MISS NELLE SPAHR WEDS MÄURICE FERNSLER

Pamphlets will be given out with advice as to the care of the youngsters such as "Do not put anything in baby's mouth. No pacifier or anything to make it sore. Wash mouth out often with boric acid water or weak soda water. It is easier to prevent sore mouth than cure it. Keep flies away from baby. Do not allow them to settle on the bottle, nipple or baby's mouth, for they carry all kinds of diseases. Screen porches and the baby coach, for mosquitoes bite baby and, far worse, carry diseases in their bites. Their only breeding place is stagnant water, so do not have water standing about in cans or throw it around the house, or there will come thousands of these pests."

Miss Nelle Spahr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Spahr, 114 Cumberland Street, and Maurice Fenrsler, of this city, were quietly married thursday evening. June 1, in the Messiah Lutheran Church, by the pastor, the Rev. Henry W. A. Hanson. The bride wore a dainty little frock of pale chiffon and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. An informal reception followed the service, in the new home of the young people at 1116 North Third street, where congratulations and good wishes were extended and the pretty wedding gifts viewed. The bride is a graduate of the Central High School, 1914, and has been in the employ of the Clark Drug Co. for some time. Mr. F ernsler is a rising young businessman of the city, connected with the new store of William Strouse.

Mr. Dull then told his story much as if his hearers and himself were already on the road and he was pointing out the places along the route.

The attorney began at the "Juniat Narrows." The remnants of the old Pennsylvania canal walls which follow that roadway for quite a distance were touched upon: Logan's Springs, between Lewistown and Reedsville, wearext. Mr. Dull told an interesting story of how an ancestor of the founder of Reedsville discovered the next.
