.00

The corsets for Spring are designed to follow the lines of the natural figure, and to bring out their beauty. The simplest gown is enhanced by the suggestion of the trim figure beneath, and the most wonderful creation ever turned out by a modiste will fail in its effect if worn over an ill-fitting corset. The corset cannot entirely make over the figure; it cannot make a thin woman plump, or a stout woman thin; but when a corset is chosen individually and fitted correctly, it lends symmetrical, graceful lines to every type of figure. Comfort is the first requisite and final proof of a well fitting, properly adjusted corset. Madame Lyra corsets fulfill every requisite of style, fit and comfort. Special fittings will be given at any time this week. Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, Second Floor.

STEEL CO. GIVES $600 TO BOROUGH

the offices of Attorney W. F. Darby, in the Steelton Trust building, through C. S. Davis, chairman of the parks and playgrounds committee, and the leader in the playgrounds movement in the borough.

MOTHERS AND WIVES

Of this country—those who after months and even years of suffering, have been restored to health and strength by that good old-fashioned root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, are the ones who have spread the good news of health restored, until to-day there is hardly a town so small that the women who suffer from female ailments do not depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore health.

other movement for the advancement of Steelton. The steel company's offer of $600 makes available a fund of $1,500 for playgrounds work during the coming summer. Of this sum $700 was appropriated by the borough council and $100 each by the Municipal League and the Steelton Civic Club.

Frame Model Ordinance
Just how this fund will be expended and how the big mass of detail work incident to the establishment of a playgrounds system will be taken care of is the problem now facing the borough authorities and the civic organizations back of the recreation movement.

To solve this problem the Municipal League at its meeting last evening endorsed the commission idea and discussed a model ordinance creating a parks and playgrounds commission to handle the recreation in Steelton, and will submit the measure to the borough council at its meeting Monday evening.

This ordinance calls for appointment of a commission of five men, three of whom shall be the members of the present Steelton Shade Tree Commission which succeeded in establishing the present beautiful system of parks in Harrisburg and in organizing the playgrounds system. The members will serve without pay and will work under the direction of the borough council so far as the spending of money or the framing of rules for the government of the recreation facilities are concerned.

proven so efficient in Steelton, this commission would be composed of men who are connected with the borough government in no other way. They would receive no pay for their work.

Would Help Council

Since the proposed commission will relieve council of a mass of detail work and yet not curtail its authority in any way it is believed that the borough fathers will show their willingness to get behind the recreation movement at their next meeting by suspending their rules and passing the measure finally. By doing this they will assure the borough an adequate system of playgrounds within a few weeks and will enable the commission to get busy at once in obtaining a competent playgrounds supervisor and the local instructors for each playground.

Already the Steelton School Board has given assurances that the school playgrounds may be used in establishing the proposed playgrounds system and the Pennsylvania Steel Company will permit use of the plot of ground at Front street and Angle avenue. C. S. Davis, chairman of the parks and playgrounds committee of the Municipal League, has already been in close touch with a number of applicants for the position of playgrounds instructor and a selection will be made within a short time.

WANT 500 MEN TO WORK ON STATE FAIR SITE

W. J. STEWART where a large number of prominent men have taken up the State Fair project, expressed himself to-day as being well pleased with the prospects. Said he: "When I started out to organize the Keystone State Fair and Industrial Exposition it seemed to be a one-man concern. But how different now. The work is being done by people all over the State; there is an atmosphere of appreciation and loyalty in every section."

Success After Up-Hill Fight

Mr. Stewart tells an interesting story of the up-hill fight he made before he got the company on its feet and in position to go forward as rapidly as it has in the past few months. Early in November, 1913, Mr. Stewart instituted a thorough search throughout the State for the most logical State fair location—one that could be easily reached by all railroads, and as near the center of population as possible. The search finally narrowed down to Cumberland and Dauphin counties, and it was at this time that Mr. Stewart became acquainted with Mr. Kunkel, president of the Mechanics Trust Company and also owner of the Kunkel building. Mr. Kunkel was the owner of a beautiful farm of 195 acres, just outside of Harrisburg, at that time leased by H. J. Heinz. This proved to be an ideal location, but, being too small, the two adjoining farms were purchased to complete the desired plot, making a total of 410 acres, and conceded to be one of the most magnificent sites in the entire State. On April 20, 1914, the Keystone State Fair and Industrial Exposition, with a capitalization of $1,500,000 secured its charter, after which Mr. Stewart began a campaign which few men would care to undertake—that of organizing for the distribution of stock, and also looking after the plans and construction of the State fair buildings and the two-mile speedway. Mr. Stewart realized more than any one else that the future held for him no idle moments. He at once resumed his thousands of miles of travel. Wherever Mr. Stewart went he was welcomed and the result is there has not only been established a complete chain of organizations working throughout the State, but the people themselves are voluntarily extending courtesies and financial support.

Appreciating the fact that Pennsylvania has long wanted a State fair, and that nothing short of perfectly designed buildings and a master speedway would meet with the approval of the people, Mr. Stewart extended his travels into other States, visiting such noted State fair cities as Springfield, Illinois; Des Moines, Iowa; Columbus, Ohio; Syracuse, N. Y.—gathering valuable data and consulting with leading engineers. During one of these investigation tours Mr. Stewart's attention was attracted to the great speedway in Chicago, and learned that it was designed by Graham, Burnham & Company, the noted speedway and architectural experts, whose nationally known achievements stand as monuments to their knowledge and experience.

In Mr. Stewart's endeavors there have been days that seemed to him like days of magic. One of these days was when he walked into the offices of Graham, Burnham & Company, in Chicago, June 18, 1915, and from that day the Keystone State Fair has been growing rapidly. Then came the contract for plans and next came an association with James A. Bennett, senior member of the Bennett & Randall Company, of Greensburg, widely known for their success in railroad construction, bridge building and excavation work, to whom the contract has been let for the grading and sewerage system. Bennett & Randall are pushing the end of the work to rapid completion, and in a very short time active work will be started on the speedway itself. A second steam shovel arrived to-day. Another feature Mr. Stewart has perfected is the establishment in every county of a clearinghouse. By this system all those devoting time in the interest of the Keystone State Fair report to the clearinghouse in their respective counties. For instance, in Westmoreland county, Mr. Stewart has been fortunate in securing Bair & Lane, among the leading insurance agencies in the State, to whom all those working in Westmoreland county in the interest of the Keystone State Fair will report. Scores of shareholders from all over the State will be here for the annual meeting on Saturday, May 6.
