for the Republican nomination, and desiring to be the standard bearer, neverthelesss would not use the methods which were adopted to force his nomination in 1912. The Colonel has even put his foot down upon a plan whereby Progressive leaders hoped to bring about his nomination by the bold method of naming him in the Progressive convention and then adjourning, leaving the Republicans to choose between a ratification of the Progressive ticket and a third party movement. Moral Suasion Only In plain words, the Colonel will permit no methods other than those of "moral suasion" to bring about his nomination. He doesn't want a split Republican party. The only excuse for such a split, he told his friends will be the naming of a pacifist candidate by the Republican party and the framing of a pacifist plank. Word lately has reached the Colonel that an effort will be made to have a plank inserted to please the pacifists, the platform straddling on preparedness and the Nation's foreign policy. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Columbia University, and Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, are both at work upon drafts of the platform. So far their efforts have been independent, neither consulting the other. There is some fear in the mind of the Colonel that some of the "Old Guard" may advocate a "strict neutrality" plank which Roosevelt would consider a bid to the pacifists. Neutrality the Fighting Word This will be the fighting word This will be the fighting word and a pacifist candidate should be actually nominated, the Colonel might then change his plan to remain at Oyster Bay and take the first train to Chicage. 2 ELEPHANTS WOUNDED

That neither Hughes nor Roosevelt would be nominated was asserted by a number of Republican leaders prior to their departure for Chicago. They made it plain that this did not mean that they personally would fight against either nomination, but that the tendency among the delegates would be to find a man on whom both the Roosevelt followers and the stalwart Republicans might agree.

The political stock of Justice Hughes declined somewhat, following the statement made at Oyster Bay by Colonel Roosevelt that "any man at this time of crisis who is not aggressively, openly and specifically for these principles is against them, and every

Cupid, probably in the guise of a knowing chimpanzee has invaded the Ringling Brothers' circus menagerie and pricked the hearts of two of its biggest elephants. Yes, Queen and Romeo are in love, and as is often the case with human belnas, they don't care who knows it. No matter how many people pass through the menagerie on circus day, the pair will brazenly stand rubbing cheeks, deliberately hold trunks, or feed one another peanuts, which is said to be the elephantine method of "picking cherries." BRYAN CAN HEAD TICKET If He Will Consent, Prohibitionists Will Nominate Him

Chicago, Ill., May 24.—If he will onsent to make the race, William Jennings Bryan may be selected as the candidate for the Prohibition party. Recent statements of Bryan before the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Saratoga Springs, in which he was quoted as declaring that he had about reached the point where he could no longer follow a political party which refused to indorse national prohibition, was discussed by Prohibition party leaders here. They expressed the belief that if the Democratic national convention at St. Louis declined to adopt a national prohibition plank in its pattorm, Bryan might consent to become the candidate of the Prohibition party for President.
