Quaker Tires Have Representative Here

"It seems something other than coincidence that the demand for Quaker tires is greatest in sections of the country where road conditions are most severe," said J. T. Moore, sales manager of the Quaker City Rubber Company, "yet, this is the case, and where we shipped Quakers in lots of a dozen or so, earlier in the season, we are now filling orders for carloads in the same sections.

"Quaker tires and the Quaker multitube are in high favor on the Pacific coast and throughout the Rocky Mountain district. Reports from deal. ers show that our secret and exclusive process of tempering gives Quakers the required sturdiness to deed out, and the method of publicly conveying prisoners to and from jail across the alley, was disapproved of. A tunnel or bridge was recommended.

The Moral Effect

President Judge Kunkel agreed with the objection of the grand jury relative to the location of the court rooms; if the court rooms were on the upper floors, the business of the court would not be interfered with by noises of the streets, etc., he said. As to the method of moving prisoners to and from the jail, Judge Kunkel said he does not entirely agree with the recommendation. The sight of prisoners being taken to and from jail, he said, might have a beneficial effect on the morals of both prisoner and spectator. The grand jury found prison and almshouse in the usual good condition. Just 122 indictments were passed upon, intety-nine of which were returned as true and 23 were ignored.

The New Courthouse

On the subject of a new courthouse the grand jury reported as follows:

"We find that the courthouse is a disgrace to the county. Apparently it is preferred to spend the money and the care upon the almshouse and the prison rather than upon the seat of justice. We feel that the county almshouse and prison in construction, in sanitary condition and in management will compare very favorably with similar institutions of other counties of this State, but the courthouse falls far below the standard of other counties of this State, but the courthouse falls far below the standard of other counties of this State, but the courties of equal wealth and population. We find the building to be so shabby and antiquated that it cannot be kept in a clean and sanitary condition. The court rooms ought not to be on the street; the public records are in constant danger of being destroyed by fire, and it is not even comfortably furnished for the accommodation of the public who are compelled to attend the sessions of court. We therefore recommend that the proper authorities take some early measure for the purpose of erecting a good, modern bu the more serious felonies, if he married a girl under sixteen years of age?"

And the consensus of opinion was that the law could be invoked because the act of assembly in question made no proviso relative to marriage and that even though the bride-elect and her parents agreed to her marriage the law fixed sixteen as the statutory age "with or without consent." One of the spectators, however, who professed to no technical knowledge of the law, summed up the layman's viewpoint, thus:

"Maybe a fellow who was regularly and legally married to the woman under those circumstances might be guilty of crime because the bride was not over sixteen—but you'd have a deuce of a time convincing a jury of twelve men of it."
