

A SUNDAY AT PLATTSBURG

Staff Correspondent Tells of Benefits of Military Training

[Special Correspondence] Plattsburg, N. Y., July 28. — (Military Training Camp) — Sunburned and healthy, with abnormal appetites and an unlimited capacity for work, the men of this camp are in themselves demonstrating incontrovertibly the efficacy and wholesome results of compulsory military training...

A "Sunday in camp" is just exactly what the term implies, a lazy, letter-writing, sleepy sort of day that one spends either in the lake or in his bunk. A trip to Lake Placid or Ansbach Chasm for the energetic, perhaps, but for the majority—inertia and somnolence.

Sunday is general clean-up day. Company inspection takes place at 8 a. m. and the remainder of the day until 5 o'clock is the rookies' own. Last Sunday was very hot and sunny and hundreds put in the time washing socks, shirts, pajamas, underclothing and what not in order to remove the "real estate" that had been accumulated during the week. The washable clothes at least become fresh, if not wholly white or whatever the original color may have been. Shoe shining is one of the most popular company sports of a morning.

The Sunday dinner is a matter of a regular meal plus a few frills including ice cream and pink cakes. A considerable number shake their feet the dust of camp and visit the Hotel Champlain for a civilian-cooked meal. Personally, I prefer the camp meals.

Theodore Roosevelt is expected here this week, but even the Colonel's strenuousness cannot compare with that which will be required of the businessmen and students during the coming week when company combat tactics are introduced in the open country. Each man carrying forty pounds and his gun.

We have an old gentleman in Company C, Sixth Regiment who is in his 60th year, but not a murmur has been heard from him, while others, younger and supposedly more robust, have dropped out of the column from exhaustion.

The company received a surprise on entering the mess shack the other day. Before each plate was a long oblong box placed as a favor at a party. The presents turned out to be tubes of tooth paste, but whether some enterprising firm placed them there as an advertisement or the government has adopted the method of suggestion in its discipline has not been satisfactorily settled.

NOW, BAKE, I WOULDN'T ADVISE YOU TO CALL ON HOBO SAM NOW THAT HE'S INHERITED THAT MILLION DOLLARS 'CAUSE HE'LL ACT LIKE HE NEVER KNEW YOU—WELL, WHEN WE MET HIM IN A HOTEL THE OTHER DAY HE CUT US SOMETHIN' FIERCE!

TROOPERS LOSE BIG MESS TENT

Blows Down During Heavy Rain Storm; Soldiers Get Shower Bath

From C. Hugh Bair

Captain Jack and his men were during a severe rainstorm here last Tuesday night the Governor's Troop mess tent was blown down and before the troopers could pull down the sides of their tents the rain drenched the beds and drove the boys out.

The troopers, after covering their equipment, stripped and stood out in the rain, enjoying the rain bath very much. It was the first opportunity they have had to get a real shower bath and they were out for an hour.

Captain Jack and his men were inoculated on Sunday, the forty-fourth anniversary of the popular commander's birth, so that they were not in shape for a celebration on that day. It was the third and last inoculation against typhoid fever that the men will have to experience.

Some Sick Troopers. The third inoculation appeared to affect the men far more than the other two and there were many who responded to sick call the morning after inoculation. Captain Jack was one of the many who felt the operation greatly. The Harrisburg commander suffered during the day and the night, but is in his usual good health at the present time.

The first payday has come and gone and the boys squared up accounts, purchased clothing needed and have a little spending money in their pockets. It is understood there will be another payday within two weeks.

By permission from headquarters, the troop canteen is again in operation. Sergeant Charles Harclerode, Corporal Clyde McCauley and Corporal Robert McNeal are in charge and are nightly selling gallons of lemonade, many packages of chewing gum, candy and other "luxuries." The profits from the store go into the fund for the purchase of additional comforts for the mess of the men.

Men Enjoy Cooks. Besides the government rations the men are now enjoying lead tea, puddings, cakes and other such items, the cooks, Frank Weber and Horace Oves, preparing bountiful meals for the troopers.

Cook Weber made a visit to the hospital as the result of getting his middle finger of the left hand mixed in with some bacon he was slicing. The finger was badly cut.

Reports from official sources are to the effect that horses will be given the troop within the next few days. Thousands of horses are now available for the Pennsylvania regiments, more than five thousand horses having successfully passed the three weeks quarantine period in the big corral near the cavalry camp.

Horses for Troopers. According to the semi-official reports, only a few horses will be given the men at a time until the recruits learn to ride and the various cavalry evolutions. Within two weeks, however, the entire Harrisburg troop likely will be equipped, drilled and ready to move to any district for protection of the border.

Indications are that the Pennsylvania troops will be moved to the border district for the purpose of patrolling. From semi-official sources comes the news that General Pershing's force is to be withdrawn from Mexico for a time to be re-equipped and to allow the soldiers rest during the rainy season. While the regulars are resting the Pennsylvania and other state troops will do patrol duty.

With Boys of Company I (From Sergeant Charles W. Thomas) Camp Stewart, Fort Bliss, Texas.—There was real joy in camp last Friday when the boys of Company I who enlisted before June 25 were lined up for their first pay. While it was only ten days' pay, the boys who were "broke" were glad to get some money.

A conspicuous figure at all company drills is "Spot," the company mascot, Private Wells, of the first squad, is detailed as orderly to General O'Neil and "Spot" is rapidly learning to march in his place or lay in the blank space when we stop.

Harry B. Chubb had as his guests Sergeant Zaasda, Stable Sergeant Fortynak and Private Kolycynski of Battery E, Sixth Field Horse Artillery, former comrades of his.

Sergeant Thomas called on Sergeant Blake, of Company A, Twentieth Infantry, and got some valuable information regarding the keeping of details in the new books and instruction in making packs.

All mail to insure prompt handling should be addressed "Care of Company I, Eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guard, United States, El Paso, Texas."

There is considerable trouble here in getting mail owing to it being wrong addressed. In some cases it is addressed "Eighth Regiment only. There are at least six Eighth regiments.

AMUSEMENTS

The new show for to-day and to-morrow, "The Phantom," features Frank Keenan and Edith Keenan and "The Phantom" Markey, two well-known names. Known stars that have appeared here in a number of other features. "The Phantom" is a 5-act drama dealing with social caste problems. When he hears that a certain necklace, which is worth an immense sum, is to be worn at a house-party the coming week, he determines to go after it. While he is debating the best way to accomplish his purpose, a detective calls to remind him that it is about time for him to leave the city.

Using the detective's card he gains admission to the house, where he meets the pretty daughter of the owner, who is to wear the necklace. After a number of thrilling events, which rival those of the famous "Raffles" series, he decides that there are a number of things more valuable than jewels. Fay Tincer will be on the same bill in a new Keystone comedy, called "Beddia's Choice."

A drama, said to be of the highest order, dealing with the much-mooted social caste problems, "Winifred, the and disadvantages, is the attraction at the Victoria Theatre to-day in the five-act feature called, "Winifred and the Shop Girl" in which are featured Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno. Gloria, after being ill for many days with pneumonia, begins to convalesce under the skillful treatment of Dr. Stephen Royce, an old friend of the family, who dearly loves her. The latter is entirely infatuated with Richard Freneau. One of Freneau's old friends learns of the intrigue and Mrs. David Stafford, Gloria's sister-in-law, and writes an anonymous letter to Stephen, warning him to watch his wife. David prepares a trap for his wife, by announcing that he is going South for a week or more, and immediately plans to take a little trip with Freneau during her husband's absence.

Save a Diamond

Wear it Christmas

Claster's Save a Diamond Plan proved so popular last year that we have been requested by a number of our patrons to repeat it.

Why You Should Own A Diamond

If you are interested in owning a diamond, give this a moment's time. We have been selling diamonds to the public in our city for many years until we numbered our time-honored and satisfied customers by the thousands. To broaden our field of customers last year, we adopted our Save a Diamond Plan of selling, which proved remarkably successful.

A diamond is not always a luxury, it's an investment, it's a means of saving with the enjoyment of possession added. Hitherto to own a diamond has required cash, but responding to the call of many who wished to invest their spare money in a beautiful gem (always a ready asset) without being compelled to pay more for it by buying it on time, has led us as responsible jewelers to present these facts to you, and give you a few reasons why you should buy a diamond. Notice nearly every careful person you meet and you will observe a diamond, large or small, worn in at least one form or another, ring, pin, brooch, earrings, stud, sleeve links, scarf pin, etc. It shows a thoughtfulness of ones personal attire. In addition to its value as a personal adornment, the best arguments for buying a diamond is its constantly increasing value. Fifteen years ago diamonds were selling for just half their present value, making a substantial increase each year which, this rate of advance as high, every condition tends to indicate a further rise.
