News from the soldier boys in the South shows marked improvement in conditions. Reports received from Harrisburg soldiers indicate a return home after the troops have been given a taste of real army life. This veek will probably find Pennsylvania oys close to Mexico.

Company D has now been stationed on this sandy desert eleven days and the members are fast becoming accustomed to the hot days and cool nights, the varied drills of school of the soldier, school of the soldier, school of the sylvand, and school of the company.

The Harrisburg boys are standing the heat of the Southern sun very well and there is not one case of serious sickness in the entire company. Of course some members have had slight headaches, sore arms, and a few cases of cramps, but these were quickly relieved at our regimental hospital and all are now able to answer roll call.

On Wednesday evening the Eighth Regiment had dress parade, and just about the time the companies were lined up on the field, a very severe sand storm began blowing. It was very trying for the men, but they went through the review uncomplainingly.

very trying for the men but they went through the review uncomplainingly.

As the slogan of Company D is cleanliness it is up to each man to see that his clothes, equipment and home is kept in the best sanitary condition possible. The floors of the tent have been scraped clear of sand, and every morning and evening sprinkled with water. This helps to keep down the dust and in time will cause a very hard and firm floor.

Soldiers Have Wash Day

One of the most interesting sights is to see the guardsman wash his own clothes. The company has provided a wash tub and wash rubber and when one's clothes get dirty he procures the tub and wash rubber and goes to work. It goes a little awkward at first, but by the time Company D gets back home, many a wife will have a proficient "washer-woman" in the home and then there will be no need for her to bend over the wash tub Monday mornings.

The other day Sergeant Russel had a wash on the line, when suddenly a sand storm came up and picked the wash from the line and deposited it in the sand about fifty yards away. Of course this is to be expected.

The evenings are spent in going to the movies at Fort Bliss (which, by the way, are free), writing to the folks back home and groups or melodious singers making the still night air ring with their harmonious voices. Nothing seems to strike the heart of these lonely, far from home guardsmen, than a little music and Company D is rapidly forming a very good male chorus.
