COMMINGS-WILSON MARRIAGE TODAY

Quiet and Pretty Ceremony at Parsonage Unites Well-Known Church People

The marriage of pretty Miss Mary Margaret Commings, daughter of Mrs. Emma Commings, 812 Green street, to Francis Wilson, of this city, was an interesting event of this morning at 10 o'clock in the manse of the Market Square Presbyterian Church, with the pastor, the Rev. Dr. George Edward Hawes officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her nephew, Ross Arnold Commings, of Reading, wore a beautiful costume of white net and Duchesse lace with black and white picture hat, and a corsage bouquet of sweet-heart rosebuds. The matron of honor, Mrs. Joseph F. Bradley wore a dainty frock of white net over taffeta with black picture hat and shower bouquet of cosmos and pink dahlias.

A wedding breakfast followed the service, served at the bride's home. Beautiful decorations of pink and white asters and fern were arranged by Burton E. Commings, the bride's cousin. Vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed by the immediate families, and later the guests escorted the bridal pair to the train as they started on the honeymoon to Pittsburgh, Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Detroit. Returning they will reside at 812 Green street.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are members of the Market Square Presbyterian Church, she being a teacher of the Junior Sunday School department. Mrs. Wilson has been service operator for the Bell Telephone Company for ten years, and Mr. Wilson, a son of Mrs. Kate Wilson, is connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Among the wedding guests were Mrs. E. G. Commings, of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. Marion Wiker, and daughter, of Lancaster.

OVER A HUNDRED AT CORNROAST

Telegraph Family Has Heaps of Fun Yesterday on McCormick's Island

The few stars that did their timid best to throw a little light on things last evening had long since gone to bed behind the clouds when the "last boat" from McCormick's Island slid across to the Edward street landing. And if you had been hanging about any place from which to hear (above the other vocal disturbances) what the folks on the crowded boat were saying you'd have heard one or two grievous murmur, reiterated and reiterated: "Too bad! Only the weather man failed to operate!"

More than a hundred employees of the Telegraph were guests of E. J. Stackpole, the president, and the party had a real picnic time of it as long as the weather behaved. The tables were spread under the trees on the site of the playground camp. All afternoon the fires burned and the ears of corn roasted under the able direction of "Daddy" Williams and his assistants while in an adjoining tent "Jim" Wilson grinned and watched the coffee boilers while "Bill" Brown stood by with ladle and cups to get ready for the big rush.

Sometime before 4 o'clock the first boat landed. V. Grant Forrer, assistant park superintendent, was there to help the Telegraph family committee of arrangements while the Rev. E. E. Snyder, Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Forrer and Miss Forrer who had been camping on the island for a week, celebrated the arrival of the "Family" by decorating the tables with masses of wild flowers. And from the time the boat touched until they celebrated, the committee hardly stopped for a bite to eat.

Lots of things might be mentioned of the cornroast. For instance the demise of "Buck" Ewing's straw is a story in itself; the fact that "Rosie" McDonald had enough corn—or said he had—enough to feed the whole lot of us; "Bob" Bernheisel did some good chaperoning and entertained later at the "movies"; neither Ogelesky, Mr. McCullough nor Steimetz did more than look their disgust when "F. R." who started away without an overcoat, held up the last boat to the island while his wife and himself searched through the garret for Frank's coat.

The only other real thrill that "Jim" McCullough experienced perhaps was on the way home. The "Chief" Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Ogelesky, Mr. McCullough and some others decided to do a little of the roughing it stuff by doing "route" on the log fire after the main party had departed. They stayed until it rained. And as the single toiler at the oars of the little row-boat that carried the later wayfarers home, the Susquehanna gentle waves lapped playfully over the gunwales.

"Whereupon 'Jim' got his thrill. 'Say, Lawrence,' he inquired, 'can you handle a boat?'"

The oarsman doggedly panted away with his half-ton load. He nodded. The Susquehanna slipped a couple of knots over "Jim's" thwart. "That's so very deep in here, though, is it?" finally asked Mr. McCullough.

"Eighteen feet—some places!" said the oarsman.

Thus, the final thrill.

MISS LEADER ADDRESSES THE MISSIONARY SOCIETY

A delightful hour was spent at the home of Mrs. C. J. Ladd, Camp Hill last evening at the Fall meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church, of which the Rev. W. S. Booth is the pastor. About fifty were present. After a short business session was held, followed by an address on Japan by Miss Maud Leader, a missionary to that country.

It was an instructive and entertaining glimpse of the people and the problem of the East and the prospect of the Christian propagation among the "Asiatic Yankees." Every one enjoyed this illuminating resume of Miss Leader's five years' work in the educational field of the little empire. Her winsome personality and delivery was like the fragrance of cherry blossoms wafted from the "Flowers Kingdom."
