LAWYERS WILL PASS IN TIME TO STOP STRIKE

The President himself went to the Capitol soon after 9 o'clock this morning to hurry things along.

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee got to work early on its bill for an eight-hour day and an investigating commission.

In the House the Rules Committee assembled to report a special rule and have it ready for the House when it meets at 11 o'clock, providing for a vote on the Adamson bill not later than 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Railway Heads Do Nothing The railway heads, having voiced their protest against the legislation, did nothing to-day awaiting its outcome.

Barring unforeseen complications it seemed assured that Congress would act finally before Saturday night and in time for the brotherhood heads to call off the strike set for 7 o'clock Monday morning.

When the Senate convened, a recess was almost immediately taken until 1 p. m. to permit the Interstate Commerce Commission to complete its work of drafting the strike prevention legislation and to permit Republican members to confer on the proposed bill.

President Wilson spent almost an hour conferring with Democratic members and then returned to the White House.

Keeping Threads Together Definite abandonment of the plan to attach the railroad strike legislation to the pending bill to enlarge the Interstate Commerce Commission was agreed by the Senate Committee.

The President explained his presence at the Capitol by saying: "I am just keeping the threads together."

Majority Leader Kern said after the President's visit that the Democrats would concentrate on the eight-hour bill and put over the rest of the railroad legislation until next week.

Many Democrats felt there would be little disposition among the Republicans to filibuster against an eight-hour bill in view of the present situation.

The Senate committee determined there was opposition to the Interstate Commerce Commission enlargement bill to risk attaching it to the emergency legislation.

Consider Freight Increase As the bill went through the Senate committee had agreed that the new commission should consider an increase in freight rates to meet such additional expenditures by the railroads as may be necessary.

Some members were seriously inclined to the belief that such definite direction regarding the rate question would provoke opposition on the Senate floor.

Senator Newlands said the committee also was considering including a provision to empower the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix the schedule of wages upon railroads.

"We will have to do this some time and might as well do it now," he said. He also was inclined to urge the committee to include in the eight-hour bill some features of the proposed amendments to the strike prevention legislation.

President Wilson, it was said, had become convinced that the only thing that could be done at once was the passage of the eight-hour bill and had urged that the Senate bill adhere as closely as possible to the Adamson bill in the House.

As agreed upon to-day the Senate bill would make the eight-hour basic day effective January 1, 1917, and apply to railroads of one hundred miles or more in length, exempting electric street and electric interurban railroads.

By 1 o'clock the bill was expected to be ready for the Senate.

The Adamson bill was favorably reported by the House Interstate Commerce Committee on Wednesday.

The bill was immediately reported to the House which met at 11 o'clock.

Senator Norris the first to leave the Republican Senate conference, said each member would be left free to act as he thought best.

Interference had been devoted largely to the explanations of the deliberations of the Interstate Commerce Commission by Senators Cummins and Brandegee who are members.

Senator Norris said he favored passage of the Interstate Commerce Commission bill which would have power to regulate wages of all employees on interstate carriers from presidents down, as well as rate increases.

Efforts still were being made to induce the brotherhoods to call off the strike order but they were standing firm.

"If you don't know where you're going, you're a fool," says Billy Sunday, and he adds that preparation is the only thing that will enable you to reach your goal.

In temporal things preparation is just as essential as in things spiritual. The boy or girl who expects to succeed must be prepared for success—if your boy and girl are to do any but the commonest things in life, you must so equip them as to make better things possible.

THINK IT OVER. Our new classes will be organized MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 4. Ambitious, earnest students are invited to join us. It is our business to put into the hands of young people the keys that open the door to business success.

TYPHOID FOUND IN ICE CREAM

Ritzman, when the supply arrived in Harrisburg, show that some ice cream is not only extremely dirty, but in some cases, full of disease germs, most of them believed to be typhoid.

Special Board Meeting A special meeting of the health bureau will probably be held to-night or to-morrow, when Dr. Raunick will present the facts of the situation and also outline the best course to stop the spread of the disease.

In every ice cream test taken with but few exceptions, disease germs were found in large numbers, and in some instances Dr. Moffitt reported that no estimate could be made of the amount. The bacteria tests per cubic centimeter ranged from one to four millions, with one or two tests in the hundred thousand column, indicating unsanitary handling of the cream.

Six new cases were reported to-day, all widely scattered, and Dr. Raunick said he is positive ice cream was the cause. That more cases will be reported daily for at least two weeks, is Dr. Raunick's opinion.

May Close Plants The city health officer announced that he is planning a conference with City Solicitor D. S. Seitz, with a view to shutting off ice cream supplies in general, and that this measure, the closing of some of the cream plants in the city, at least temporarily.

Forty-six cases of typhoid fever were reported last month, with one death. This is one of the highest cases in the history of this disease. Last year 93 cases were reported, scattered throughout the entire year. For several years prior to 1915 less than 10 cases were reported in each twelve months.

Reports Below Standard Arrangements are being made with Cumberland county health authorities to trace the entire city supply of milk and cream from dairies in that section. August milk reports in that section have been far below standard according to Officer Raunick and a number of prosecutions will follow within a week, he stated.

The manufacturer whose ice cream is a thorough sterilization of all equipment in his plant under the direction of health authorities and reopened to-day. He changed his milk supply, and new tests are to be made of the ice cream manufactured, according to Dr. Raunick.

Three typhoid suspects were admitted to the Harrisburg hospital this morning. They were Mrs. John Kaiser, aged 56, of Enola; Mrs. Ross Darr, 1417 North Third street, and Frank Rupp, 508 North Third street.

Ice cream dealers are greatly worried. One prominent maker said that the publicity given had injured his business greatly and he insisted that no typhoid had ever been traced to his ice cream.

He says whatever fault there is lies with the dairymen and milk shippers. He sends milk to New York city and says that regularly the health authorities of New York State send inspectors here to inspect his sources of supply.

NEW DAUPHIN PARALYSIS CASE One new case of infantile paralysis was reported to the State Health Department from Dauphin county. The victim is Miles Willard, aged 4, son of Burton Willard, of Williamstown.

PARALYSIS INCREASES New York City. The number of new cases of infantile paralysis reported for the twenty-four hours ending at 10 a. m. to-day, showed another increase, sixty-eight against sixty yesterday, but officials of the health department retain their feeling of certainty that the epidemic is on the wane.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BACKS CITY PLANNERS

involve the city in continuous embarrassment respecting such structures, and.

"Whereas, The City Planning Commission in the performance of its official duty has given full consideration to this matter and presented to the City Council its remonstrance, said with powers designed to safeguard the aesthetic features of the city's development against invasion by individuals and corporations as well as to further in every way the welfare of the community in the planning of business and residential sections, and.

"Whereas, The comprehensive labors of the Planning Commission contemplate the future growth of the city in every direction, it is the opinion of the Chamber of Commerce committee that this commission should have the fullest co-operation of the important interests represented by the Chamber of Commerce and that the grant for the erection of an overhead bridge in Seventh street was authorized without full consideration of its serious consequences and contrary to law.

"Therefore, Be It Resolved, That the City Council be respectfully requested to rescind its authorization in the light of all the facts and in the event of no reconsideration such legal action be taken as will fully test the right of an individual or corporation to erect such a structure across any highway of the city.

to erect such a structure across any highway of the city. This committee appreciates the importance of conducting the local commercial and industrial interests, but it also appreciates the enormous value of planning for the future of a city growing so rapidly as Harrisburg, and in view of the serious results of indiscriminate building of overhead bridges and private conveniences on public highways, legal action at this time is believed to be the only proper course to pursue to determine once for all the rights of the city in the premises should City Council refuse to rescind its permit."

FIVE MORE DIE Washington, Sept. 1. — Five additional names have been added to the list of known dead in the disaster to the armored cruiser Memphis at San Domingo City, bringing the probable death list up to seventy-one.

WARN DEALERS NOT TO BOOST PRICES UNFAIRLY In case of a railroad strike, Mayor Meals to-day warned all local food dealers that exorbitant prices of commodities which are not really scarce, will not be tolerated, and that he is planning to confer with City Solicitor D. S. Seitz, on the advisability of revoking licenses in case this warning is violated.
