dentally Lieutenant Guynemer, who is known as "King of the Aces," fell 10.000 feet, but escaped unhurt. Guynemer went to the asisstance of a comrade who was hard pressed by five German machines. He brought down two of them within thirty seconds and then rising over took a third, which he shot down two minutes later. He was looking for the remaining two German machines when a shell burst beneath him and stripped the left wing of his aeroplane of every stitch of its covering. He plunged earthward. "I gave myself up for lost," he said, "but after falling 5,000 feet I thought I would struggle all the same. The wind blew me over our lines and like a flash I had a picture of my funeral and all my good friends following the coffin. I continued to fall and the testers wouldn't budge. In vain I pushed and pulled to right and left. I made a last desperate cort, all to no purpose, and then I saw the field toward which I was dashing down. Suddenly something happened and my speed diminished. Then there was a resounding crash and a violent shock. When I recovered my wits I was in the midst of the fragments of my machine and practically uninjured. How am I still alive? I asked myself. I believe it was the straps which held me to my seat which saved me."

ECHO OF TROLLEY STRIKE IN TRIAL OF 'SYMPATHIZER'

A. M. Hissner Answers to Jury Urges That They Give Support For Assaulting Motorman Marion Blessing

Judge Kunkel Had to Appoint Says That the Country Boys Attorney For the Defense

Echoes of Harrisburg's recent trolley strike and the frequent clashes between strike sympathizers and employes which grew out of it were heard in Dauphin county criminal court this morning when A. M. Hissner answered to a jury to the charge of assault and battery upon Marion Blessing, a Harrisburg Railways Company motorman.

The trial was the first of half a dozen or more actions which are on the September quarter sessions calendar, although the others charge malicious injury to railroads and rioting.

malicious injury to railroads and rioting.

The jury retired with the Hissner case shortly before noon following a brief charge by President Judge Kunkel. The assault and battery end of the case only was touched upon although the facts that led to the alleged assault were brought out in the course of the testimony.

When Hissner took his seat and told District Attorney M. E. Stroup that he had no counsel because he had no money to retain one President Judge Kunkel asked in surprise:

"Why hasn't he counsel?"

"He hasn't any money, he says," returned Mr. Stroup.

"Why he's in a bad way," observed the president judge, "no money and no friends."

GOVERNOR WAKES UP RURAL PEOPLE TO THEIR NEEDS

COULDN'T PAY COUNSEL FOR BETTER HIGHWAYS

and Girls Should Be Given Best of Schooling

"The message we took to the people of the farming counties of Pennsylvania was that the State government wants to help them not only to improve the living conditions in the country, to get better highways and to secure for them the educational advantages to which they are entitled but to aid them to raise a greater food supply and to market it so that it will meet the demands and give them a fair return. I believe that the folk in the rural communities realize that and know they are going to do their share. I asked them to elect legislators who would look after the interests of our whole State, who would be in sympathy with them and who would do the right thing. Pennsylvania is too big a State to bother with little men. We have great problems in a commonwealth with such varied industries and such a growing population and we want the best brains we can get. We must look out for the future generations and not only fulfill the tasks allotted to us, but pull together."

Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh expressed the purpose and the results as far as can now be ascertained of his fourteen hundred-mile swing the State in the three tours this month when he came into Harrisburg last evening at the close of his final Harrisburg -After a few hours deliberation the September quarter sessions jury which tried A. M. Hissner h assault and battery upon Marion Blessing, a trolley motorman, during the recent trolley strike, returned a verdict of acquittal and divided the costs between Hissner and the motorman. Late this afternoon the trial of Mrs. Grace Lenny, charged with marital infidelity by her husband, J. N. Lenny, an Allison Hill movingpicture theater proprietor, and Guy Cunningham, the "other man," was begun in No. 1 room. The State's chief witnesses were pretty Misses Ruth and Maude Albright, telephone operators, who occupied an apartment on the same floor with Cunningham, and who told of some of the scenes in his room. Once Miss Ruth Albright said she saw Cunningham and Mrs. Lenny combing their hair together in the bathroom. The stiffest sentence of September court was imposed late this afternoon by Judge McCarrell when he sentenced Samuel S. Seibert, Hummelstown, to from 7 to 10 years in the penitentiary for criminally attacking his small daughter.
