CHURCHES WILL HONOR MOTHERS

Many Pastors to Preach Appropriate Sermons; Elaborate Musical Programs

Appropriate services for the observance of Mother's Day will be held in the city churches to-morrow, and in many cases elaborate arrangements have been made for the occasion.

White carnations will be given to mothers in some of the churches, as this is the emblem of the day. Musical programs have been arranged so as to include songs that appeal to mothers, and the sermon subjects of many of the ministers have been carefully selected for the observance.

In the Stevens Memorial Methodist Church, Dr. Clayton Albert Smucker will speak in the morning at 10:30 o'clock on "The Indestructible." Mrs. Smucker will speak at 6:30 o'clock in the evening to the young people on "Mother," and at 7:30 Dr. Smucker will preach on "The Christian House-keeper."

Combined choirs and a quartet will furnish the music for the services in the Camp Hill Methodist Church, and the Rev. Dr. H. W. Hartsock will preach. Automobiles have been offered to bring mothers who are unable to walk to the church. In the evening Dr. Hartsock will preach on "Woman's Devotion to the Kingdom of God."

Father's Turn Soon The Rev. Dr. H. W. Hartsock, pastor of the Park Street United Evangelical Church, will speak to-morrow evening on "A Praying Mother." Twelve members of the Sunday school were busy during the week giving personal invitations to mothers to be present. The Rev. Mr. Hagen will speak in the morning on "Father and Mother at the Polls," and Father's Day will be the feature of the services in the Park Street Church next Sunday. The sermon subject will be "An Example of Patience."

In the Fourth Street Church of Christ to-morrow morning, the Rev. Jesse Guy Smith will preach on "Ye Are Living Epistles." At the evening service a special program has been arranged in honor of the close of the first year of the Rev. Mr. Smith's work at the Fourth Street Church. Speakers and their subjects follow:

"A Financial Prospect," E. V. Funk, superintendent of Bible school; "Our Spiritual Gains," D. C. Rice; "A Bible School Goal," R. Bailey; "What Shall We Attempt?" Edwin Rudy; "The Forward Call," the Rev. Mr. Smith.

The Rev. Dr. George Edward Hawes, pastor of Market Square Presbyterian Church, will preach special sermons to-morrow in observance of Mother's Day.

Special musical programs have been arranged for the services in the morning and evening in the St. Paul's Methodist church.

CHANGE MEETING HOURS AT ST. ANDREW'S EPISCOPAL

Beginning to-morrow, sessions of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Sunday School will be held each week at 9:45 o'clock.

The plan which goes into effect to-morrow was used at St. Andrew's several years ago with some success before the change to noon Sunday school was made.

Recently sentiment has been expressed throughout the parish for a return to the former schedule, and the church and Sunday school officials decided to adopt it during the Spring.

SONG OF MOTHER'S DAY

MY heart is singing, singing, Mother dear, This day of days, this time of All the year When motherhood may claim its Rightful place As choicest, sweetest blessing Of the race.

My soul is praying, praying, Mother dear, I may prove worthy of your Years of care; That all your sacrifices made For me Return, enriched with happiness, To thee.

The years are creeping, creeping, Mother dear, Who knows how many more shall Find us here Hand clasped in hand? So let my Tongue unfold, While time remains, my wealth of Love untold!

NEW PASTOR TO PREACH MAY 21

Redeemer Lutheran Minister Considered Strong Pulpit Man

The Rev. Dr. M. H. Shaffer, of Ramsey, N. J., recently elected pastor of the Redeemer Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, will probably preach his first sermons in the city Sunday morning and evening, May 21. The Rev. and Mrs. Shaffer are expected to arrive in the city during the latter part of next week.

The Rev. Dr. Shaffer will succeed the Rev. E. Victor Roland, former pastor of the Redeemer Church, who resigned recently to accept a charge in Butler. Dr. Shaffer has been in the active ministry for ten years. He is a graduate of the Union Seminary, of New York city, and later took a special course in Columbia University, where he received his degree.

Members of the Synod of New York consider him one of the best pulpits in that district. His wife, too, is an active church worker. Mrs. Shaffer was president of the Home and Family Mission Board of the New York Synod for many years. This district includes the southern part of New York State and northern part of New Jersey.

Dr. and Mrs. Shaffer left Ramsey several days ago for a visit among relatives in Albany, N. Y., after which they will come to this city and reside in the parsonage of the Redeemer Church, in South Nineteenth street.

Chief Roderick Discusses Situation in Regard to Dyes and Foreign Trade

Pennsylvania's efforts to utilize the byproducts of coke making in the making of dyes and other stuffs affected by the war have not been very encouraging, but there is a fine field if the manufacturers will only have the patience to perfect the processes declared James E. Roderick, State chief of mines, in a report to the Governor covering the coal industry of the State. This report, which is supplemental to his summary of production and general conditions, refers at length to the efforts to make up for the shortage of German dyes in this country and also discusses the foreign coal trade, on which he expresses some decided opinions.

In his comments Chief Roderick says: "About one-third of the coke tonnage of the United States is produced by the byproduct ovens; the other two-thirds, or perhaps 30,000,000 tons are produced by the old beehive ovens that not only produce less coke but waste considerable byproducts—benzol, gas, tar, ammonia, etc."

"The benzol products are particularly valuable at this time as they are largely used in making dyes, and as the supply of dyes from Germany has been cut off by reason of the war, these products have acquired almost fictitious values. In response to the urgent demand for them, there has come into existence a number of inefficient plants, which in spite of their inefficiency, are making a great deal of money in producing benzol; and at some of the byproduct plants the coke is being stockpiled, the byproducts only being utilized."

"The conditions that existed shortly after the war began gave rise to the belief that the United States was about to be largely self-sufficient in the manufacture of dyestuffs, owing to the tremendous field opened up for such articles. It seems like an easy thing for the wide-awake American to grasp this opportunity, and to invest a few million dollars and at first blush seemed very plausible. The results thus far, however, have not been very encouraging, and while the ability to produce dyes, including the numerous and very desirable dyes now made in Germany, would help to relieve the coal and coke situation, success in this direction cannot be expected for many years. It is practically a new field of endeavor for the American and one that requires patience, ability and long years of effort to bring satisfactory results."

At the beginning of the year lively hopes were entertained for an increase in the export trade of coal, but the year closed with less volume of export business than the preceding year. An increase in the export trade was the beginning of a certain trade with the competitive markets of the world that may develop in future to large dimensions. In some respects the progress toward this end has been very remarkable. Several of the great coal companies have established foreign sales offices and agents, and are sending ships to carry their coal. Some of them already have docks, practically all of the companies have been obtaining credit information and in other ways preparing to enter upon foreign trade."

Many of those who hope for market for Pennsylvania coals other than the home market, realize that there are two ways of disposing of their product. One is to ship the coal as raw material. The other is to use it in manufacturing articles that can be sold abroad. Of the two ways, the latter is deemed by some authorities to be the wisest, and for the reason that having united with the cost of labor the cost of coal in the production of certain articles, there will be a greater effort to sell them. More than this, the matter of transportation is a very serious one, and the ship space is extremely valuable, and the same amount of space allotted to the finished product would bring much greater returns than if allotted to the raw priced raw material. Every thought on this question leads to the conclusion that it is to the interest of Pennsylvania to export coal in the form of manufactured products rather than as a raw material. Owing to our tremendous production, however, the necessity constantly exists for disposing of the coal in the quickest possible way, and for this reason the operators are inclined to resort to coal shipments rather than wait for a profit to come from the sale of manufactured articles."

British Fleet of 53 Warships Seen in North Sea Boston, May 13.—A British fleet of 53 warships, ranging from submarines to superdreadnaughts, were observed in the North Sea by the Norwegian steamer Siljestad, according to statements of her officers on her arrival here from Copenhagen to-day.

Their anxiety to get past the fighting ships, they said, prevented any close study of the fleet, which cruised about during two days while the Siljestad was in North Sea waters. The steamer's officers said it probably was the British grand fleet on patrol.
