"His Day And Mine"

Almost choked with a feeling of sublime admiration and reverence, we watch the Grand Army on its march to Peace.

You and I are not soldier enough to shout, as it marches by.

He is a soldier—to the last man along that line of blue.

His day of battle is done. But all these fifty-one years he has filled a need of our country, in creating national pride and a higher degree of patriotism.

Not battle and victory alone have glorified his life.

Wouldn't it be a final glorious, decisive triumph for the Grand Army, if each tottering blue coat could look upon the masses of humanity lining his course of march to-morrow and feel that his place might in some measure be filled, in time of need?

Dare you and I believe that the spirit of the G. A. R. holds us in captivity for all time.

"It is my day!"

CHAPTER II.

This announcement about the second day of our 45th Anniversary Sale carries a message of saving out to all the people of Harrisburg and of the country neighborhood.

The primary purpose of our Anniversary Celebration is to express our appreciation for the success that has marked the close of each year, for 45 years.

And through what better way could we find expression for that coveted stamp of public approval than to offer merchandise at lowest ebb prices in mammoth quantities.

Read the items below, and you'll realize more fully the meaning of a Bowman Anniversary Sale.

A new list for tomorrow, and in merit they are head and shoulders above the usual offering.
