The sweetness of long-baked whole wheat, blended with the delicate taste of malted barley is a wonderfully delicious flavor. Grape-Nuts contains all of the nutriment of the grain, partly predigested, including the vital mineral salts, so necessary to thorough nourishment. "There's a Reason" for Grape-Nuts

RAILROAD NEWS EXPECT STRIKE LOCAL BELIEF

Railroad Men Report Activity at Local Shops and Roundhouses

Local railroad officials of the Pennsylvania railroad, it is reported, anticipate a strike. While they will not admit it, they do not deny there is considerable activity in local shops and roundhouses in preparation for a strike. For the past six weeks carpenters have been busy erecting benches, tables and apartments for cooking. Heads of various departments have been instructed to be ready for orders, making it compulsory to remain on duty until relieved. Employees who are likely to be thrown out of employment should a strike come, it is reported, are being signed up for duty as special officers. Five engineers who were retired within the past year have been approached and asked if they would return to duty, should there be a strike, is one report in circulation to-day.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE IN LAST STAGES

[Continued From First Page] that "figures would not lie but liars will figure." "The railways know full well that the eight-hour day as offered by President Wilson would not cost twenty million per annum if properly applied. "We are still the guests of President Wilson and will remain here."

Men Must Arbitrate or Strike, Rea's Stand

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, made a statement yesterday regarding the strike situation, in which he said: "For the management of the railways to yield to the demands and threats of the labor organizations, and to accept President Wilson's proposal would be to destroy the principle of arbitration as the paramount and recognized method of settling labor disputes. The threatened strike would be postponed, it is true, but we would have no assurance that it would be permanently prevented. Except that the principle of an eight-hour pay day would be conceded, the issues of the very controversy now pending would be left unsettled, while the future of the railways would be in a dark and uncertain indeed. These, in brief, are the reasons why the heads of the railways, with a full appreciation of the solemn and weighty responsibility resting on them, as well as of their duty to the public and to their shareholders, have been forced to the conclusion that it is better to face the alternative of a strike than to surrender.

was embodied in one bill. The situation was viewed on all sides as the most perilous since the negotiations began two weeks ago. The hope of the President and administration leaders was in the possibility of getting the brotherhood men to give more time to continue the negotiations.

Reply to Rea

The four brotherhood heads issued a statement replying to the President. Rea of the Pennsylvania, who last night made an announcement that rather than give up arbitration the roads preferred to face a strike. The statement charged the Pennsylvania with inconsistency in that two years previous it fought the efforts of its shophmen to organize and arbitrate. It also declared that as the controlling interest in five smaller roads it has refused their representation on the managers' conference committee and that if arbitration were agreed upon it would not apply to these roads.

Federal Receiverships

Some progressive Republican senators declared that in their opinion in the event of a strike the President would ask Congress to direct federal receiverships to operate the railroads during the conflict. Probability of legislation for government ownership was too remote to be considered in this crisis, they declared.
