Misery in Back, Headache and Pain in Limbs.

Dear Mr. Editor.—For more than a year I suffered with misery in the back, dull headache, pain in the limbs, was somewhat constipated and slept poorly at night until I was about ready to collapse. Seeing an account of the wonderful qualities of "Anurie," prepared by Doctor Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., I sent for a box, and before using the whole box I felt and still feel improved. My sleep is refreshing, misery reduced, and life is not the drag it was before. I most cheerfully recommend this remedy to sufferers from like ailments. Yours truly, W. A. ROBERTS.

NOTE: You've all undoubtedly heard of the famous Dr. Pierce and his well-known medicines. Well, this prescription is one that has been successfully used for many years by the physicians and specialists of Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for kidney complaints, and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine, and urinary troubles.

Up to this time, "Anurie" has not been on sale to the public, but by the persuasion of many patients and the increasing demand for this wonderful healing Tablet, Dr. Pierce has finally decided to put it into the drug stores of this country within immediate reach of all sufferers.

I know of one or two leading druggists in town who have managed to procure a supply of "Anurie" for their anxious customers in and around this locality. If not obtainable send one dime by mail to Dr. Pierce for trial package or 50 cents for full treatment. Editor.—Please insert this letter in some conspicuous place in your paper.

KITCHENER AND STAFF GO DOWN WITH CRUISER

sincere and a member of various engineering societies. He was born in 1856. Hugh James O'Beirne, in addition to other posts held during a long career in the diplomatic services was second secretary to the British embassy in Washington from 1895 to 1900. He was a native of Ireland, born in 1856.

Brigadier General Arthur Ellershaw, who was born in 1869 and entered the army in 1888, won honors for fighting on the Indian frontier in 1897-98. He was severely wounded in the Boer war. In the present war he gained the distinguished service order.

Lieut. Col. Oswald Arthur Fitzcerald, who had been personal military secretary to Lord Kitchener since 1900, died in the attack on the Marston with the late field marshal for many years.

Carried 655 Men

The Hampshire was one of the Devonshire class of six cruisers. She was built in 1903 and normally carried 655 men. She measured 630 feet in length, 45 feet beam. She cost $4,500,000. The Hampshire has been in use as a scout boat and for carrying officials on various missions, having ample accommodations for the latter purpose. She was too old to take a place on the fighting line. When the war started she was in the Far East and was reported to have been worsted in a fight with German ships in the South China sea. She was one of the British squadron which was sent to this country for the Jamestown Exposition in 1907.

England's Greatest Soldier

Earl Kitchener, appointed secretary of State for War on August 8, 1914, a few days after Great Britain's declaration of war on Germany. He was regarded as England's greatest soldier and later took over the government to entrust him with supreme direction of the war was received with unanimous approval.

As the war progressed and Great Britain's defeat in certain directions, particularly in regard to the shortage of artillery ammunition became apparent, Earl Kitchener was subjected to severe criticism by the "Northern Echo" newspaper. He was charged with responsibility for failure to foresee the extraordinary demand for heavy shells, and as a result the military authorities were forced to buy shells from the United States.

Earl Kitchener's responsibilities were further lessened by the appointment of General Sir William Robertson as chief of the imperial staff in December of last year. It was reported at that time that friction had arisen between Earl Kitchener and Field Marshal French, then in command of the British forces in France. Shortly after the appointment of General Robertson, Field Marshal French relinquished his command.

Created Untrained Army

Notwithstanding the criticism directed against Earl Kitchener his great accomplishments during the war are recognized universally. Foremost of his achievements is the creation from England's untrained manhood of a huge army. At the beginning of the war Britain had only a few hundred thousand trained men. To-day more than 5,000,000 are enrolled for the various branches of the services.

There have been no recent reports of Earl Kitchener's activities. He was last mentioned in the cable dispatches of Friday when he went to Westminster Palace to be questioned by members of the House of Commons who were not satisfied with the conduct of the war. No intimation was given that he intended to leave England.

The Orkney Islands, off which the Hampshire went down, are off the north coast of Scotland. The Hampshire was on her way into the Atlantic and around the northern end of the Scandinavian peninsula into the White sea. Earl Kitchener probably intended to embark at Archangel.

Full Charge of War Office

By mere luck Kitchener happened to be in England on one of his frequent visits, he had paid to London during his long career abroad, when the European war broke out. He was just coming from a mission to the British agent in Egypt, had accepted an Earl from King George and was on his way to the Mediterranean. Within a few hours after England's declaration of war, Kitchener was appointed secretary of State for War, and immediately took full charge of the War Office where he worked day and night to overcome the handicap which was placed on the British in the matter of fighting strength.

Without his crowning achievements as chief of great campaigns in the campaign in the European war, Kitchener had already won wide and lasting fame by his campaigns in Egypt, South Africa and in India.

Surveyed Palestine

In 1871 when a British expedition was sent out to survey Western Palestine, Kitchener was one of the eager volunteers accepted for this service. For months he scoured over the hills and valleys of this peaceable Bible land with his theodolite and surveying tapes and in this way he learned the ground to be a tall, gaunt subaltern with a hard face well burned. His contribution to the topographical knowledge of the Holy Land, completed, young Kitchener was sent to Cyprus which Great Britain had just acquired, to organize a system of courts, work in which he displayed administrative ability and tact.

It was while there, in 1882, that he took his first step on the path that was to lead him eventually to Khartum. Trouble was already brewing in the Sudan. Hearing that the Egyptian army was being organized by Sir Evelyn Wood, young Kitchener saw his opportunity and was appointed to the post of no time in offering his services.

In 1885 he became Governor of the Red Sea territories and set in motion a series of raids on the notorious Osman Digna, the dervish leader. In one of these expeditions Kitchener was flanked and put to flight, during which he received a bullet which broke his jaw.

Honored For Egyptian Expedition

By this time much was heard in England of Kitchener's work in Egypt and when he returned there or shortly thereafter he was received with honor and nominated aide-de-camp of Queen Victoria. With this honor he went back to Egypt where, on the resignation of Sir Francis Grenfell, he was appointed to the post of commander of the Egyptian army. His real great career dates from that time.

The fight at Khartum, that ended with the recapture of Khartum was considered by military experts as perhaps the greatest battle ever conducted. The Egyptian army that Kitchener had worked up to such remarkable efficiency was, when he first took charge of it, a band of untrained recruits and undisciplined felloes. It was said to be an army "without stomach, hard to backbone, but Kitchener worked over these helpless reeds of broken natives and made of them some of the finest fighting soldiers of the world.

Omdurman His Greatest Feat

The fight at Omdurman, September 2, 1898, just across the Nile from Khartum, was the greatest battle of Kitchener's time in Egypt. Osman Digna, a Mahdist, had 50,000 Mahdists, while he had but 20,000 men. When the battle was over, 11,000 of the Mahdists had been killed outright, 16,000 wounded, and 4,000 taken prisoners, while the English Egyptian loss altogether was under 500 men.

whom might be educated in the knowledge of the West, a request that met with such response among the British people that the fund required was far over subscribed.

For his triumphs in the Sudan he was raised to the peerage as Baron Kitchener of Khartum, and received the thanks of Parliament and a grant of $150,000. Shortly afterward he was appointed lieutenant-general and then chief of staff to Lord Roberts in the South African war, and on Lord Roberts' return to England in November, 1900, succeeded him as commander-in-chief of that field. By constructing 200,000 miles of telegraph lines he stopped the Boer raids and virtually ended the war in South Africa. This added to his popularity and raised him at home, and he was rewarded by the title of Viscount, promotion to the rank of general for distinguished services, the thanks of the Parliament and a grant of $250,000.

Immediately after the peace General Kitchener went to India as Commander-in-Chief of the British forces there, and in this position which he held for seven years, he carried out not only many far-reaching administrative reforms, but a complete reorganization and strategic redistribution of the British and native forces. On leaving India in 1909 he was appointed to the post of Commander-in-Chief and high commissioner in the Mediterranean and later took command of the inspection of the forces of the entire Empire, drawing up a scheme of defense of the world.

British Agent to Egypt

He then returned to Egypt, the scene of his first triumph, in the capacity of British agent and Consul General in Cairo, virtually a governor of the country, and in the economic development of the country, building new roads and irrigation projects on a large scale.

"Wife, See Me Worry," Is Businessman's Attitude

Franklin C. Wells, M. D., Chief Medical Referee of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York city, addressed 125 members and guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a noon luncheon today on the subject of "Conservation of Health."

Dr. Harvey F. Smith introduced the speaker, commenting on the large number of doctors who were present. The speaker believes that there would probably be the first that the members of the Chamber of Commerce have had the privilege of hearing on the subject of hygiene and sanitation.

The speaker's remarks were of a general nature, but very much to the point, and emphasized in no uncertain terms the awakening that must come in the matter of the health of our business men. He referred to the stomach as the laboratory of the body, and the laboratory for more delicate and important work than any machine constructed by human hands. He referred to the brain and other portions of the body and developed the theory that a man lives up to-day, that "public health is public wealth," and that the future of our nation, the burning question of the day, is the health and moral welfare of our own people.

The speaker believes that there will be laws enacted that will force men to take care of their health, that compulsory health is surely going to become an established fact. "Man does not die suddenly," said Dr. Wells. "Man dies over a period of years. Man is proud to worry, 'Wife, see me worry,' he says proudly, not realizing that he is indulging in the waste of his precious energy and is actually killing himself when he believes he is doing a great good." The speaker was enthusiastically received.

Potato Bugs MILLIONS OF THEM Are Destroying Your Crops The leaves are the lungs of the plant, while they are kept perfect and in healthy condition they continue to feed the tubers, keep the plant growing a longer period and thus produce larger potatoes, more of them and this means a larger crop.
