

OF INTEREST TO THE WOMEN

Prudence and Prudery

By DOROTHY DIX

A problem that confronts every girl at some time or other is where to draw the line between prudery and prudence in her dealings with men. She doesn't want to be a prunes and prisms sort of a girl, one of the kind who is always on the lookout for a shock, and who takes hold of a man's arm as if she would prefer to use the yongs in touching it. She wants to be free, and frank, and fearless, and yet her maidenliness shrinks from any familiarity from one of the opposite sex, and so the question of how to maintain a thus-far-and-no-further attitude toward men becomes a very difficult one for a young and inexperienced girl.

The difficulty is further enhanced by the fact that every normal girl desires to be admired and to receive attentions from men, and she sees that the popular girls—the girls who have hosts of beaux and are overrun with invitations for theaters and parties and every amusement—are the free-and-easy girls who permit little liberties and in whose presence a man does not need to put much restraint upon either his tongue or his manners.

An older woman could tell such a girl that she was taking a short view of the subject, and that while the fast woman will always get the most service, admiration and attention from men, she is seldom the woman that they marry. They like to be with her when they want an hour's amusement, for she is jolly and amusing and easy to talk to, and they have to make no effort to change their mental attitude in her presence, but when a man thinks of a woman as a companion for a lifetime and not a day, he wants something better, purer, more womanly, and one for whom he has more respect.

Men are cruelly inconsistent in their dealings with women. They amuse themselves with one type of woman, and then they marry another. A man will teach a girl to drink cocktails and then refuse to marry her because she does it. He will spend weeks persuading her to kiss him, and then be suspicious of her because she does it. He will persuade a girl to go to see a problem play and then condemn her because she went.

No girl need ever be afraid that she hurts herself in a man's opinion by womanly reserve and dignity. He may laugh at her a bit for a little Puritan if she won't go to restaurants with him without a chaperon, and if the very suggestion of an off-colored story dyes her innocent cheek with scarlet, but in his heart he respects her for it. She is the kind of girl that he would like his sister to be and that he hunts up for himself when he marries.

If you will notice you will see that the gay, brilliant, good fellow, much admired belle of a season, who was a connoisseur in mixed drinks and double entendre stories and an expert at cards seldom marries as well as the shy little girl whose only attraction was the white halo of her innocence, and ignorance, and purity.

Another very practical argument for maidenly reserve may be found in the fact that man's leading passion is the passion for the chase, and that the harder the thing is to get the more he wants it and the more determined he is to have it. No man cares to kiss the lips that are within his reach. It is the ones that are denied him for which he hungers and thirsts and which he spends his life trying to win. No girl could have a more potent charm for men than to diffuse about herself an intangible atmosphere of aloofness—of being guarded by a maidenly delicacy that would take alarm at the slightest approach to familiarity.

Every man worthy of the name, honors the girl who honors herself, and if there are any others who are driven away from her because she will not permit liberties from them, she should bless Heaven that a danger has been removed from her path. This does not mean that she should be a prude. She can be friendly without being familiar, and she should never forget that while every girl should be a peach, the ripest peach and the most desired hangs highest on the tree.

PRINCESSE SLIP OF FINE BATISTE

Soft Colored Silks or Lawns Are Equally Desirable as White For Girls

By MAY MANTON

9161 (With Basting Line and Added Seam Allowance) Girl's Princesse Slip, 8 to 14 years.

This is a slip that can be made of lingerie material to be a simple under garment or of silk to be worn beneath the party frock. It is shapely and attractive and at the same time exceedingly simple. On the figure, it is made of batiste with trimming of embroidery. In one of the small views is a suggestion for scalloping the neck and armhole edges. That treatment always is dainty and the older girls should be able to do the work themselves if it is so absolutely simple. For wear beneath the party frock, the slip could be trimmed in any way that may suit the fancy and taffeta, India silk and materials of such sort are the best liked for the purpose.

For the 12 year size will be needed, 1 3/4 yards of material 36 or 44 inches wide, with 2 1/2 yards of insertion and 3 1/2 yards of edging, 3 1/2 yards of embroidery 5 inches wide, for the frill.

The pattern No. 9161 is cut in sizes for girls from 8 to 14 years of age. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

Miss Fairfax Answers Queries

GIVE HIM A HEARING
By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax: Am eighteen, and working as a cloak model. I have been going about with a young man six years, and for the past two years a year and a half ago he ceased calling because his parents were told I was a model. His sisters are not allowed to mention my name, although they think the world of me. I have heard from friends of his that he would like to speak to me again. Do you think that he repents his quick actions? He knows that I have serious admirers, and that of all of them combined I love him best. Do you think that is why he is willing to apologize to me? How can I win back his love, and make him understand that, while we were engaged, he should have stood up for me. (We were engaged to be married.) Mother tells me that I ought to try to forget him.

ADELAIDE.

Of course, it would have been only loyal and manly for your fiancé to uphold you to his parents. But you were both so young when the situation arose that it is not surprising that he failed to act with the mature judgment of a man. Why not give him a chance to retrieve himself? His parents were not fair in their condemnation of you—but give them a chance, too. If he and they fall you now, just put them out of your life and start over.

OBEY YOUR MOTHER
Dear Miss Fairfax: I have been going about with a young man not quite two years, and for the past three months. As I am a few months past sixteen, and have an older sister, my mother objects to my doing so. I love him dearly, and when I don't see him

"I FEEL YOUNGER BY TEN YEARS," SAYS MRS. WEBER

She Was All Run Down and In Terribly Weakened Condition — But Now Feels Well and Happy Again

Mrs. Josephine Weber, a popular Harrisburg matron, who lives at 42 North Twelfth street, Harrisburg, declares that she owes a debt of gratitude to Tanlac that is greater than she can ever repay.

She says: "I suffered for a long time from chronic indigestion. It made no difference how plain and simple the food that I ate, I would always suffer terribly afterward.

"Gas would form on my stomach and make me feel horribly bloated; I was feverish, restless, irritable and would frequently break out into a profuse sweat. I was all run down, my whole system seemed limp and I didn't feel like working or doing anything.

"Of course I tried many remedies, but none of them seemed to reach the seat of my trouble, and I had about decided that I was never going to get the rest of my days when I read about Tanlac in one of my papers.

"It appealed to me and I started taking this wonderful remedy, and as I made no difference how plain and simple the food that I ate, I would always suffer terribly afterward.

"Gas would form on my stomach and make me feel horribly bloated; I was feverish, restless, irritable and would frequently break out into a profuse sweat. I was all run down, my whole system seemed limp and I didn't feel like working or doing anything.

"I certainly am grateful to Tanlac, for nothing has ever done me so much good and I owe it my health and happiness."

Tanlac, the famous master medicine of which Mrs. Weber speaks and which is so highly endorsed by thousands of other grateful people, is now being specially introduced in Harrisburg at Gorgas' Drug Store, 16 North Third street, where the Tanlac man is describing the merits of this wonderful reconstructive tonic to daily increasing crowds. Tanlac is also for sale at the Gorgas Drug Store in the P. R. R. Station.—Adv.

I miss him very much. Although she objects, I meet him secretly.

"Oh, no, it was no runaway marriage. Mamma was with us when we were married in Los Angeles, and she thinks lots of Russel. Grandma just loves my little baby, but sometimes I think she does not like the idea of being a great-grandmother. You know when you speak of a great-grandmother you picture a nice old lady with a clean white cap on sitting in a rocking chair knitting. Well, grandma is nothing at all like that. She is just as full of fun and just as active as I was. Why, mamma, grandma and I romp just like a bunch of kiddies, and I guess that is all we are. Now we will have little Jessie to join in our play, and it will be just grand."

That is Mrs. Jeffrey's way of looking at motherhood.

Dr. Raymond Sands, who is caring for the little mother and her daughter, says that the baby is perfect in every particular and tipped the scales at eight pounds when born. Mrs. Jeffrey is happy and doing well.

YOUTH IS THIS FAMILY'S SLOGAN

Mother at Fifteen Makes a Great Grandmother at 49

Here's Family Record; Youth Is Their Slogan

Here is a family record that is hard to beat:

Baby Jessie Viola Jeffrey, age four days.

Mrs. Veno L. Jeffrey, baby's mother, is fifteen years old.

Mrs. Jesse May, mother of Mrs. Jeffrey and baby's grandmother, age twenty-nine years.

Mrs. Leona Smith, mother of Mrs. May, and baby's great grandmother, age forty-nine years.

Venice, Cal., Sept. 22. — With the birth of Viola Jeffrey, Mrs. Leona Smith, not yet fifty years of age, became a great-grandmother. The baby's mother is Veno L. Jeffrey, wife of Russell W. Jeffrey, and is only fifteen years old. Mrs. Jeffrey is the daughter of Mrs. Jesse May, who is a grandmother at twenty-nine years. She, in turn, is the daughter of Mrs. Smith, who is at present looking after the comfort of her great-granddaughter.

Mrs. Jeffrey was only thirteen when she became a wife. Her husband is twenty-one. Her mother was only thirteen also when she wed. Mrs. Smith was married when she was fifteen years old.

"I cannot realize that I am the mother of the sweetest little girl in the State of California," says Mrs. Jeffrey. "The truth is, I have never been able to realize that I am a wife. It's just like playing house with me, and I have such a good husband, Russell, that's my husband, and I just grew up together. The only thing that brought me to anything near realization was when I was to leave mamma. We came to Venice, and since coming here it has become more

Technical Books Are Added to City's Library

The Harrisburg Public Library received yesterday a complete set of the proceedings of the National Association of Cement Users from 1908 to 1912 with a promise of similar publications of interest to those engaged in or contemplating cement construction. This opportune gift, which will enable the library to fill many requests for information on concrete, was accompanied by a number of unbound journals of the American Concrete Institute, and came from Charles E. Herring, manager of the Ottawa Silica Company, Ottawa, Ill. In the last few months there were many inquiries for special information on concrete construction.

Other technical sets presented to the library since January 1 were from Henry McCormick, Jr., who gave a complete set to date of Translations of American Institute of Mining Engineers, 35 vols. in all, and from Edger-Bates and Co., who gave a set of Proceedings of the American Iron and Steel Institute, a complete set to date.

These volumes are all made reference volumes and shelved together so that they are convenient of access on our reference shelves. They are a good nucleus for a technical library.

Fifty-Year Romance Over, Old Man Ended His Life

Los Angeles, Sept. 22. — A half century is a mighty long time for a youthful love affair to endure, city ambulance attendances agreed, responding to a call that "an old man had suicided."

Beside the body of William H. White, 68, was the wedding gown and tiny satin shoes of an 1885 bride; also a miniature of a beautiful 16-year-old girl. The man's wife died shortly after their golden wedding celebration, and a brief note explained that he could not remain away from his sweetheart any longer.

WONDEROIL

USED FOR OVER 50 YEARS BY MOTHERS EVERYWHERE—FIRST AID TO CHILDREN—RELIEVES CROUP

Like sugar, coffee tea or salt Wonderoil, the antiseptic healing balm is indispensable in thousands of homes. It has been for 50 years. Our mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers all had the same implicit faith in this greatest of healers.

There is nothing better for babies' croup, colds on the lungs or pains in the chest. A little Wonderoil melted on a spoon and given internally or applied to the throat and chest on brown paper as a plaster, gives immediate relief. It never burns or blisters or fails to loosen up a cold. It has saved thousands of children from a bad night with cold or croup.

This greatest of healing balms is entirely antiseptic and contains only the purest ingredients. Made from a physician's prescription it is free from dangerous caustic chemicals. On account of the widespread demand, Wonderoil is now put up in 25 and 50-cent size boxes. The 50-cent size will be found most economical. It is sold locally by Geo. A. Gorgas and other leading dealers everywhere.

If you are one of the few who have never used Wonderoil send to-day to M. E. Raymond, Inc., Ballston Spa, N. Y., for a generous free sample.

This Will Remove Hair or Fuzzy Growths

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.
