Physicians Urge Utmost Caution to Avoid Contagion

Washington, D. C., July 6.—Physicians of the United States Public Health Service are greatly alarmed at the epidemic of Infantile paralysis now raging in New York city. They fear the spread of the disease over the country. To-day they issued a warning, asking the public, through the international News Service, to take the utmost precaution to avoid contagion. The service explains that the disease is by no means peculiar to infants, but attacks adults with serious and very attacks adults with serious and very weather is extremely favorable to the spread of the disease, it is declared facile in finding vericles as convey if from infected persons to well ones.

the disease may pass readily, causing the most aggravated cases. Furthermore, it is stated, entirely well persons the may convey infantile paralysis germs without themselves becoming affected. For this reason the service warns communities where infantile paralysis germs, existent to discontinue all public gatherings and, if epidemic threatens, to close schools, churches and Sunday schools, as well as theaters and other popular resorts.

Files carry infantile paralysis germs, so windows and doors must be screened and all food carefully protected. The service states that the old theory that infantile paralysis was caused by the bit of the stable fly has been exploded, but that flies and other insects carry the germs through contact.

The service particularly warns the public to report suspected cases of infantle paralysis to the health authorities immediately and to summon competent medical aid. The disease then can be checked, preventing deformity, it is stated. Even in cases where deformity results, surgery sometimes can overcome the most serious defects, the service explains.
