

"The Man Who Keeps Cool" may not be a good politician, but he has solved the problem of comfort and contentment. He starts the day right by eating Shredded Wheat Biscuit with milk or cream. He eats it for luncheon with berries, sliced bananas or other fruits. He makes Shredded Wheat his meat in the hot days. It is ready-cooked, ready-to-eat.

Made at Niagara Falls, N. Y. BE GOOD TO YOUR FEET AND THEY'LL BE GOOD TO YOU

It's the easiest thing in the world to have cool, happy comfortable feet. Just try this simple little test and see for yourself: Go to H. C. Kennedy or any good druggist, get a package of EZO, the wonderful new foot balm. Rub it gently on your feet to-night before going to bed and—good-bye foot troubles forever!

It's just like magic the way this simple little EZO rubs the pain, the ache, the swelling and the misery out of tired, misused feet; and what will tickle you most—the happy feeling! Out of the window with the fussy prepared alum powders and foot paints! Give your feet a real treat with EZO. Do it just this once and make your feet happy!—Adv't.

SILVER SANDALS

A Detective Story of Mystery, Love and Adventure. By Clinton H. Staggs.

Sydney Thames had drained his drink gulpingly to hide the nervousness the blind man's words caused as Thornley Colton had followed Man-uel Carl from the restaurant. There had been but three terse sentences in the minute the problemist had leaned across the table to whisper while the nervous manager waited at the door; yet they put a responsibility on the shoulders of the apple-cheeked secretary that had never been there before.

"That bearded man you noticed is dead," Thornley Colton had said. "It looks like murder. Watch the girl at the next table whose fingers snapped the stem of her wingglass, and see where she goes."

That was all. There had been no time for question nor explanation. The blind man had requested, and there had been no thought in his mind that the secretary would do anything but obey. Nor was there any other idea in the mind of Sydney Thames, whom Colton had picked up twenty-five years before as a bundle of baby clothes on the banks of the English river that had given him the only name he had ever known.

Sydney's nervousness was tinged with a bit of pride. This was the first case in which he had ever been entrusted a responsible part. Always before he had acted as a mere guide, the eyes of the man who had walked in the darkness always. He realized that the problemist had recognized in the presence of the blind man at the table evidence of a crime more complex, more sinister, perhaps, than any he had ever come in contact with before.

It had been like any of the other cases he had watched the blind man solve while others stood helplessly by, Thames knew that Colton would have traced the girl himself, trusting to his own extraordinary powers of mental visualization and elimination to find unaided the end of the tangled thread that led to the center of the maze. Interesting crime puzzles were the blind man's one great pleasure in life, and a peculiar vanity of his nature made him handle every possible end of a case alone.

Sydney Thames, after that first nervous glance toward the bearded man, kept his eye on the girl and her every movement. Her back was toward him, so that he could watch unobscured. Under the broad velvet rim of her Gainsborough hat, more striking because it was the only one in the restaurant, and plainly worn because the girl's more for becomingness than ephemeral style, Sydney Thames saw the white curve of neck and the shell-pink ear lobes that peeped from beneath the great coils of burnished gold hair. Her evening wrap had fallen from one white shoulder, showing her left arm. The right arm and hand were hidden under the folds of her wrap.

She had pushed back her chair a trifle when the glass had broken and the wine spilled on the cloth. Her waiter had disappeared, and the captain was busy at another table. The girl turned her head impatiently, and Sydney Thames saw her profile; Grecian, the face of a young goddess, as clear cut as a cameo. The blind man's secretary, who defied all women, drew in his breath sharply. She was beautiful, wonderfully beautiful!

What could a girl like that have to do with a murder? Why had Colton watched her? What significant message had the stem of the wine-

"BEST IS JUST GOOD ENOUGH"

Well Known Druggists Talk of Coming Introduction of the Master Medicine In connection with the introduction of the famous Master Medicine, Tanlac, which begins in this city Saturday, the Gorgas Drug Company say:

"We have secured the exclusive distribution of Tanlac, and, judging from the reports which precede the preparation from Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, where Tanlac is in great demand, we feel that he have indeed been fortunate in introducing the agency for this medicine.

"The policy of our store, which is well known to everyone, has always been one of liberal conservatism. We first investigate a preparation, and if it is meritorious we lend our encouragement to its exploitation. The best is none too good for our customers.

"Tanlac, while a new preparation, comes to us with a reputation of merit. Leading druggists elsewhere state that the sale of Tanlac has been unprecedented, the results gratifying."

Mr. Carey, Tanlac man, who is here to personally introduce the premier preparation, said:

"Tanlac is the result of scientific research. Its ingredients are gathered from the remotest parts of the earth and compounded by a skilled German chemist as mysteriously as famous mineral waters are formed. The science of man, competitive chemist skill and acquired medical lore are set at defiance insofar as imitation is concerned.

Tanlac has and is now proving astonishingly successful in instances of stomach, liver and kidney troubles, as well as catarrh. As a general tonic and stomach for half-sick, rundown, listless, dyspeptic men and women, it builds up the system, creates a healthy appetite, promotes digestion, assists the blood, and brings back color to the cheeks and the sparkle of health to the eyes. Tanlac is remarkable—unusual.—Advertisement.

Redeemable at the option of the Government, in whole or in part, on thirty (30) days' notice, as follows: At 101 and accrued interest on any date prior to September 1, 1917. At 101 1/4 and accrued interest on September 1, 1917, and on any date thereafter prior to maturity.

To be secured by pledge with The Farmers Loan & Trust Company, of New York City, under a pledge agreement executed by the Government, of securities approved by J. P. Morgan & Co., of an aggregate value of at least $300,000,000, calculated on the basis of prevailing market prices, sterling securities being valued in dollars at the prevailing rate of exchange, viz.:

Table with 2 columns: Security Description and Value. Includes Stocks, bonds and/or other securities of corporations organized in the United States ($100,000,000), Bonds and/or other obligations of the Government of the Dominion of Canada ($100,000,000), Bonds and/or other obligations of the several following Governments ($100,000,000).

Pending the arrival and deposit of securities as above, the Government is to deposit temporarily with the Trust Company at the time of issue of the notes, either approved New York Stock Exchange collateral of aggregate value equal to that of the then undelivered securities and/or cash equal to five-sixths of such value. All such temporary collateral is to be exchanged from time to time in the same relative proportions upon the deposit of the above mentioned securities.

If the pledged securities depreciate in value because of change in market price or in rate of exchange, the Government is to deposit additional securities with the Trust Company, to the end that the aggregate value of the pledged securities shall equal at least 120% of the principal amount of the notes at the time unpaid and not secured by deposited cash.

The Government is to reserve the right from time to time to sell for cash any of the pledged securities, in which event the proceeds of sale are to be received by the Trust Company and applied to the retirement of notes by purchase, if obtainable at prices not exceeding the then redemption price, and otherwise by redemption by lot at the redemption price.

The Government is to reserve the right also to make substitutions of securities, but such substitutions are not to vary the relative amounts in value of the above-indicated three several groups of securities at the time held by the Trust Company.

Valuations of securities are to be approved by J. P. Morgan & Co. This offering is made subject to verification of the list of collateral, and to the approval of the necessary details by Counsel. WE OFFER THE ABOVE NOTES FOR SUBSCRIPTION AT 99 AND INTEREST, YIELDING SLIGHTLY OVER 5 1/2 PER CENT.
