FIRM PRESENTS GIFT TO NEWLYWED

Leand J. Wells, Bowman's Head Decorator, Receives Certificate of Deposit For $50

A pretty little ceremony took place immediately after the close of the Bowman and Company store, Saturday afternoon, when Leand J. Wells, head decorator for that concern was presented with a "certificate of deposit" for fifty dollars, from the firm and employees, in honor of his recent marriage to Miss Emma Dodson, of York, Pa. All the employees of the store were gathered around the stairway on the main floor, and J. W. Bowman, standing on the stairs, called for Mr. Wells and made the presentation. Mr. Wells was as greatly surprised, as were his associates when on the 24th of July, he and Miss Dodson quietly slipped away to Hagerstown and were married after a brief courtship.

The certificate read as follows: "Whereas: Leand J. Wells, known in these parts as an authority on window and interior decorating, has taken it upon himself to choose the 'Fairest Maid of York' to assist him in extending this noble work into private life, and the humble art of happy homemaking, and; whereas: he foregoes all the charming maidens of our own proud city; and whereas: no knowledge of his intentions was made public previous to this courageous deed, and whereas: this event has caused him to forego all his duties for the first (we hope not the last) time in his life; and whereas: he having so extravagantly signed away his bachelor independence—

"Be it resolved: That we, the firm and family of the Bowman Store, do hereby, in view of the alleged neglect of the principal, forgivingly tender him the paltry sum of Fifty Dollars.

"Proviso I. That the accused shall present his life-partner to every individual in this assembly. Proviso II. That selection be made from the bounteous stocks within our doors to the above amount. Proviso III. That he accept the mandates of his wife; namely, he shall eat whatever is set before him—keep early hours—and above all, turn over his pay envelope unopened. Proviso IV. That a verbal acknowledgement in our presence be now made in the same speed which characterized his recent act."

Mr. and Mrs. Wells left yesterday for a ten days' honeymoon at the summer home of the bride's parents, "somewhere in Virginia."
