C. E. Notes

The Harrisburg Christian Endeavor choral union will give a high-class musical festival, written by Gounod, Handel, two of the famous music writers of modern times, on next Thursday evening in the Central high school auditorium, corner Chestnut and Carpenter streets.

The presidents of the societies of the uptown district, under the leadership of Ross H. Derrick, held a meeting at Christian Endeavor headquarters room last evening. Plans were made to start a hostess campaign in the interest of the State convention.

Adams county will be represented at the coming State convention with two hundred registered delegates present at the opening of the sessions. On the day of the parade an excursion will be run from Gettysburg and it is expected that that county will have not less than 500 Endeavorers in line.

The regular monthly meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the Second Reformed Church was held at the home of the pastor, Pastor Schumann, 402 Broad street, on Tuesday evening. Many important items of interest were discussed. After the business session refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in music and games.

"Using Sunday For This World and the Next" will be the topic for discussion in the societies to-morrow evening.

Plans will be made at the Christian Endeavor Booster meeting to be held in Christian Endeavor headquarters room on Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock, to send boosters out to the various societies during the next few weeks. All presidents, vice-presidents and societies, and all officers and committee chairmen of the city union are urged to attend. Other Endeavorers are cordially invited to attend.

Many of the Christian Endeavor societies of nearby towns have sent in requests to entertain delegates coming to the State convention in July. Any information can be had at any time by addressing Prof. John F. Kob, 1435 Swatara street.

M. E. CONFERENCE TO OPEN MAY 1

Twenty-seventh Quadrennial Sessions Will Be Held in Saratoga Springs

On the morning of May 1 there will convene in Saratoga Springs, New York, the twenty-seventh quadrennial session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This delegated body of over eight hundred ministers and laymen in equal numbers meets every four years to review the work of the church and to revise and add to its legislation. The General Conference is made up of delegates from the one hundred and thirty-three annual conferences, the annual conference being the working unit of Methodism. These delegates are elected on a basis of one ministerial delegate for every forty-five members, not less than two-thirds of forty-five, ministerial members in any given annual conference, the number of lay delegates always being the same for each conference and its ministerial delegates. The men were first admitted to the General Conference in 1872, and in 1900 women were acknowledged as lay members. These lay delegates are elected at a meeting of the representative from each local church in each annual conference territory. For the past twelve months, as the annual conferences have met, delegates have been elected.

The first General Conference of American Methodism was held in Baltimore, Md., in 1792, at which all preachers in full membership of an annual conference were eligible. The first delegated General Conference was held in New York city, May 1-22, 1812. At this conference the first Episcopal address, an utterance which has become of historic importance, was delivered. This Episcopal address is now accepted as the official declaration of the church on important theological and administrative, and social problems. The General Conference held in New York city in 1844, the agitation over slave-holding became so acute as to result in plans for separation between that section of the church in the North and the section in the South. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was organized in Louisville, Ky., May 1, 1845.

Methodism began in America with the arrival of Philip Embury and Barbara Heck, Irish immigrants, who were enthusiastic in the propaganda of their faith. John Wesley, who was the founder of Methodism in England, remained in the United States until the Revolutionary War, severed relationships between England and the United States. All of the preachers, with the exception of Francis Asbury, returned to England, whereupon, September 1, 1784, John Wesley ordained Dr. Thomas Coke to be superintendent or bishop of the Methodist societies of the United States. The first General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held in 1784, from January 2, 1785, to the 14th of the same month. At that time there were only about twenty bishops and seven missionary bishops serving the Methodist Episcopal Church throughout the world. The former are elected by General Conference, the latter by the General Conference for continuous service in specific fields.

The Methodist Episcopal Church was organized at Baltimore, Md., at the so-called Christmas conference, December 24, 1784, to January 2, 1785. At that time there were only about twenty bishops and seven missionary bishops serving the Methodist Episcopal Church throughout the world. The former are elected by General Conference, the latter by the General Conference for continuous service in specific fields.

Among the important matters that will come before the General Conference at Saratoga Springs are the questions concerning organic union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which has been under discussion with both of these important branches of Methodism for some time; the question whether the church shall elect bishops for races and languages; the election of bishops to take the place of those who have died during the last four years and those who will retire from active service automatically by reason of this session being nearly the end of their third year; the election of editors for the church press, which includes the Methodist Review, the numerous weekly Christian Advocates, the Epworth Herald, the Christian Advocate, the publications of the church; the election of corresponding secretaries for such church boards as the Board of Foreign Missions, the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, the Freedmen's Aid Society, the Board of Education, the Board of Sunday Schools, etc.; the election of publishing agents (Administrative heads) of the Methodist Book Concern, etc.

In all probability you went to church last Sunday. Maybe it was just because it was Easter Sunday, and you rather felt it a DUTY. For there is, you know, a kind of feeling among some of us that above all else we should discharge our duty to the church by attending a service on Easter Sunday. The other Sundays we say do not weigh so heavily regarding this duty. But what of the great, inestimable PRIVILEGE of church going? It is hoped that you are not one of the class which goes to church on Easter Sunday only, but if you are, it is for you to learn that the great glorious message of Resurrection Morn will never be fully known and understood by you until you have exercised your privilege of gathering the blessings from right living as taught by the church every Sunday of the year. Better start to-morrow and make it your rule to attend each Sunday. See then how much more next Easter will mean to you.
