We Cannot Improve on the Hen's Ability, but We Can Do the Work More Economically

No Special Skill Is Required, Rather an Observance of Common-Sense Laws

By ROBERT ARMSTRONG Experienced Poultryman. The season has been backward in many sections of the country, and due to this prolonged cold the hens have been reluctant to sit and hatch.

WE cannot improve on Mistress Biddy's virtues as a hen, for she has been making a specialty of the art for hundreds of years; but we can almost equal her efforts, and certainly we can do it more economically than she can.

Incidentally when he leaves to assume his new duties he will take with him the saddle of his friend Major Normoye, a former quarter-master of the Fifth infantry whose death occurred a few months ago.

SINGLE-COMB BLACK ORPINGTONS

The English fanciers are very proud of the Orpington and it has attained a large measure of popularity in the United States and Canada. Many good birds have been imported and the American breeders are becoming well versed in the breed and learning rapidly how to grow and handle it to the best advantage.

NAME WILLIAMS LIEUT.-COLONEL

Commandant of Recruiting Station Leaps Upward in Uncle Sam's Army

CAPT. ROBERT C. WILLIAMS Just Promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel of Army

Word was received today by Capt. Robert C. Williams, commandant of the local recruiting station in this city, his appointment as lieutenant-colonel in the United States army had been approved by the Secretary of War.

Captain Williams leaped the gap in the line from captain to lieutenant-colonel by a curious coincidence. Upon his retiring from the active list with the rank of captain he had remained in line for promotion should he return to active duty.

Captain Williams said today that he doubtless will be ordered to any command much before July 1 although he is making preparations now to turn over his office to his successor.

biological standpoint. The military philosopher claims that the proportion destroyed is not really large enough to have a great effect, and that the damage is in part compensated by an increased birth rate after war.

They assert, however, that the greatest benefits of war are spiritual. During the war, they say the heroism and unselfishness of a people are stimulated. Persons who have devoted all their lives to gathering riches often freely give these to the cause.

Reo Engineer Tells of Testing the Carburetor

"Before you let someone substitute another for the carburetor on that old car of yours—the one the maker put on—just do a few things that the salesman of the other will insist upon doing anyway before he 'proves' what his carburetor will do," says Horace T. Thomas, chief engineer of the Reo Motor Car Company.

But before you discard the old, trusty one, do these things: Clean the cylinders—remove the carbon and run kerosene through to loosen up the rings which may have become gummed. That will restore the compression. Now grind the valves and in putting them back adjust them carefully as your instruction book tells you.

The wise carburetor salesman insists on doing these things before trying out his 'better' carburetor—if you insist on proof before buying. And of course the 'new broom' sweeps clean. So would the old one given the same chance.
