INQUIRY INTO COMPENSATION

State Wants to Know Whether Persons Injured Are Getting What Law Demands

A State-wide investigation to ascertain whether compensation payments are being made to every injured worker, entitled to receive such payments, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, is being conducted under direction of Commissioner John Price Jackson of the Department of Labor and Industry.

Although hundreds of individual cases have been found where injured workers should be receiving compensation, the investigation has disclosed that, with few exceptions, employers are endeavoring to comply with the provisions of the Compensation Act. In most instances, lack of knowledge of the provisions of the law has been responsible for delayed payments.
