

HARVARD WINS IN FRESHMEN RACE

Change Made in Course For Second Event; Varsity Contest This Evening

By Associated Press. New London, Conn., June 23.—The Harvard freshmen eight won a thrilling victory over Yale in their two-mile race over the Thames course today. Overtaking the Yale men in the last half mile, the Crimson oarsmen flashed into the front and slid over the finish line three-quarters of a length ahead of their rivals. Yale led until near the finish when her crew seemed to tire and go to pieces. The race was rowed in rough water. The official time: Harvard, 10:35 3-5; Yale 10:38. Because of rough water the referee has decided to change the course of the second contest. The race was rowed two miles down stream from Bartlett's Cove to the navy yard. Yale caught the water first at the start of the second varsity eight race. Harvard defeated Yale by two lengths in the second varsity eight race of two miles.

Johnny Evers Hit Timely; Wins For Boston Team

Special to the Telegraph. New York, June 23.—Boston made it three out of four from New York yesterday by giving the Giants their eighth extra-inning defeat on the local field this season, winning in the eleventh inning, 3 to 1. Evers decided a pitcher's battle between Schauer and Nehf in the latter's favor. Nehf opened the eleventh inning with a single, took second on Maranville's sacrifice, and scored on Evers' single. Collins' pass and Compton's single then filled the bases and Evers stole home on a triple steal. There was much wrangling with the umpires, Gowdy and Snodgrass, of Boston, being ordered out of the game by Umpire Byron in the seventh inning, while Manager McGraw, of New York, was ordered off the coaching line by Umpire Quigley in the sixth inning.

Want to Go Skating in July? It Can Be Done

Glassy surfaces of salt and chemical substances have been devised by scientists to take the place of ice, and thus make skating a summer sport.

Some years ago, according to the June Popular Science Monthly, a German patented a process, in which thick pasteboard plates are immersed in very hot linseed oil and varnish, mixed with glue. After becoming thoroughly permeated with this mixture, they are subjected to a powerful pressure, which squeezes out the excess of oil and gives them great strength. When dry, the plates are immersed in hot paraffin and again put under pressure. To one side of each plate a layer of parchment is applied; the other side is coated with gypsum and tar. The plates, with the parchment sides up, are then fitted together on the floor and united by cement. The finished surface of the rink is coated with a material consisting of one part of glycerine, two parts of wax, and three parts of oil. An unusually smooth floor is thus formed; but ordinary skates cannot be used, since their sharp edges would soon cut up the surface beyond repair.

Another compound contains soluble glass, fluor-calcium, asbestos, ground glass or flint, paraffin, and soapstone. These substances, when thoroughly mixed, are applied to the floor. A thin coating of soluble glass and a layer of paraffin are then added. Absolute smoothness is obtained by passing a heated roller over the surface. If the surface becomes scratched, more heat is applied, or fresh coats of glass and paraffin are added. The idea of using crystalline salts, such as the carbonates and sulphates of sodium, potassium and other substances, having like properties, has also been suggested. The salts are boiled and then poured directly on a water-tight floor, having raised edges. The floor should be laid in sections, by means of a frame for holding the melted salts. After they solidify, the frame can be used for an adjacent section.

This same method has been improved so that a good permanent sliding-surface is obtained. When the rink becomes badly scratched, due to excessive use, heat is applied by means of a rectangular frame, which is filled with a wire lattice-work. The frame is placed on the floor and a rubber bag, filled with steam, is laid on the lattice-work. The action of the heat melts the salts, so that a flat, smooth surface is formed.

Although the nearest approach to perfection is a combination of substances now being used in Germany with success several English inventors have accomplished excellent results with chemicals of their own creation.

WHITE SLAVERY AND WAR. Just before this war we were working ourselves up about "White Slavery," says Earle Harrison in the July Woman's Home Companion. "The loss of only one pure girl was given pages of space in the newspapers. But imagine your country attacked from outside; put half a dozen drunken soldiers in your house, and the loss of your own daughter will be such a small incident that nobody will notice it—except you."

SPECIAL MALTA SERVICE. Special memorial services will be observed by the five commanderies of the Dames and Knights of Malta of Harrisburg and Steelton on Sunday evening at the Fourth Street Church of God. The Rev. Dr. William N. Yates will deliver the sermon.

M. E. FIELD DAY. Field day will be observed on Sunday by the members of the Epworth Methodist Church, Twenty-first and Derry streets. District Superintendent A. S. Faslck will preach at the evening services. Plans will be made for raising funds for a new church building during the exercises.

FIRE DAMAGES POOLROOM. Fire starting in the rear of a building at Third and Sayford streets early this morning damaged the poolroom of J. W. Savercool to the extent of $800. The fire was discovered by Patrolman Lowry, who turned in the alarm from Third and Verbeke streets. Two pool tables were carried out of the building to the street by a number of men.

ENLIST IN NAVY. Three new applicants for service in the United States Navy have been accepted by the local recruiting officers and sent to Norfolk for six months' training. The recruits are George Bridges, 1 Grace street; T. S. Wikel, 348 Front street; Steelton; and R. A. Gouchnaur, Middletown. Ten citizens of Harrisburg have enlisted for the summer cruise of the naval reserve.
