

UTES SQUARE UP WITH ISLANDERS IN CLOSE GAME---COCKILL SCORES BROWN

LOSE CLOSE GAME TO UTICA BUNCH

Rally Did Not Last Long Enough to Tie Up Game; Good Fielding

Special to the Telegraph
Lowville, N. Y. (via Utica), Sept. 2.—Young Burns weakened in the third and fifth innings to-day and lost the game to the Utes; score, 7 to 6. The Islanders had one big rally in the sixth, but the changing of pitchers stopped the climb. Karpf tightened up and prevented further rallies.

George M. Church Wins Over McLoughlin in Semifinals

Special to the Telegraph
Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 2.—The defeat of Max Baer, the idol of American lawn tennis, by George M. Church was the feature of the fourth round of the national singles championship on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club yesterday. The elimination of the Comet in his widely heralded attempt to come back after two years of defeat left only three Westerners in the field for the 1916 title, as against four Eastern stars and one Southerner.

Mob Umpire Pete Harrison When He Grabs Small Boy

Special to the Telegraph
Pittsburgh, Sept. 2.—The decisions of Umpire Pete Harrison in the Pirates-Cincinnati game yesterday nearly caused a riot and serious trouble was only averted after the game was over by the presence of a number of policemen and half a dozen plain clothes men. In the seventh inning Fischer bunted toward third and apparently had Groh's throw beaten by two steps. When Harrison called him out the spectators went into a frenzy over the decision. Manager Callahan protested vigorously and was ordered out of the grounds, followed by Jacobs and Johnston. After the mob dispersed, Harrison pushed Harrison through the door into the dressing room. Most of the crowd waited at the exits for the umpire, but he remained in the clubhouse until they dispersed.

BIRDHOUSE CONTEST ENDS

The birdhouse contest, conducted by the Harrisburg Natural History Society, ended yesterday. Reports of contests are to be sent to Boyd P. Rothrock, State curator, 910 North Third street, promptly. If possible photographs should be sent with the reports, to aid judges in picking the winners and awarding the prizes.

Gleason Back on Old Coaching Job

The veteran Kid Gleason, who was released with Jimmy Callahan, when Clarence Rowland became manager of the White Sox, is now back with the Chicago American League team in the capacity of coach. When released by the White Sox, more than a year ago Gleason had several offers to manage major and minor league teams, but refused them and went to his home in Philadelphia, declaring he was through with baseball and would devote the rest of his days to business.
But Owner Comiskey, evidently thinking that the White Sox needed some one to restore the old fighting spirit, sent his secretary to Philadelphia last week to induce Gleason to return. It is understood that Gleason would not accept his signature to a contract until a large salary had been written into it.
Gleason entered baseball in 1890, signing with the Phillies as a pitcher. In 1894 he pitched for the famous Baltimore Orioles and helped them win their first pennant. The next year he switched to second base and was traded to the New York Giants the following year. Later he went to the Detroit Tigers, and from them to the White Sox, when Jimmie Callahan became identified with that team.

Manager Cockill Is Sore on J. Don Brown

That J. Don Brown, the Harrisburg outfielder, was renouncing on his job in Harrisburg is now the belief. Fans some weeks ago talked about his apparent indifference. His work in the field was good. It was in his hits that this player fell down. It was said he was sore over the way his contract was jugged. Last week he was ordered to report to Syracuse. The outfielder was still in Harrisburg yesterday. Under the heading, "George Cockill Grills Brown, the Balke," to-day's Philadelphia North American has written:
"George Cockill, owner of the Harrisburg team of the New York State League, saw the double-header at the Phils' park yesterday.
"Cockill was greatly disturbed over the failure of Outfielder Brown, of his team, to report to Conlie Mack.
"Connie Mack sent me King for Brown," explained Cockill, and I never thought there would be the least hitch on Brown's part. Brown gave me his promise to report to Mack last Monday. He backed his bet by appearing and appeared anxious for the chance.
"When I reached Syracuse I was surprised to get a telegram from Brown saying that he wouldn't report, unless his alleged claim against me, the Yankees was adjusted. He had the nerve to try to hold up Mack and compel him to make good the amount he thinks is coming to him.
"I'm afraid now that Mack may drop him for good; but it would only serve him right. I wish there was some way he might be punished."

"Pop" Geers Wins Race; Hangs Up New Record

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Napoleon Direct, driven by "E. F." Geers, broke the track pacing record here yesterday and won "The Directum" 2:00 pace. His best time was 2:02, against a former track record of 2:02 1/2 held by Eel. Napoleon Direct won by straight heats. It was the last day of the meeting.
Thomas W. Murphy drove two horses to victory—Mirthful, in the 2:07 trot which was a hard-fought contest between the winner and Eversana, and his Bingen, in the 2:13 pace.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY
AMAZING BUT RARELY SUSPECTED TRUTHS ABOUT THE THINGS YOU EAT
(Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)
By ALFRED W. McCANN

The clever method by which secret preservatives are employed by the operators of rural milk routes calls for the exercise of constant vigilance if the infant population of small cities and towns is to be protected against this form of rascality.

The necessity of exercising eternal vigilance with respect to the secret use of preservative, particularly in the milk supply of small cities and towns becomes apparent when the methods by which preservative finally reaches the consumer are fully understood.
Not even milk for babies is exempt from the influence of this chemical. I obtained six bottles of milk from a dealer in A——, Long Island, a suburb of New York City, on six successive days and permitted them to stand. The weather was hot, but the milk remained sweet. I visited the dealer, A. L. L., who fell into a state of embarrassment when asked a few leading questions concerning his use of preservative.
He finally confessed that he employed a preparation called "Special M Preservative." He declared that he didn't know that it was harmful to babies as it had been sold to him for the specific purpose for which he used it.
He also declared that no one had ever offered any objection to its use. When pressed on this point he admitted that he had never confided in anybody the fact that he employed the chemical.
In the course of his conversation he asserted that he had never called in person upon the people who sold him the stuff, placing all his orders for it by mail.
Acting upon this hint, I called at the office of the Preservative Manufacturing Company and asked to see the general manager.
My name is J. L., one of your customers," I said. "I have been in the neighborhood and as I need some more 'Special M' for preserving milk I thought I would drop in and take it along."
A man who said his name was C—— welcomed me. I asked him if his name were Charles C——.
He said: "No, my name is not Charles."
"It seems to me I have met you before," I ventured.
"No, I don't think we have ever met," he replied.
"Well, I knew a man in New York a few years ago by the name of Charles C—— who certainly resembles you enough to be your brother."
"No, my name never was Charles," he asserted.
"What is your name?" I asked.
"I go only by my initials, and people just call me C——," he said.
Apparently there was no reason for evasion, but he would not reveal his name.
"When we returned to the matter of 'Special M' he said: "We cannot sell 'Special M' for preserving milk any more. We now call the same identical thing 'Special M Washing Fluid,' and have changed the label to read, 'For Washing Bottles and Cans.'"
"The milk dealers still say it does the same work that it did under the old label. Of course, I cannot tell what they do with it after it leaves our hands."
"For years," he continued, "we sold 'Special M' for milk, but the laws tightened up on us a few months ago and we thought it best to put responsibility for using it up to the milkman. You cannot blame us for protecting ourselves. It's the same stuff, but we don't sell it any more as a milk preservative."
"The last bottle which I got from you three weeks ago," I said, "stated that 'Special M' was intended for preserving milk and gave the directions for its use."
"You must have got hold of one of the bottles with the old labels," he answered. "We stopped selling it under those labels more than three weeks ago, in fact, several months ago."

"How old is this law that prevents your selling it now?"
"Oh, the law has been on the books for years, but it never bothered us until recently. It's better to sell it without any label on it at all anyhow. The label doesn't make any difference. It does the work just the same with or without the label."
"I sell a lot of milk along my route in A—— to babies, and I want to make sure that it is not hurting them. Are you sure it will not hurt them?" I asked.
"I never heard of it hurting any one," he grinned.
"But these babies are on my conscience. I don't want to get in bad where babies are concerned. As a matter of fact, I have been leaving it out of the milk which I knew was going to be consumed by babies."
"That's entirely up to you. We will sell it to you if you want it, but only for washing bottles. You can put it in the milk or leave it out, just as you see fit."
He did not seem nearly as disturbed over the question regarding the health of babies as he did about revealing his full name.
As we were leaving the office he called me back to make this statement:
"Another reason for not selling 'Special M Preservative' for milk is because workers around the barns and bottling houses, seeing the labels, would get wise."
"Let me make this clearly understood. We have sold it for a long time to milk dealers supplying hospitals, asylums, and orphanages. No question has ever been raised about it. So you needn't be unduly disturbed. You can wash your cans with it and by accident should have any left in the can you won't have any loss on sour milk. You would also have a good defense if you ever got into trouble."
The entire matter of milk poisoning, including the simplest methods of minimizing the evil effects due to this cause, will be treated in detail in its proper place. But the preservative detail needs attention now.
