KEEP THE HOUSE CLEAN, ADVICE

Farm Adviser Says It Is Duty of Every Citizen to Do His Part

People living in rural districts have a greater opportunity to keep their houses clean and free from chance of disease than those in built-up sections, declares Mrs. Jean Kane Foulke, one of the farm advisers of the State Department of Agriculture.

"In the light of the present epidemic of infantile paralysis it is the duty of every citizen to do his or her part to eliminate and stop the spread of the disease," says Mrs. Foulke. "The matter of sanitation about the home and buildings of the country home are under the direct management and control of the individual, while in cities and towns such matters are in the hands of the municipal authorities."

"Special attention should be given to the screening of doors and windows, and doors should have springs to close them quickly and keep them closed. Cellar and vault windows where food is to be kept and springhouses should be screened against flies and mosquitoes as these pests are great germ carriers and can quickly contaminate food or carry disease directly from an ill child to a well one."

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Long left on a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Philadelphia and other points of interest.

LILLIAN RUSSELL HAS QUIT THE STAGE

Continued From Editorial Page. "I can think of nothing to compare with it." "But your stage triumphs?" I asked.

"They merely gave me satisfaction," she replied. "There is a great deal of satisfaction in achievement. But it is not happiness. True happiness comes only in living for others. For, or at least to help make, many people happy. And my reward has been happiness for myself."

"So you've forsaken the stage for all time?" "I'm afraid so," she answered. "I suppose the hardest thing in the world is to stop an actor from acting. I thought I had retired last year, but a vaudeville agent came along with a contract for twenty weeks at $3,000 a week and I could not resist it. But I don't want to play again. You see, I'm really a newspaper woman now, and I want to stick to my new occupation."

"Yes woman in America," she went on proudly. "I get $1,500 a month for writing articles on beauty topics for a Chicago newspaper. I am the only woman in the world who has been able to make, or at least to help make, many people happy. And my reward has been happiness for myself."
