Screw of Vise Is Turned Tighter and Much Harder

Berlin, July 30 (via London, July 31)—Slowly but steadily the screw on the vise in which Germany finds itself is being turned tighter and harder.

The entente powers are straining the last nerve in the attempt to crush in the German rearmament east and west. In the west the Allies cannot record much progress.

In the north the blood of to-day is mingling with the dust and ashes of the dead of the past in the terrible fighting around Pozieres, especially for the possession of the cemetery. There the long slices of the dead are rudely disturbed by the hail of shells which scatter the bones and dust of the sleepers to the four winds...

The British, with characteristic English bulldog tenacity, are throwing themselves again and again against the stubborn, almost immovable German lines near Pozieres and Longueval, while the massed German artillery is turning the portions of woods held by the English, especially the edge of Bellewaive, into a hell unimagined and literally pounding the face of the English advance.

In the east the Austrians have practically evacuated Brody, Brody is six miles from Lemberg. The left wing of the Austrians had fallen back and taken position behind the swamps of Baldock creek, while the right wing extended easterly and barred the road to Brody.

With the constant new reinforcements General Sakharoff pressed through Bielawice and Koniuzkoff with such force, and so pounded with his artillery the Austrians and Hungarians in their last trenches, that after an exhausting day the latter were compelled to fall back when the Russians toward evening penetrated their lines.

Brody is an open, unfortified city of 18,000 inhabitants, lying on a low, sandy flat. The Austrians fell back behind the Lemberg railway line on the southern edge of Brody, Sakharoff pressing after. The Russians evacuated Brody just a year ago, after the Germans and Austro-Hungarians under Mackensen retook Przemyśl and Lemberg.

Pope Bemoans Failure of His Peace Appeals

Rome, via Paris, July 31.—The failure of the Pope's appeals to the warring nations for peace was admitted by the pontiff in addressing a delegation of the Youth of Rome yesterday. The delegation prayed for peace in accordance with the Pope's appeal to the children of the whole world to appeal to God, on the last Sunday of the second year of the struggle to end the war.

The Pope remarked that the war which was ravaging all the earth was not visible on all faces, although such carnage made an ever-present call for meditation and patience. Yet he said, adults were unable to see, which is the attractions of life and that was why he turned to the children who are nearest and dearest to God by their innocence and weakness.

French and British Charge North of Somme in First Real Hot Wave of Summer

With the British Army in the Field, July 30, via London, July 31.—French and British soldiers made to-day's attack in sweltering midsummer heat. The first real hot wave of the season struck northern France last night, and this morning the British and French infantry co-operated in an action north of the Somme, in front of Guillemont and Maurepas.

For the last few days the one word on everybody's tongue has been visibility, which has come into universal use since Admiral Jellicoe's first fleet dispatch. Formerly, artillerymen spoke of good or bad light. Persistent bad light or low visibility which did not permit the gunners to register their targets, had delayed an important infantry action. Yesterday the light became better, the heat grew tropic and the offensive operations were renewed.

Every day the Germans have been increasing the number of guns and men in the Guillemont sector. Among the last portions of high ground they held. By prisoners taken ten German battalions, or 10,000 men, have been identified on a front of 2,000 yards where the Germans are still in their old second line fortifications with maze trenches and deep dugouts built long ago and strengthened since the offensive began. The Germans appear to regard this sector of critical importance since the British broke the second line on the adjoining front for a length of two miles on July 14.

Part of the British attack struck from the bloody Trones woods and the other part on the flank while the Germans tried to man machine guns as usual after a British bombardment. The Germans resisted the British bitterly fighting under the boiling sun as if every inch of ground was precious.

The British got possession of the railroad station which they had reached in a previous attack and, according to last reports, was still holding it. Some of the attackers got into Guillemont and reached the church where the Germans, sarching in dugouts, outnumbered the advance party which fought against their foe on all sides. It was one of those dark-to-hand and hide-and-seek conflicts in the village ruins of indescribable ferocity. The British had to retire from the edge of Guillemont, but made good a considerable advance southward on the British front where, through the hot night, fighting continued to maintain their gain.

Carnage Fearful Perspiration made white water courses in the dust of the men's faces to-day and their eyes looked out through masks so thick that their faces seemed to be covered with some kind of armor. Motor trucks passed like phantoms in thick clouds of dust. Gunners, stripped to their skin, kept on serving their guns at top speed. Breathing came hard in the mixture of dust and shell smoke.

Soldiers who reached Guillemont speak of the fearful carnage among the Germans from the British gun fire, owing to the masses of Germans concentrated under the British bombardment before the infantry attack. They said they could hear the moans of the German wounded for water above the bombing and rifle and machine gun fire. With the news of the shooting of Captain Fryatt fresh in their minds the British went into the charge in a fury, swearing they would avenge his death.

CAPTURE YEMBO

London, July 31.—An Arab force despatched to the Hejaz coast of the Red Sea, after the fall of Jeddah has captured the Turkish town and fort of Yembo, says a dispatch from Reuters' Telegram Company. The troops in the Turkish garrison were made prisoners and guns and munitions were captured.

Apparently, the dispatch adds, the grand sheriff of Mecca is putting his house in order. He is arranging for the publication of a weekly official journal, whereby any and all opinions may be conveyed to the people. He has appointed an Arab to collect the customs at Jeddah, has nominated doctors to attend to the shooting of the army and has named a competent police instructor.

TWO AMERICANS ARE KILLED BY RAIDERS

(Continued From First Page) Lewis Thompson, Troop F, Eighth cavalry was seriously wounded. Were After Horses More than 200 shots were fired during the engagement, it is reported. The Mexicans it is believed crossed the line to steal horses. They were discovered by American outposts and were attacked by the cavalry patrol. The Mexicans, mounted on good horses attempted to flee but were intercepted and forced to fight.

outskirts of Maurepas, the Germans again launched heavy counter attacks. They achieved no lasting success, according to Paris, being immediately driven out of trenches which they momentarily penetrated near Monacu farm, just north of the Somme, and succumbing to French counter attacks at Henwood, near by.

Russian Drive Forward The great Russian drive on the eastern front is continuing in undiminished force in some sectors. In North-eastern Galicia, in the region of Brody, which was captured last week by General Sakharoff, the Russians are keeping up their pursuit of the Teutons which have been pushed back to the Graberki and Sereth rivers, Petrograd announces.

Dispatches from Cairo announce that the Arabs who are fighting against Turkish rule in Arabia have captured the Turkish city and port of Yembo, on the Red Sea, the port of Medina. A Zeppelin airship that appeared off the English east coast this morning was engaged by a British aeroplane, but disappeared while the British fighter was temporarily disabled, London announces.

Sinking of the Italian steamer Dandolo, a vessel of nearly 5,000 tons, is announced through London.

Teutons Fall Back on Their New Defenses at Kovel as Russians Gain

London, July 31.—Furious hand-to-hand encounters and cavalry dashes have succeeded massed infantry and artillery operations along the hundred-mile front in Volhynia and Northern Galicia which the Russians smashed Saturday. According to Petrograd, the Russian advance all along the line is proceeding with the Teutons' forces rapidly falling back to new defenses near Kovel.

General Brussloff's troops now hold virtually the whole of the Stokhod line. Only at isolated places have the Germans and Austrians been able to hold out against the terrific onslaughts of the last three days, and these they are expected to abandon as soon as the bers of one of the Villa bands recently reported operating south of the Rio Grande in that section where there have been several stock stealing raids within the last few weeks. One of them resulted in a small American detachment crossing the border in pursuit of the raiders.

Bandits Wiped Out

Reports to General George Bell, Jr., commanding the El Paso military district, indicated the bandits had been killed.

American patrols reported that a small detachment of Mexicans had crossed the Rio Grande and apparently were making their way toward an isolated section about fifty-five miles down the river. It was believed they were either smugglers or stock thieves.

A small detachment of Troop F, Eighth Cavalry, was sent in pursuit. The Mexicans were surprised and it is believed that none escaped.

Captain H. C. Cushing, commanding Company C, Eighth Massachusetts Infantry, at Fort Hancock, reported the few details he was able to obtain to General Bell.

Col. Slocum Held Blameless in Raid on Columbus

Washington, July 31.—Extracts from the final report of the inspector general's department on the Villa raid at Columbus, N. M., made public today by the War Department, show that Colonel Herbert J. Slocum, of the Thirteenth Cavalry, has been exonerated from all blame for the surprise attack upon his headquarters and the town.

It was this raid that brought reactions between the United States and the de facto government of Mexico to a crisis, and led to the dispatch of General Pershing's punitive expedition into Mexico. The bandits, several hundred strong and led by Villa himself, crept upon Columbus under cover of darkness, boldly engaged the small force of cavalry there and looted the town before the troops under Colonel Slocum succeeded in driving them off.

The inspector general's report is based upon voluminous testimony heard from Officers and men of the Thirteenth, civilians of Columbus and any other persons who could be found with information on the subject. Parts of the testimony were given out with the substance of the inspector general's findings. Unless there are unexpected developments the report probably marks the closing of the Columbus incident so far as the army is concerned.

ROTARIANS WILL BOOST THE "NAVY"

(Continued From First Page) Gus M. Steinmetz, managing editor of the Telegraph, was chairman of the luncheon, and introduced "Admiral" E. J. Stackpole and "Vice-Admiral" V. Grant Forrer, who told all about the plans of the new Navy for the transformation of the Susquehanna river basin, the construction of municipal bathhouses and the establishment of public bathing beaches. The whole luncheon was marked by "naval demonstrations," the singing of sea songs and "pirate" stories by Ed. Black and others. Each member received a little bark canoe with his name on one side and this inscription on the other:

"The Greater Harrisburg Navy invites the Harrisburg Rotary Club to participate in its first annual regatta, Monday, September 4. Here's your boat. Paddle your own canoe and come."

President Howard C. Fry, in the role of Secretary Daniels, decorated the "Admiral" and "Vice-Admiral" with naval hats of their rank and presented each with a periscope, by the aid of which he expressed the hope that the new navy would be able to keep submarines from coming up the Susquehanna.

The club responded enthusiastically to the invitation and voted to have a float with the members and friends aboard on the night of the carnival.
