WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 2

Beyond this vale of tears There is a life above, Unmeasured by the flight of years, And all that life is love.

REPUBLICAN GOOD WILL PRESIDENT WILSON must have found little more comfort in the accounts of the meeting at which Candidate Charles E. Hughes delivered his speech of acceptance than he did in the speech itself.

On one box opposite Mr. Hughes sat Colonel Roosevelt. Republicans and Progressives alike paid their respects to him in prolonged cheering and he was twice put to the point of politely declining a seat on the platform.

DESHONG ON THE JOB MORE power to Alderman Deshong. Reference was made in these columns the other day to his ability as committing magistrate at police headquarters and since that time he has been further impressing the community with his vigorous enforcements of the traffic ordinances.

HE WAS AT FAULT NEWS dispatches from Washington said that the "Hughes speech followed lines anticipated by the President and his advisers, and so certain were administration leaders that Hughes would say what he did that the President has been preparing his own speech of acceptance for several weeks, and it is now virtually completed."

POPULARITY OF PARKS COMMISSIONER GROSS is finding the demand for benches so insistent from the increasing number of those who enjoy the River Front that he will be compelled to increase the seating capacity of the river parks.

BASEBALL PATRONAGE HARRISBURG'S baseball parade last evening should be the signal for more generous patronage at Island Park. The New York State League team here is playing better baseball than the Internationals did last year.

The statement is made by the Auditor General's Department that the revenues for the last year have been heavier by $2,500,000 than was expected, due to the increased amount of business by nearly all corporations.

What would have become of the State government without this unexpected increase of revenue? Of course, the Commonwealth is practically out of debt, but unless business principles prevail here we shall be in the plight of the average Democratic administration at Washington, which usually issues bonds to cover current expenses.

LET'S INVITE THE TOURISTS VERMONT has pointed the way for Pennsylvania. Many citizens of this State have received a formal invitation on an engraved card to visit the Green Mountain State. Here it is:

The State of Vermont extends to you a cordial invitation to spend your vacation among its Green Mountains or on the shores of its beautiful lakes and streams. The acceptance of this invitation will insure you a hearty welcome and home-like entertainment, and it is the hope of the Commonwealth that your stay here will be so pleasant that you will approach each successive vacation period with all anticipation and eagerness in visiting the Green Mountain State.

There you have one of the secrets of the enormous tourist travel in the New England territory. Little old Vermont understands what thousands of tourists meandering through the hills and valleys of any commonwealth means for the prosperity of that particular section.

Pennsylvania stands second to no other State in the grandeur of its scenery, the variety of its landscape, its rivers and its streams, its impressive mountains and hills, and it is high time we benefited from the activities of the thrifty Vermonters and those of the entire New England section.

AMAZING developments are coming to light in the automobile world. Following closely the formation of a gigantic new company that is on the market with an electrically equipped five-passenger car designed by one of the best known automobile engineers in the world, at the unheard of price of $395 comes the announcement of another big concern that henceforth its five-passenger cars will sell for $360 each.

Think of it—an automobile for less than the price of a good piano! We can imagine the not far distant day when the benevolent department store manager will call his errand boys and address them at Christmas time and address them something like this: "Boys, you know it has been the custom for years to give each of our faithful errand boys a turkey at the holiday season. But this year the birds are too high in price, so we've decided instead to present each of you with a five-passenger automobile."

HE SELECTED THEIR MOTHER Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has heard a great number of after-dinner speeches, of which he has himself made many.

Pennsylvania a Good Roads State (Phila. Public Ledger) Pennsylvania is rapidly becoming a good roads State. Time was, and not so very long ago, when our highways were a disgrace to the State.

Politics in Pennsylvania By the Ex-Committeeman Action of the Washington party city committee of Philadelphia in declaring for Hughes in formal resolutions and the activity of ardent Roosevelt men of 1912 in organizing Hughes alliances have demoralized the Democratic machine leaders of Pennsylvania to such an extent that they will have a war counsel at Philadelphia the latter part of this week.

A Chambersburg dispatch gives the following account of the formation of the Hughes alliance in that borough: "A Hughes Alliance of Franklin county, an organization of citizens favorable to the election of Charles Evans Hughes for President, was issued at a meeting last night, Dr. P. Maskey, chairman of the Franklin County Republican Committee, presided.

The Philadelphia Inquirer of to-day says: "Although it is said that a number of the better class of Democrats are now investigating vice conditions in Philadelphia, it is believed that the probe on Friday when they will automatically cease as a legal body." Mayor Crozier, Chief of Ordinance, has developed that the Legislature of Pennsylvania must pass a special act at the session next January to enable the Quarter Sessions Court to decide the purchase of ground adjacent to the Frankford Arsenal for the construction of needed additional buildings.

Word was received here to-day of the death at Carbondale of John J. Mannih, member of the House from the Fifth Lackawanna district in the sessions of 1911, 1912 and 1913. He was forty-eight years of age and had been ill for six months.

Men interested in politics are following closely the development of the surface controversy at it is possible that it may lead to a demand on the next Legislature for passage of an act abolishing the State Commission of Agriculture. The commission was created by the result of a movement among Grangers, but the act was changed so often that men originally active in its behalf became disheartened.

Announcement that Dr. Carl W. Gay, one of the active men in the State Livestock Sanitary Board service and prominent in the movement for development of horse breeding had decided to leave this State for Minnesota was received with regret to-day. Dr. Gay is connected with the veterinary department of the University of Minnesota, and will accept a similar place with the University of Minnesota.

Papers Increase Prices The St. Louis Globe-Democrat will increase its price from one to two cents starting August 1. The high cost of paper is given as the cause of the advance.

A CITY AT MARKET By Frederic J. Haskin BALTIMORE has the marketing habit. There is no city in America that puts its basket on its arm more regularly or more instinctually, to go forth and purchase its food in the public square.

The market itself is housed under a long high roof to roof its wares, and the place is subdivided into hundreds of little stalls. Everything which the human race is in the habit of chewing and swallowing finds its place somewhere in the market. There are stalls for veal and mutton, pork and veal and sausage and bacon, a string of fruits that would read like the invoice of a South American freighter, all the vegetables you have ever seen and a few new ones, fish, nuts, bread and pastry, live poultry, candy—consult the supply lists of Herr Tortolowitz von Batocki, the new German food dictator, for a partial list.

Major Howard S. Williams, who is the National Guard officer in charge of the State Capitol grounds, is an example of the Greenies camp, as it is called. He is in the rank of colonel, he is chief of ordnance of the State Guard, but he is a high up to be taken into the federal service he took lower rank. He was formerly captain of the Phoenixville battery of the First Artillery, Massachusetts and Maine severally appropriated three and a half mills per acre, and New Hampshire, Minnesota and Idaho spent four mills.

Austria's Plight Several of the Carpathian passes are already in possession of the Czar's troops. Austria's position is desperate indeed. The morale of her armies is severely shaken. The swift pursuit of the enemy has given them no respite.
