LIGHTNING KILLS UNHATCHED PEEPS

Strikes Team of Horses and Tears Harness and Plow to Pieces

Waynesboro, Pa., June 2. — During the recent thunder and electrical storm that passed over Duffield and vicinity, lightning played some funny pranks. As a man in the employ of Paul Wildeson was running from the field with his corn plow team, a bolt of lightning descended, cutting the hame-strings on one horse in four pieces, knocked off both single trees, unhooked the trees and unloosened almost every bolt in the plow. The man was thrown against the fence, but was only slightly stunned. The horses ran off, dragging the plow after them, but suffered no material injury. As Mrs. W. F. Trayer, of Montgomery township, near Mercersburg, was feeding her chickens at her home shortly after noon on the same day, a bolt of lightning struck a large locust tree about twenty yards away from the chicken yard. The lightning shattered the tree and scattered bark and blossoms around for a distance of 35 yards. Mrs. Trayer was unhurt, but five fat Black Minorca hens were killed and, with the exception of four peeps that already emerged from the shell, an entire brood of unhatched chicks were killed by the stroke.

WOMEN NAME NEW MISSION OFFICERS

Closing Sessions of Convention of East Pennsylvania Eldership at Penbrook Church

Penbrook, Pa., June 3. — Election of three district vice-presidents and reports of various committees closed the business sessions of the semi-annual convention of the Women's Missionary Societies of the East Pennsylvania Eldership of the Church of God here last evening. Wormleysburg was selected as the place for the State convention next September and next year's meeting of the societies will be held at Altoona.

At the morning session three new district vice-presidents were appointed to take the place of retiring officers. They are: Mrs. R. Smallwood, Roaring Springs; Mrs. O. M. Kraybill, Middletown, and Mrs. Esther Miller, of Mechanicsburg.

The morning session opened with devotional exercises by Mrs. I. N. Denny, of Valley View, and following this a paper was read by Mrs. A. P. Stoner, Carlisle. Miss Lydia A. Forney, of Harrisburg, read a paper from the different missionaries in India and conducted the question box. The session closed with the benediction by the Rev. F. I. M. Thomas, of the Maclay Street Church of God, Harrisburg.

The final session last night opened with a song service by the Penbrook choir and devotional services by Mrs. H. F. Hoover, Elizabethtown, followed by the junior boys' drill, after which Miss Esther Bobb, Penbrook, spoke, and the service closed with an address by the Rev. Dr. S. G. Yahn, of Harrisburg.
