in Two Releases

Charlie Chaplin invaded Harrisburg last evening and came as near to monopolizing the motion picture field as it is possible for a screen artist to do. The beauty of being able to appear two or three places at one time was shown by Chaplin's performance of his more or less amusing antics before three separate and distinct audiences in one evening, at the three Market street motion picture houses, the Victoria, Colonial and Regent.

At the Regent the $670,000 laugh-producer kept things humming with his rapid-fire actions on an escalator, being pursued up the moving stairway by an irate pursuer without either of them getting anywhere. "The Floorwalker" was the title of this particular "release" and you who are intimately familiar with the feet

While he was floorwalking at the Regent, Chaplin was being featured in "Police" at the Colonial and Victoria. "Police" at the Colonial and Regent of Police and his inevitable fall from grace and return to his old trade of robbing. As usual in all his pictures, there is present the somewhat crude indelicacy which some object to, and others not, but on the whole "Police" is well worth seeing, whether you have "Chaplinitis" or not.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

There is but one thing more dead than a dead love, and that is theatrical New York when the summer season begins. Like falling leaves, the theaters are darkening their lights and except such as have fallen for the picture craze, the showhouse district looks like a deserted village.

Within the week we shall have the Follies with us again, and if further evidence were needed that the summer season is in swing, this would be sufficient. Last week the Hippodrome, the New York institution, closed its season, as did "Sybil," the musical play with Donaid Brian and Julia Sanderson of the season, the Shakespearean enerprises of the season, the Shakespearean enerprises of the season, the Season of Sir Herbert Tree at the New Amsterdam, and the Shakespearean masque at the Stadium.

The Washington Square Players, who am, and the Shakespearean masque at the Stadium.

The Washington Square Players, who have occupied the Bandbox Theater this season, and done notably good work there, brought their season to a close uptown and have removed to the Comedy, one of the Broadway houses, which they will occupy for the balance of the present, and all of the next season. They will abandon "The Seaguil," however, and revive some of their former successes. Their success has been one of the hopeful signs of the season. "Justice," which continues it the Candler, is another sure sign. It has successfully competed with the more popular form of amusement offered, and promises to remain on the boards for several weeks to come.

The Paxtang Park Theater's main offering this week is Wilson Franklin in his funny sketch, "My Vaudeville at Paxtang Wife Won't Let Me." To miss this act is to overlaughing hits of the park's vaudeville season. Other acts on this week's bill are: Jolly and Wild, Al. Harrington and his trained dogs. Stewart and Keeley and Helene and Emilon, in a startling acrobatic act.

The park management announces as the feature attraction for next week the Gallerini Four, an instrumental musical act. This act is said to be a real big time headliner, and will probably be a big hit at the park playhouse. The first free fireworks display of LOCAL THEATERS
