KINGS AND QUEENS In all there are ten dramas in Shakespeare's folio that deal in an actor's way, with the kings and queens of England. Be sure to forget them as being in any true sense English history. Whatever of the Chronicle would fit; whatever old drama could be bought, or mended, or copied by shorthand writers, these, Shakespeare, thinking of Kyd, Marlowe, Greene and Lyly, put into order for his theater. "Henry VIII" is from Hollinshed's Chronicles. It is almost astonishing to us to hear Hollinshed quoting Edmund Campian as saying of Cardinal Wolsey: "He was a ripe schoolman. Exceedingly wise, fair-spoken. Lofty to his enemies were they never so big; to those who accepted and sought his friendships, wonderful courteous. Insatiable to get and more princelike in bestowing." These are almost Shakespeare's words, the meter probably alone causing the changes that beautified the final text. Fox's "Book of Martyrs" also supplies a part of Shakespeare's "Henry VIII." — "William Shakespeare," John McGovern, in National Magazine.

Convertible Hat A sort of convertible headgear that is adaptable to any season of the year, be it summer or winter, and has ear covers made to be folded inside the head covering when the weather's fine, is an invention of William Taylor of London, England. So the users can hear everything that's going on, the ear flaps are furnished with an opening, which coincides with the ear of the wearer. The opening is well guarded against the cold blasts of wintry weather as the illustration shows. — "Wonders of To-day," in National Magazine for June.

CAPT. MOREY AT COLUMBUS Columbus, N. M., June 29. Captain Lewis S. Morey of the Tenth Cavalry, wounded in the left arm in the clash June 21 at Carrizal, arrived here yesterday enroute to the army hospital at El Paso, Texas. He will leave to-morrow.
