Carlisle Boy Saved Second Time From Drowning

Carlisle, Pa., Aug. 2. — For the second time in a few years, Charles Graham, aged 14, was saved from death by drowning. Swimming in the Conodoguinet creek near Hay's Bridge the boy was suddenly seized with cramps and sank. Friends heard his cries but thought that he was playing with them. John Trimmer, aged 17, finally plunged in and brought the lad to shore just as he was losing consciousness. Two years ago the boy had a narrow escape when the boat in which he was fishing with his father was sunk by a launch. The father plunged in to rescue the boy, but drowned himself, young Graham being gotten to shore by Stretter Parkinson, who was afterwards awarded a Carnegie Medal and $2,000. Parkinson has been attending Harrisburg Technical High School.

PLATTSBURG BOYS ON LONG MARCH
To Keep Going Nine Days During Which They Will Have Busy Time

(Special Telegraph Correspondent)
Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 2. — The "Plattsburg Army" of four regiments over 1,500 men in each, struck tents, (figuratively speaking) yesterday at 6:30 a. m. They marched forth in columns of squads into the surrounding country on the first day's march of a nine days' "hike."
It marks the last week of camp, for all four regiments will leave for their respective individual homes on Wednesday or Thursday, August 8 or 9.
Many are the feet that will be weary and many the backs that will ache, but it is all being done for Uncle Sam and the cause of preparedness and nary a murmur of complaint or protest is heard, no matter how difficult the task to be accomplished, nor how long and tedious the march.
One-half the camp, 3,500 men, will be pitted against the other half, and blank cartridges will be spitting flame from 7,000 Springfield's all over the State of New York for a distance of 25 miles in every direction, possibly.

Patrol and Outpost Work
The duties of the patrol and the outpost have occupied the men of the camp for the past few days and the instruction now being imparted will be put to a practical test during the coming maneuvers, when individual judgment and coolheadedness will be an important factor in deciding which side is going to win the engagement.

There was joy in camp when General Wood approved the lists of names submitted by the company commanders as officers and noncommissioned officers for the various units of the four regiments. Camp tailors are now busy sewing corporal and sergeant chevrons on the sleeves of olive drab shirts and cloth blouses by the scores. A number of Harrisburg boys received the distinction of being made non-commissioned officers of their respective organizations.

Saturday afternoon a brigade drill was attempted on the Post Drill Plain. Every rookie in camp participated and the big plain was alive with marching men and boys, wheeling and turning, who two weeks ago could not have told the difference between a "front sight cover" and a "shelter half." A huge crowd of spectators witnessed the spectacle.

In this veritable city one seldom sees one's friends unless they happen to be in the same regiment, for in the short periods of recreation allowed, there are so many things of importance to be accomplished that little time for visiting is found. All the Harrisburgers here seem to be thriving on the diet afforded and so far none have shown any inclination towards joining the navy in preference to the infantryman's lot. Harrisburg should be represented next year by forty instead of twenty men, for once inoculated with the "army germ," it is almost certain that the second year man will bring a friend or two along to act as private while he gives commands as a superior officer.

Our next letter will be written from the field, after a battle in which we shall likely be killed or wounded. Our more or less intimate acquaintance with Mother Earth by that time will undoubtedly suggest a touch of nature in connection with camp life that might otherwise be lacking.
