FLOOD PREVENTION MEASURES URGED

Report of Water Supply Commission Shows Danger and Points Out Remedy

Large appropriations for survey of the streams of the State in order to properly gauge the flood conditions and prevent loss of property by reason of encroachments and obstructions to the natural flow of streams are recommended by the State Water Supply Commission in its annual report, advance sheets of which were made public to-day.

This and the announcement that during 1915 only nine applications for incorporation of companies for domestic supply water to the public for domestic purposes and three applications for the incorporation of water companies were approved by the commission, as compared with a maximum of 150 and a minimum of 100 in other years, are the outstanding features of the report. No reason for the big decrease is given. Fifty-one applications for the erection of new dams were received and 43 approved. Of the new structures 3 exceed 40 feet, the largest being 68 feet in height.

In order to prevent such catastrophes as those of Johnstown and Austin, the commission has adopted a comprehensive policy for the supervision of dams but has been unable to carry it out adequately due to lack of appropriation. The report goes fully into the methods of the commission in this respect. "Inadequate appropriation for this important work," says the commission, "is false economy, for the reason that a single dam failure may cause a greater loss than the total cost for adequate supervision for a long period. The importance of careful supervision in the line is brought out in the report which sets forth that 485 applications for encroachments on streams were approved in 1911 of which 102 were for bridges, 21 for fills and 62 for all other purposes.

With regard to the Erie flood, the worst of the year, in which 34 lives were lost and property damaged to the extent of at least $2,000,000, the report says: "It is believed this flood would have passed off without unusual damage if it had not been for the restricted and obstructed condition of the channel through the city. The commission had previously called the attention of the city officials to the obstructed condition of the stream and recommended that a comprehensive plan for its improvement be prepared and submitted to the commission, but nothing was done until after the catastrophe had occurred."

With respect to the necessity of the proposed survey, the commission says that the State is now paying the penalty of lack of supervision of streams in early years and that nearly all flood damage attributable to encroachments had its inception before the passage of the present law, "and large expenditures and long periods of time will undoubtedly be required to overcome their harmful effects." Particularly in densely inhabited districts the commission urges the appropriation of money for the purpose of establishing shore lines which never may be encroached upon.

Employment Offices Moved. — The Harrisburg offices of the Bureau of Employment, of the Department of Labor and Industry has been moved from the Masonic Temple Building to larger quarters in a property owned by the State at 142 North Fourth street. All applications, in person or letter, for employment or employees, should be made at the new address beginning to-day. Constantly growing numbers of employers seeking workers and unemployed persons in search of employment, made necessary the enlargement of the local office of the Bureau and several weeks ago Commission of Public Safety, in cooperation with Samuel E. Jackson, Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings, for the remodeling of the State-owned structure to accommodate the Employment Bureau offices maintained co-operatively by the State of Ohio and the city of Cleveland in Cleveland. — W. P. F. Ferguson, Prohibition candidate for United States Senator, withdrew Tuesday and Herbert T. Ames, of Williamsport, was substituted for the office. Daniel W. Kelt, Prohibitionist, of Shamokin, withdrew as a candidate for the House.

Maryland Bars Children. — Maryland has barred the entry of Pennsylvania children under sixteen years, in connection with the infantile paralysis epidemic. Similar regulations against New York and New Jersey children are in force. The Rev. Daniel E. Ruple, and family, returned yesterday from an auto trip of a week among former parishioners at Millersburg and vicinity. He will conduct services as usual on Sunday morning; no evening services. Miss Grace Eshenaur, who has been spending several months with her sister, Miss Carrie Eshenaur at Detroit, Mich., returned home this week. Prof. and Mrs. Frank Hasting of Williamsport visited among their friends here this week.

Miss Winifred Grangers returned to her home at Gettysburg, Pa., after several weeks' stay with Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Green. Miss Naomi Henshaw left for Washington, D. C., to-day for several days' visit. Miss Catherine Bishop, returned from her vacation at Mt. Gretna. Mr. and Mrs. Simon Saylor, of Chambers street, are spending the week-end at their cottage at Mt Alto.

Two Opinions Rendered. — Deciding the school office of Pottsville is within its legal rights in entering into an agreement with the Pottsville Free Library Association for an appropriation toward the maintenance of a library carried on in the building owned by the school district. In another opinion Dr. Keller holds that in case of a second failure to pass any final examination an application for permission to practice medicine may make another application only after taking a year of post-graduate study approved by the State Board of Medical Licensure, but that such requirement does not refer to the preliminary educational requirements for entry upon the study of medicine and does apply only to the conditions obtaining at the time with reference to medical education, instruction, and examination. The question was raised by the bureau.

Auto Hits Wagon. — While driving an auto across the Walnut street bridge in the blinding wind and rain Saturday night Scott Coble, of Wormleysburg, plunged into a team owned by a man named Tuesday, in town with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hoffman, of Market street. The wagon was returning from market and Coble was returning from Hershey Park.

Mrs. McADOO UNCHANGED. — Spring Lake, N. J., Aug. 20.—The condition of Mrs. William G. McAdoo, daughter of President Wilson, was unchanged to-day.
