Y. M. C. A. GYM TO OPEN OCTOBER 2

Big Improvement Made Under Direction of New Physical Director

The embargo on exercise that was placed on the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Association at Second and Chestnut streets, by the physical director, C. W. Miller, has been lifted, and the apparatus, completely overhauled and now in perfect working order, will be ready for the opening of classes on October 2.

During the past two weeks the new director has been busy making radical changes for the better in the arrangement of the gym floor, and the new apparatus that has been ordered will include a new supply of wands, a new punching bag and boxing gloves. New lines have been laid on the floor for handball, indoor baseball, volleyball and basketball, and the dumbbells and Indian clubs have all been removed from the sidewalks and placed in a case. The windows have been covered with heavy wire screens for the purpose of giving them greater protection and the overhead apparatus fitted out with hoisting attachments. Some of the obsolete equipment has been entirely removed from the gym floor, and the whole change made with a view to greater floor space and more efficient handling of the existing equipment.

An interesting departure from the work of any previous gymnasium instructor at the local Y. M. C. A. will be the installation of a piano that will be employed for all gym classes. Musical music that is an inspiring stimulus to exercise will be provided for all classes. A tentative schedule at this time includes classes for boys from 9 to 12 years of age; junior boys' class, 12 to 14; intermediates, 14 to 16; employed boys' class, two classifications for working men, and two classes of businessmen. There will also be a class for ministers, in all probability.

MRS. RIPPIN MENDER OF BROKEN HEARTS

civil procedure. In case of religious difference, Mrs. Rippin has a pet question: "When you were a boy did you ever row a boat?" she asks the man. He smiles. "Yes," he answers. "Well, when you were rowing and you saw rocks ahead, did you steer on them?" she asks. "Of course not," he replies. "Well, with you and your wife religion is rocks," she says. "I conclude, 'Steer clear of the subject.'" Then he sees it.

There are many interesting stories of human salvage in the files Mrs. Rippin's office. One may be chosen to illustrate the patience and ever-hopeful spirit of this work: The husband in this instance began married life with an earnest determination to be a hundred and fifty dollars a month. He belonged to clubs, and drank—not to excess, but it cost him his place. When the wife came to the probation office, she announced her patience and ability to support herself and child, but objected to the added burden of her unproducing husband. A new position was obtained for him, and he was placed under careful supervision. The employer understood the conditions and was willing to give his sympathetic co-operation; but after several weeks of patient endurance he discharged him and told Mrs. Rippin that he believed the only effective remedy for him was the "stone pile."

The husband, on his side, declared that the work was not congenial, and promised to "make good" if he had a regular change. He was given another job, and he returned to work regularly to a physician. Within a month he had sold some of his possessions—and fled. The physician reported that he had deteriorated and the case was more hopeless than ever. But Mrs. Rippin hunted him, and found him. He was placed in a hospital and remained under treatment for three months. Then he was given a new position. For six weeks he was required to return to the hospital at the end of each day's work. This position he has held since. His earning power is the same as in the beginning. He has become a contributor to his community, and his normal home life has been renewed. In January this year, Colonel Roosevelt passed an hour in Mrs. Rippin's office.

"You're the kind of public servant whose very existence not only Philadelphia but the whole United States should be profoundly grateful," said the ex-President as he departed, beaming.

At least fifty thousand Philadelphia residents are ready to back up the Colonel's statement.

Gettysburg Tabernacle Erected by Volunteers

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 25.—A building for the tabernacle for the Nickelodeon theater, which will be in being next Sunday was held on Saturday, and a large force of volunteer laborers, on the ground, in one day erected the building in which it is hoped many people will "hit the new trail." The seats are to be put in place during the week and everything will be in readiness for the first meeting of the campaign next Sunday afternoon. While the men were at work on the building the women of the various churches prepared and served dinner for the men.

A Protective Measure in the Interests of the Community

Dr. S. G. Dixon Warns Against Merchandise Being Sent ON APPROVAL

In a weekly bulletin issued a short time ago, Dr. Dixon, State Health Commissioner, told of the possible danger arising from the practice of sending goods to homes on approval to be returned in whole or in part as the customer chooses.

To depart from this practice may entail a slight inconvenience but we believe such action is justified in view of stringent sanitation rules so necessary for the welfare of the community.

It is for YOUR protection and the protection of your immediate family when we announce that merchandise purchased here has not previously been subjected to undesirable conditions.

Bowman & Company will appreciate YOUR encouragement!

"It is impossible for the salesman to know what conditions are in the house where such goods go; who handles them and how they are tried or examined. The possibility of spreading communicable disease is very real."
—S. G. DIXON.

"SATURDAY AT SIX"
"Mother" Pulled Her Off the Stage Jack Lait has a story called "Saturday at Six" in the October American Magazine in which a young girl who dances wonderfully agrees to dance with a cabaret dancer and then goes on the vaudeville stage. She does it against her mother's wishes but when she hears Buster sing "Mother," she quits. This is how it happened: "Buster, with her painfully pinked cheeks, her baby coiffure receding from it in coarse, stiff brushes, let out her corrugated iron voice, slighting the verse, smashing into the chorus: "M is for the milliyun things she sayve me—
"The walter sidled up to Myrtle, wiped the bottom of a goblet with his towel and deposited the cocktail before her.
"O means OHNNY THAT she's growing o-ho-ho-ho—
"Myrtle took the stem of the glass between her thumb and her finger.

She held it up and looked through the mixture at the light.
"T is for the teayers she shd to sayve me—
"Myrtle started the glass toward her lips.
"H is for her HEART—as peeyure as go-ho-ho—
"Myrtle's wrist trembled. She rested her elbow more firmly on the table.
"E is for her eyes, with love-light sheYIn-ing—
"The elbow rest was not successful. It acted only as a fulcrum on which her now quite unsteady forearm swayed so that a drop of the drink was spilled.
"R means right, and RIGHT she'll aw-haw-hawways be—
"The elbow slipped back, the arm slid down the edge of the table until the base of the glass rested flatly on the cloth.
"Put the mall together—they spell MAWTHERR.
"The word that means the woy-oy-OYRLD to me."

HIS MASTER'S VOICE
Missing his dog, Jet, a Brookline man telephoned to a neighbor's. Yes, the dog was there; he and the children were enjoying a romp. The owner asked that he be sent home and hung up the receiver.
"Ten minutes later, as doggie had not shown up, the owner telephoned again. The reply was that they had tried to send Jet home, but he would not go. "Bring him to the telephone," was the request. Jet was placed on a chair and the receiver held to his ear. "Come, Jet! Come, Jet!" called his master, and Jet jumped off the chair and made for home.—Haverhill Gazette.

700 ENTER HARVARD
Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 25.—A freshman class estimated to number more than 700 was on hand for the opening of the 281st year at Harvard University to day. Because of the infantile paralysis epidemic students were required to give written information as to whether they had been exposed to the disease and precautions were taken to prevent any possible infection. The principal innovation this year is the situation of the Department of Military Science, headed by Captain Constant Cordier, U. S. A. From the classes in this department will be recruited the Harvard regiment.

Fortune Claimed For Poor Farm Inmate

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 25.—Contending that William P. Grinnell, an inmate of its poor farm, was estate of to share in the $1,500,000 estate of the late Sylvia Ann Howland, which was released by the death recently of Mrs. Hetty Green, the town of Tewksbury filed in the Superior Court here a bill in equity to establish its claim against Grinnell for shelter and food furnished him for nine years. Town officials of Tewksbury say there is reason to believe Grinnell, who is seventy-five years old, is entitled to more than $20,000 from the Howland estate.
