$1,300,000 DAILY SALES OF FARMS IN STATE

Reading, Pa., May 24.—That farmers of Pennsylvania market an average of $1,300,000 worth of produce every day in the year was a striking assertion made by Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Patton at the opening of the three-day Spring session of the State Board of Agriculture. Pennsylvania is sixth in agriculture in the United States, he asserted. At a good roads session last evening Congressman Barnard and Chief Engineer Uhler, of the State Highway Department, were the principal speakers. L. Aldus Herr, a Lancaster tobacco grower, said snails are ruining tobacco and asparagus beds.

Sheriff Wells Builds 400 Feet of Wm. Penn Highway

Ex-Sheriff Harry C. Wells, County Commissioner and summer farmer, of Speecheville, has become a real and active volunteer advocate of the "good roads" movement in general and the William Penn Highway in particular. Sheriff Wells recently opened and graded to a width of sixty feet about four hundred feet of the proposed William Penn Highway opposite his farm at Speecheville.

"This was done at my own expense, because I think it is the proper thing to do," explained the Sheriff, "and because I think it might set an example to my neighbors."

east and northeast of Lake Garda, where Italians had made their first drive toward Trent. They were strongly posted at Roverto, less than twenty miles from Trent, but withdrew southward under the heavy Austrian pressure until their lines now are about ten miles south of Roverto. Here the Austrians occupy elevated positions on what is called Santo Hill, while the Italians face them from Passio Hill.

Dante's castle is in this neighborhood. Dante has described this region in his "Inferno" as seemed with corpses cleft by an avalanche. Some fifteen miles farther east the Austrians made another advance, the Italians retiring south of the line between Monte Maggio and Monte Ponzoso. The Italian advance had been on an artificial soil, but the Austrian offensive now has pushed the line back over the frontier.

Battle of Verdun Raging With Unexampled Violence

[By Associated Press]

Paris, May 24.—The battle around Verdun continues to rage with a violence unexampled even in this region. The Germans are striving with every resource in their power to capture Hill 304 and Dead Man Hill on the left bank of the Meuse and to win back the famous Fort Douaumont on the right bank which was wrested from them by General Nivelle's brilliantly planned and executed offensive.

Without full possession of the line from Pepper Hill to Vaux Fort the Germans cannot hope to get any nearer to the capture of Verdun. Even if they succeeded in taking this line they could not hold it unless they were also in possession of Hill 304 and Dead Man Hill, which outflank the line.

Plots of Land Come High Driven to desperation by seeing so much of its work undone the German command has hurled attack after attack against Fort Douaumont. At the same time it has kept up its onslaught on the left bank of the river to prevent the French transferring any forces to the main scene of attack. After day yesterday the tide of war ebbed and flowed, inches of ground being won and lost at an appalling cost in men. As one French officer said: "Plots of land come high here."

Again and again after reducing trenches to a crumbling heap of ruins by a deluge of shells the German infantry dashed forward only to be caught and swept away by a hurricane of certain fire from the French batteries and machine guns.

Know They Can't Crush Germany Says Von Hollweg

New York, May 24.—Karl H. von Wiegand, in a copyrighted cablegram from Berlin published in the World, says: "After 22 months of terrible war, after sacrifices of millions of men, dead, wounded or disabled for life; after forcing a heavy debt in blood and treasure upon the shoulders of the present and future generations, it is beginning to dawn upon England that the German people are not to be crushed, that the German nation cannot be destroyed."

"Having learned also the terrible cost to Europe and the world, Sir Edward Grey now declares that British statesmen never did want to crush and destroy Germany, notwithstanding the utterances of his conferees in the British Cabinet and the English press to the contrary and in the face of the inducement held out to the French people by President Poincare in his speech a few days ago that if they were prepared to make peace with England and France will dictate peace to Germany."

Thus expressed himself, Doctor von Bethmann-Hollweg, imperial chancellor of Germany, when he received me by request made for the purpose of asking the chancellor if he would make any comments upon the utterances of the British foreign secretary in a recent interview. "One thing I do know," continued the Chancellor very impressively, "only when statements of the warring nations come down to a basis of real facts; when they take the war situation as every map shows it to be; when, with honest and sincere will, they are prepared to terminate this terrible bloodshed and are ready to discuss the war and peace problems with one another in a practical manner only then will we be hearing peace."

WEATHERMAN ASKED TO ASSIST

[Continued From First Page.] roads, took up the subject of weather as a matter of prime importance. Work will start early to-morrow, if the weather men are agreeable, and many prominent men will lend their aid. Governor Brumbaugh will start his tour to encourage the road repairment at 8.30 to-morrow, going first to Hallfax.

The Governor last night issued this statement on the day: "Thursday next is Good Roads Day in Pennsylvania. Last year the results were so splendid that I urge upon all our citizens who can at all do so to join with other patriotic citizens to make this year's effort a great success. Let the people in every community do something, and do it in a spirit of permanent value. If once we fully realized the blessings and benefits of good roads we would all gladly join in making this day memorable in our Commonwealth. We cannot now be satisfied until we have good roads from our farms to our great cities. A good highway is a necessity. Help to make possible the best in our community. If we all work together we can do much. A day given thus to Pennsylvania is well worth while."

As you plan your summer vacation I ask you to keep in mind the grandeur and scenic beauty of Pennsylvania. There is no State richer in historic shrines, in beautiful rivers, in fertile valleys, in great mountains, and in the varied and rich scenery dear to the heart of the lover of God's great out-of-doors. Over our many miles of good roads the tourist can see here one of nature's grandly beautiful panoramas. See Pennsylvania first and you will not care to go beyond her borders for entrancing interest and glorious visions. In our cities and villages good accommodations may be had. By all means plan to see the historic Capital City and our great Capitol building. Let us unite to make Pennsylvania known and loved by her own people and by thousands from our sister States."

Volunteer Host to Work on William Penn Highway

In fourteen counties of Pennsylvania, from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, volunteer road crews are expected to enlist to-morrow—Good Roads Day—for work on the William Penn highway. Throughout the length of Pennsylvania's newest trans-State thoroughfare motorists and other good roads enthusiasts will devote their efforts to smoothing, leveling and otherwise preparing the road surface for a tremendous volume of motor traffic which is expected to flow from the two terminals as the summer season progresses. When the workers have finished, they hope to be able to say the William Penn highway offers the best surface as well as the best grades of any trans-State road in Pennsylvania.

An advertising campaign to draw motorists over the William Penn highway is contemplated. Details were to have been worked out at a dinner of highway governors set for early May, and postponed because of the death of
