Politics in Pennsylvania

By the Ex-Committeeman

The thing which is interesting men who follow politics in this State is men have not said a word about their plans and have taken steps to open headquarters at Chicago and to make nothing of other items.

But perhaps Mr. Redfield would have us believe that all Europe is going joyriding with American automobiles and horses.

the effect of the Philadelphia meetings. The Governor and his close advisers have not said a word since the election of Penrose as national committeeman or since the caucus on chairman was held, but it is suspected that they will be heard from about Monday or Tuesday in Chicago. The delegation is to meet Tuesday and it will then develop how the Vare contingent will act.

A Trial of Faith
[From Harper's Magazine.]
A pastor in Western Pennsylvania, who until recently was a believer in the literal answer to prayer, is now,
with some trepidation, taking stock of his faith. Not long ago a visiting fellow-clergyman prayed fervently in his pulpit to this effect.
"May the brother who ministers to this flock be filled full of fresh veal and new zigor." "May the bold that of Iresh volume this flock be filled full of Iresh veal and new zigor."

The startled pastor says that he doesn't object to fresh veal in moderation, but does object to having one of these new breakfast foods forced upon

Ebening Chat

May was an unusual month for visitors to Harrisburg, the various State conventions, political matters and other things bringing them here and if there was one subject of conversation upon which they all united it was Harrisburg's River Front. The method of treatment of the riverside has attracted much attention but now when the Susquehanna valley is at its loveliest it is a delight to the eye. Other favorable comments were upon the walks along the bank, which people take for long distances without realising how far they are going, and the splendid opportunities for enjoyment of the water. The Susquehanna now has more motorboats, canoes and other watercraft than ever before and they prospects of water sports are causing many born within sight of the river, but knowing little of its charms, to plan for ways to get the bottom of a boat under their feet. One man who is well versed in affairs in Philadelphia said that it was only a question of time until Harrisburg would be rejoicing over annual water carnivals which would draw people from all over the State's central section. May was an unusual month for visi-

over the State's central section.

Completion of the dam across the Susquehanna at Dock street has been a boon to dealers in cances, motor boats and other acquatic sport supplies. Within the past week a downtown sporting goods dealer has received a whole car load of cances. Practically all of them have been sold. One of the boat livery proprietors who also does considerable business in selling new boats, has sold several new motor boats and almost his entire stock of cances. He declares that there are easily a hundred more cances on the river here this season than last.

Another sport that has been given a boost by the new dam is boat sailing. Every time the wind blows from the south or southeast, you can see at least a half score enthusiasts on the river with a big sail set up in the front of their frail craft. From side to side of the river they steer their boats, skimming over the smooth surface at the rate of as high as eight to ten miles an hour—which is pretty fast traveling in a cance. One of the favorite retreats of the sailing enthusiasts is the mouth of the Conodoguinet and from there up around the many islands opposite Riverside. Sometimes these intrepid sportsmen come to grief when they let out too much sail or attempt to "tack" too hard. Then there is a sudden dip of canvas, a big splash and a long pull for a safe spot. But as a rule most of those who sail can swim and seldom do any of them come to distress.
