WILL AUTHORIZE PROGRAM READY FOR CONVENTION

SALE OF BONDS

Council Has Schedule of Important Measures Before It For This Evening

A heavy schedule awaits Steelton's borough council at its June meeting this evening.

One of the most important measures will be an ordinance authorizing the president of council, borough secretary and treasurer to float the $75,000 bond issue authorized by the voters May 16.

Final action on the ordinance granting the Pennsylvania Railroad the right to construct a new line of crossings at Franklin, Conestoga and Treweek streets with its proposed freight spur is pending. It is understood, however, that unless the railroad makes some concessions for the valuable privileges granted by the measure, it will not be passed by council.

An ordinance regulating traffic in the borough streets and the license code measure are also on third and final readings. It is not known what action will be taken on either measure but it is likely that there will be some debate on the traffic ordinance.

It is also likely that President J. V. W. Reynolds will announce his appointments on the new Park and Playgrounds Commission for council's approval.

The victim in this case was a miner and died of pleurisy shortly after having injured his chest in a fall.

The board also over-ruled objections made to the payment of compensation to the dependents of William Equi who was killed during the construction of a building in Philadelphia. It was held that Equi having no material hand had come to the building afterward, when the accident occurred, but the board held that he had returned in the course of his duties and that his family is entitled to benefits.
