

OF INTEREST TO THE WOMEN

"THEIR MARRIED LIFE"

Copyright by International News Service

Helen and Warren arrived home from the automobile party tired and cross. Warren had slept very little in spite of his remarks to Helen about not being a sport, and the mosquitoes had kept Helen awake. Consequently she had one of her nervous headaches and it was an effort for her to be agreeable.

"You must all come home with me for supper," Mrs. Holmes had remarked hospitably after they were once more seated in the car on the way home.

"I think so, too," said Bunty, and now that Helen was once more in her own apartment she heaved a sigh of relief.

"I hardly think they will," said Warren, going back into the bedroom to get his keys out of his pocket. "Here they are, you can try, anyway."

"Thank you," the woman responded, taking the keys and hurrying downstairs.

"I might try the fire escape," Warren called down after her, "if you think your window might be open."

"I guess they won't do," she said after a couple of vain efforts. No, I'm afraid it would do no good to try the fire escape, thank you. I am sure that our windows are securely locked."

The lighted warmth of the Curtis apartment looked very friendly and Mahomet, Helen's Persian cat, came out and brushed up against Warren as he stood in the doorway.

"Are you giving him sunshine? He will wither and bloom in it like a flower. Are you giving him the sunniest room in the house—with bare floor and painted walls? Are you giving him a perfect digestion?"

With all their love, so many mothers do not know what to give their babies. Yet today, with our National Government searching for the truth each day—doubt, what is best for your baby?

This is what the U. S. Government says to you and every mother—"Milk as ordinarily marketed is absolutely unfit for human food."

Nurse your baby as long as you can—and when you have no milk left to give him—wear him gradually on the nearest thing to your own milk!

Nestlé's Food

(A Complete Food—Not a Milk Modifier)

Nestlé's has in it the fats, proteins and carbohydrates that your baby needs. Don't try to use cow's milk as a make-shift. It won't do. Unclean—often filled with germs of diphtheria, scarlet fever and that greatest of horrors—summer complaint—raw cow's milk carries off more babies than any other cause. Cow's milk fills the need of calves—not of babies.

In Nestlé's—milk from healthy cows, purified, free from germs—each need is modified—the baby needs are added. Reduced to a powder—it comes to you in an air-tight can. No hand has touched it—no germ can reach it. It is a complete food—so you add only water and boil one minute—and you can know—without a shadow of doubt—what is best for your baby!

These are the two main reasons why you should have your coal bins filled now.

Coal is usually better quality in summer because the operators are not rushed with orders. This allows more time to thoroughly prepare the coal—that is remove the required amount of impurities such as slate and bone.

Furthermore, coal shipped in summer is much cleaner than winter deliveries. Frozen coal is very difficult to screen satisfactorily, as you can imagine.

Thirty cents per ton saved and uniformly good coal are what we have to offer you this month. Don't wait until winter and pay the higher prices.

"HELP! HELP!" Such a cry is associated with a gloomy alley or deserted lane at midnight. To connect it with a taxicab in a crowded city street in broad daylight requires an elastic imagination—but to the two young women who had heard the smothered cry, it was both very real and very poignant.

"I have noticed her, too, but I think her face is too hard. There is nothing warm about them," Helen said.

"I don't see how it could interest you," Helen said. "It doesn't, excepting that I am curious. What did you find in the kitchen; anything good to eat?"

"There's no milk, and Mary has locked up the silver in the china closet and I don't know where the key is. You'll have to eat from the kitchen china."

"Well, that's all right. Hurry up with what you have I'm starving and as Helen had gone to the door of the dining room to see who it was she could see very well. The woman was very well dressed in a dark blue gown and a hat and veil. She looked very up to date, and Helen was curious to know who could be wanting them at this time on Sunday night."

"I beg your pardon for knocking," the woman said in a metallic voice. "but I live in the apartment just below, and I am locked out. I brought a boy over from the hotel with me to pick the lock, but I would see if by any chance your keys happened to fit."

"I hardly think they will," said Warren, going back into the bedroom to get his keys out of his pocket. "Here they are, you can try, anyway."

"Thank you," the woman responded, taking the keys and hurrying downstairs.

IN MEXICO 70 YEARS AGO

The Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo and the Territory Thereby Acquired. A treaty of peace between commissioners representing the United States and Mexico was signed at the small Mexican town of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, February 2, 1848, but it was some months before its provisions had been ratified by the legislative bodies of both countries.

The territory acquired from Mexico by the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo has been carried into the States of California, Nevada, Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, while a considerable part of Colorado and small portions of Wyoming, Kansas and Oklahoma also belonged to this gigantic addition to our national area.

The annexation of Texas, and the Gadsden purchase were all bitterly opposed by the anti-slavery element of the Northern States because these men believed that the underlying object was the extension of the area of the slave territory in the United States. And such, undeniably, was the intention of the powerful and then dominant pro-slavery element of our country.

One of the foremost opponents in Congress of the Administration's measures for the prosecution of the war was Thomas Corwin, of Ohio, commonly known as "Black Tom."

"Mr. Carson!" she cried. "You are just in time! Where is your car?"

"What is wrong?" "Don't you tell me your car is here? We want you and your car to purge a mysterious taxicab—if we haven't lost it."

"I took down the license number," Mary declared. "But, of course, by the time you get to the car, it will probably be too late to do the unknown woman any service."

"I was not the building which drew Mary's whispered cry, but the sight of the taxicab, drawn up before the building, evidently waiting for her, inside. It was the same machine from which had come the wailing cry for help—the machine which had eluded their related pursuit. Even as Mary's wandering glance noted the tattered license tag, the door of the Beauty Parlor opened, and a middle-aged man, in a stylish spring suit, hurried down the sidewalk across the walk.

"That is exactly the idea I have had, too," answered Mary. "Maybe, we have seen his picture somewhere. There, his car is stopping! He is setting out!"

"DON'T USE FACE CREAMS," SAYS BEAUTY DOCTOR, "IF YOU WANT TO BE GOOD-LOOKING?"

English Beauty Specialist Gives Some Good Advice To American Women. Many women seem to think that the use of an ordinary face cream is an aid to good-looks and beauty, said a noted English Beauty Specialist, when, as a matter of fact, a great majority of the grease creams sold now-a-days contain animal fats which are positively injurious. Greaseless creams are equally bad for they are made generally from Stearic acid which dries, chaps and wrinkles the skin.

DRUGLESS HEALING

Tells How Nerve Insulation Quickly Stops All Pain And Allays The Inflammation. Even Rheumatism, Sciatica And Neuritis Yield To Marvellous New Discovery

The nerves of your body are like electric wires. They carry the nerve energy (neuro-electricity) which is generated in the brain, to all the cells and tissues. The nerve sheaths are insulated to resist a current of about 4/1000 of a volt as has been proven with the aid of Lord Kelvin's galvanometer, an instrument so sensitive and accurate that for the first time it is now possible to measure the strength of nerve currents.

SAYS FAT FOLKS NEED MORE FRESH AIR

Shackleton Returns to Prepare Rescue Trip

Punta Arenas, Chile, July 6. — Sir Ernest Shackleton, the Antarctic explorer, arrived here yesterday. Punta Arenas is the most southerly town in the world and is situated on the Straits of Magellan. It is the port where the Uruguayan government has fitted out another relief expedition to rescue the main body of Lieutenant Shackleton's Antarctic party left on Elephant Island. Shackleton's first attempt to reach Elephant Island on a vessel loaned by Uruguay failed, and on June 25 he returned to Port Stanley, Falkland Islands.

MAN, VICTIM OF BULLET IS FOUND SLAIN IN WOODS

Kane, Pa., July 6. — The body of an unidentified man with a bullet hole in his head was found in the woods near James City late yesterday afternoon. The man had been dead only a short while, his body being still warm when found. It is believed that the man was murdered, and the authorities have been notified.

BOYS FIRE BARN

Hummelstown, Pa., July 6. — Small boys shooting firecrackers set fire to a barn at the rear of the Central Hotel yesterday and the building and contents were completely destroyed, including two sleighs, harness and hay and feed. A large quantity of roofing oil was in the building and was burned. The carriage shed and 12 horses were also burned. Mr. Shenk's loss will reach about $2,000.
