A GIRL AND A MAN A New and Vital Romance of City Life by Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER VI

(Copyright, 1916, Star Co.)

Thus began Agnes Morley's first work with the firm of Hale & Bainbridge.

After the brief conversation when she entered his employ William Hale sproke no word but of the business of the day to his new stenographe and secretary. He had put her impediate in his place. She was too busy throughout the morning to reflect on this matter, for she needed all her wits to provide the morning to reflect on this matter, for she needed all her wits to provide the morning to reflect on this matter, for she needed all her wits to provide the morning to reflect on the matter, for she needed all her wits to provide the morning to reflect on the morning to reflect to the morning to reflec strangers—for all of them laugh at it."

"I don't see why," Agnes said.
"I'm sure Annie's a very nice name."

"Oh, it's on account of that old song, 'Annie Rooney,' that they laugh,' Annie explained.

"I never thought of that," Agnes smiled.

She looked at her companion intently, for she saw that the girl wanted to be friendly. It was a pity, she thought, that any one who might have been somewhat attactive should dress as Annie Rooney did.

Fler plump figure was compressed into a very tight dress, her hair was plied on top of her head in an exaggeration of the prevailing mode, and into a very tight dress, her hair was pried on the prevailing mode, and (To Be Continued)

Modern Science Finds a New Method

How Nerve Insulation Stops Inflammation and Eczema, Sunburn and All Skin Diseases Yield to Remarkable New Discovery

The nerves of your body are like electric wires. They carry the nerve energy (neuro-electricity) which is generated in the brain, to all the are insulated to resist a current of about 4/1000 of a volt as has been proven with the aid of Lord Kelvin's galvanometer, an instrument so sensitive and accurate that for the first time it is now possible to measure the strength of nerve currents.

It has been found that wherever acute inflammation occurs the insulation of the nerves is broken down, making it difficult, and often Impossible, for nature to heal the surrounding cells. Germs cannot live in healthy tissue; it is only through damaged cells that they thrive and spread. Obviously therefore, the right way to successfully

Mean Thieves Steal Money For Salvation Army Outing

Hagerstown, Md., July 18. - The mean. Hagerstown, Md., July 18. — The meanest thieves that ever infested this city are being searched for by the police for stealing sixty-seven jars containing about $30 donated in small coins for the poor children's outing to be given by the Salvation Army. The jars were taken from stores and other public places in the city. The loss by the theft will not prevent the outing from being held.

Pittsburgh, July 18.—The thirty-sixth annual convention of the Loyal Orange Association of the United States opened here to-day with 500 delegates from all parts of the country present. "I saw what you were doing!" laughed Jones. "Well, you simply anticipated my suggestion. It's going to be very important for one of you to be on good terms with the purser. I think he'd do a good deal for me, but I won't take chances by asking too much. He didn't offer to show you the state suite, did he?" "No." said Mary, regretfully. "I he'd do a good deal for me, but I won't take chances by asking too much. He didn't offer to show you the state suite, did he"

"No." said Mary, regretfully. "I never thought to ask!"

"I managed that." said Jones, complacently. "He showed me over the whole ship. Awful bore it was, toolored to be suited by the ship. Awful bore it was, toolored to be got his berth, and I imagine I know things about her he hasn't even suspected yet! But I wanted a look at Mr. X's cabin—and I got it. There's a small safe in there—and Shelly explained to me that he and the passenger occupying the suite are the only ones who have the combination. It's changed for every voyage—and even the captain doesn't know it!"

"He'll keep his papers there, of course?" said Mona.

"We don't have to worry so much about where he's hidden those valuable papers. Unless all signs fail we know that what we've got to do is to get that safe opened, by one of the two men who can do it. If he'd turned his stuff over to the purser for safe keeping I'd be a lot more dublous—because a purser's strong room is the real thing. And Shelley is rather stupid—and very faithful and conscientious. I couldn't have done anything with him."

"Just what do you expect to do as it is?" asked Mona.

"One of you—and Miss Mary has started, so that she'd better be the one—will have to make friends with Shelley. The other will have to see if there's a human side to X. There must be, you know—he must be susceptible in some way."

"I'd on't like his looks," gaid Mona.
"And I doubt very much whether he'll see anything in me."

"You'll have to try," said Mona.
"And I doubt very much whether he'll see anything in me."
