Former Mrs. Widener to Explore Amazon

Philadelphia, June 30.—Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, formerly Mrs. George D. Widener, of this city, widow of the traction magnate, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster, is planning to accompany Dr. Rice on an expedition to the Amazon next fall, according to a dispatch from Montreal, where they are spending the summer.

"DEAD" SOLDIER REVIVED

London, June 30.—A wonderful case of restoring the dead to life has just come to light in the case of Lance Corporal Mayes, of the Queen's Westminster, who had part of his right arm blown off by a shell in the fighting at Ypres.

The injury was so bad that after the first-aid dressings the limb had to be amputated. He came to England and was in a hospital in the Midlands for some time. A short time ago he recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital and came to London apparently quite well. But for some reason infection again appeared in the amputated arm and a further operation was deemed necessary to stop the danger of poisoning.

Lance Corporal Mayes was put under an anaesthetic, but the heart collapsed and ceased to beat. The case seemed to be hopeless and the waiting relatives in a few minutes would have been informed of his death. But Dr. Lionel E. C. Norbury, the distinguished surgeon who handled the case, was not beaten. He made an incision in the side of the patient and, inserting his hand and lifting the diaphragm, reached the heart and gently massaged the organ with his fingers. The heart responded to the action and began to beat again. The patient had been restored to life when all other means would have failed.

Lance Corporal Mayes is now on the highroad to complete recovery.

WIFE MUST HOLD MAN WITH LOVE

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Points Out Folly of Letting Romance End With Marriage

(Copyright, 1915, by Star Co.) A Cynical Frenchman has said, "The woman whom we love is only dangerous, but the woman who loves us is terrible," to which a greater cynic added, "Fortunately she never loves us."

This was more witty than true, for every woman loves, has loved or expects to love a man. Man has a horror of being loved with a mercenary motive. So great is this horror to-day that it amounts to morbid expectancy. Nine young men out of ten speak of a wife as a possession only to be purchased. But if a man had never been niggardly, woman would never have become mercenary. And mercenary women are few.

Men are far more stereotyped in mind than women. Therefore their ideas regarding the grand passion are more uniform. While almost every woman likes a dramatic element in a man's love for her, the normal man has a dread of the dramatically disposed woman, especially in the role of a wife. This is the reason we find so many phlegmatic women who are wives. Intensity worries a man unless it is kept well under control and the tragic he finds insupportable in daily life.

Less romantic than woman, by nature and with less idealism, yet some where in his heart every man hides a dream of that earthly trinity father, mother and child—in which he imagines himself the chief element. Sooner or later, to greater or less degree, every man passes through the romantic phase.

Unfortunately for women, his idea of a sweetheart is essentially different from his requirements for a wife. He is amused by her caprices, flattered by her jealous exactions, and grateful for the least expression of her regard for him. He is lavish with compliments and praise. But sentiment in man springs wholly from unpeopled appetites. The coveted, but unpossessed, woman can manifest her love for him in almost any manner, and it will be agreeable and pleasing.

ANOTHER CRISIS IN U. S. DEMAND

thoritative quarters last night that Austria will decline to apologize to America for the attack on the Petroli and will repudiate the charge that the submarine commander "deliberately insulted" the flag of the United States. Austria is said, however, to be willing to make material reparation for the loss of the vessel. The Austrian reply, it is reported, will reiterate the charge that the Petroli swung around "as if to attack the submarine."

Another submarine crisis, graver, it is feared, than the previous one, looms ominously upon the horizon. It was officially ushered in on June 21, when the United States sent its note to Austria on the Petroli affair. It did not become known to the populace in Germany and Austria until yesterday when a brief cable dispatch via London announced that American demands for a "prompt and complete" request for an apology for "a deliberate insult of the flag of the United States" and reparation for the damage done.

Coming as it does in the midst of what is generally regarded as the "beginning of the end" of the European war, at a moment when all armies are pulling out for what may be the final test, the news of the latest American note was received here with marked displeasure, un-concealed even in official circles and last night the greatest possible pessimism prevailed wherever the question was asked. "What will Austria do?"

The consensus of opinion appears to be that the Austrian government will send a courteous but firm reply stating that the Austrian government cannot agree to having the word of the Petroli's captain and crew to be taken in preference to that of the submarine commander. It was believed, with a request for further time to "complete its investigation."

3 Husbands Engage in Wife-Beating Contest

Chicago, June 30.—With her eyes blackened and her face and body bruised and swollen, sustaining her remarkable story, Mrs. Frances Bokorne told Judge Labuy of a wife-beating contest in which her husband and two other married men engaged with the "drinks" as a stake. She testified that the man who gave his wife the worst beating was entitled to drink himself drunk at the expense of the others. Consequently there was sharp rivalry and three wives are badly battered as a result.

He told Steward Davison he had returned from an eighteen-day trip so exhausted that he wanted to drop right off to sleep. His wife, however, wanted to hear all about his trip.
