

A PENNSYLVANIA WOMAN TESTIFIES

Back Hurt-Nervous-Sleepless. Cherry Tree, Pa.—"Eight years ago when my little girl was born I came near dying. When I got able to get about, my back hurt so when I would bend over that I would have to take hold of something with my hands to get up. My husband got me two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I took and got along nicely. I could sit up, and my back did not hurt me. Was so nervous I could not sleep nights; my heart troubled me and my back had sharp, stinging pains when I would lean my head forward. I wrote to Dr. Pierce and was advised to take 'Favorite Prescription.' I used several bottles and now I do all my own work and tend to my garden and flowers. May God bless you is my prayer." Mrs. ELLIS W. STIFFELER, Route 2, Box 25.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily cures all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions, corrects displacements, overcomes irregularities, removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from Nature's roots with glycerine. Get it now! In tablet or liquid form.

SHOWING TO-DAY A FOOL'S PARADISE

This is the sequel to "A Fool There Was"

The Social Pirates Story No. 10 Unmasking a Rascal

Plot by George Bronson Howard. Novelization by Hugh C. Weir. Copyright Kalem Company.

"Love you?" cried Fuller. "If you only knew how much I do care! If you only knew..."

Through the flat pealed suddenly the electric bell. Fuller started back with a scowl, and Mary's hands flashed instinctively to her hair.

Mona Receives the Money from Fuller.

"You can be the first to congratulate me!" broke in Mary proudly, her back to his wife.

"Mr. Winters has just asked me to be his wife!" she exclaimed, and stood surveying the shrinking figure of the banker, who recoiled before her flashing eyes.

"So you have tried to deceive the girl, have you, Mr. Winters?" she sneered. "I rather guess I was just in time, Mary! Do you know who this man is?"

"What do you mean?" "I mean that his name is not Winters, but Fuller—and he already has one wife!"

"Oh, you can't be telling me the truth!" he cried, and he had only time to utter "You can't be!"

And then, turning suddenly toward Fuller, he said: "Say this isn't so, because it is all a lie—a wicked lie! Why don't you say something?"

Fuller started up uneasily, and then, seeing that Mona had turned, he tried to slip between her and the wall, and thus gain the door.

"She picked up the receiver of the telephone, and called a number into the transmitter. It was the signal to Ralph Stokes, and a few minutes later that energetic young man stepped into the room and stood surveying the group uncertainly.

"Mr. Ambrose of the Evening Star," said Mona, introducing the caller to Mary. "We have a rather interesting bit of news for you, my friend!"

"This farce has gone far enough!" he grated. "You are trying to blackmail me, all of you! You must think I am a fool to let you get away with it!"

"Well—you are a cool one!" she said. "So were you when you robbed poor Minnie Meadows of her dead father's money!"

Fuller's face went ashen. Without another word, he stepped to the telephone and gave the necessary instructions to his bank.

"Now it is up to us to find Minnie Meadows and give back to her part of what was stolen!" I couldn't touch a dollar of this money, myself!"

"Nor I!" agreed Mary with a little shiver. "Well, if that is the case, suppose you both come out and have dinner with me," invited Stokes.

"I know a little Italian restaurant where we can eat the whole bill of fare for 60 cents!"

Over at the Majestic for the first half of the week there is a bill that is made up of quite a bit of variety.
