EVENTS ALWAYS FOLLOWED PAUL

Was Stormy Petrel; Things Happened Wherever He Went

By William T. Ellis

A courtroom fracas; an uncowed prisoner; a riot in the courtroom with a rescue by troops; a vision in the night; an iron-clad conspiracy to murder; the plot foiled by a boy; a night march by Roman troops with the prisoner in their midst—such are the dramatic high lights of one of the most stirring Sunday school lessons studied for many days.

ASTHMA SUFFERER

Write to-day, I will tell you, free of charge, of a simple home treatment for asthma which cured me after physicians and change of climate failed. I am so grateful for my present good health, after years of suffering, that I want everyone to know of this wonderful treatment. Mrs. Nellie Evans, 555, E-11, Des Moines, Iowa.

of the Jews to mob him in the temple. He had been taken before the High Court of the Church, the Sanhedrin, when the trial had been as unfair as that of his Master. When the high priest ordered him struck in the mouth, the fiery spirit of this doughty lover of justice flamed forth in a bitter arraignment of the man who, while sitting as a judge, had commanded this violation of the law. Quick to resent injustice as he was, Paul nevertheless apologized when he found that the offender was the high priest. He had the combined Jewish and Roman respect for the man in authority. His deference to the official head of his nation, even though he disapproved of him, is a timely point to stress at the present time. Policy and piety were commingled in Paul's conduct when he took advantage of the presence of two parties in the Sanhedrin, the Sadducees and the Pharisees, and threw the apple of discord among them, so that all possibility of united action was lost. A great uproar followed, for Paul had divided the house against itself. Still we somehow fail to admire Paul in this role of the shrewd politician. It was not becoming to him. He stepped down a degree from his high level in order to take advantage of ecclesiastical partisanship. The Church fares best when she stands on her own ground and uses her spiritual weapons.

A Through Ticket to Rome

The trick that Paul played on the Jewish High Court raised such a commotion that it nearly cost him his life; for he was so nearly torn to pieces that the Roman troops had to enter the judgment hall and rescue him from the frenzied ecclesiastics. His wordy wisdom had gained him nothing. He had tried to be "practical," but without benefit to his message.

No wonder he went to bed that night in the castle feeling depressed and discouraged. So downcast and disheartened was he that it took a vision in the night to comfort him. As he lay on his pallet in the prison cell he saw the horrible inner dungeon in the old Castle of Antonia in which tradition says the Apostle was lodged—the Lord Jesus Himself appeared by his side. No prison cell is too small to hold both the believer and his Master. There are no situations so straitened that there is not room for the Christ to stand by the side of His faithful witness. The message of cheer and courage that the blessed lips spoke to the penitent prisoner were few but sufficient: "Be of good courage; for as you have borne faithful witness about Me in Jerusalem so you must also bear witness in Rome."

"Every man is immortal until his work is done." Paul had a through ticket to Rome, and he could not quit the train until it reached the terminal. Sweet was the consolation that the Master brought to His servant in his cell. Often we do not get to know Christ until He shuts us apart from the crowded ways of life and from the busy career. As Scotland's sweet saint and singer, Samuel Rutherford, cried from his tower in Aberdeen,

"And in my sea-girt prison, My Lord and I held tryst."

The Conspirators Appear

The deeper one goes into life, the more complicated it becomes. Potent personalities know the reality of enemies and plots and other difficulties undreamed by simpler souls. All great living brings hardships in its train. Yet who would ask for easier lives? Struggle strengthens souls. Better trouble-tossed Paul, hounded and hated and hurt in body and in spirit, than a sleek, unweaved, complacent Pharisee, the fringes of whose robe were never soiled. Paul's message is one with the greatest lesson that humanity has learned in these two war-torn years, namely, that it is better to suffer any, die in a great cause than to enjoy personal comfort at the cost of cowardice and failure.

HAIR GRAY? THEN APPLY Q-BAN

It Darkens Gray Hair Evenly

If your hair is gray, streaked with gray, prematurely or just turning gray, or if your hair is dry, harsh, thin or falling, simply shampoo hair and scrub a few times with Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer. Soon every strand of hair (whether gray or not) becomes evenly dark, soft, lustrous, fluffy, full of life and health, full and heavy and fascinating, and entire head of hair is so beautifully and evenly darkened no one could suspect you had applied Q-Ban. It is absolutely harmless and no dye, but Q-Ban acts on roots, restoring color glands. Sold on a money-back guarantee, 50c for a big bottle, at Geo. A. Gorges' drug store, Harrisburg, Pa. Paul that, following the fiasco before the Sanhedrin, forty of them bound themselves in an iron-clad conspiracy to kill him. The bloody oath was that they would neither eat nor drink until they had slain Paul. Which, like most foolish vows, was not kept, else they would have been a long time hungry. There is no record of their having died of starvation!

Alas for the crimes committed in the name of religion. This pious plot involved not one Creon forty intending murder but also the high officials of the Sanhedrin, who agreed to call for a further examination of the prisoner, so that the assassins might waylay him. The old story is a warning not unneeded in our day, of the dreadful lengths to which blind bigotry may go. Says Dr. R. A. Torrey: "Ecologists have often stooped to the lowest villainy. In our day, they do not murder a man's body, only his reputation; and their plots are as unprincipled and hellish as that recorded here."

A Relative to the Rescue

No miracle was needed to deliver Paul from this plot; for he had friends as kind as those of a young man, a nephew, the son of the Apostle's sister, heard the story of the plot, and he foiled it. Give me a boy for a hard task or a deed of daring. What an adventure that was for the youth! His alertness and resourcefulness weighed against the cunning and power and ruthlessness of the ecclesiastical machine of his day.

Cynical sayings are that "God gives us our relatives; we may choose our friends." Which is true in a noble sense. God does give us our kindred, and, if it is not better, it is those of our own blood who stand by us. The cheap and ignoble tendency of our day to flout blood ties, and to rise above our families, is both perilous and wicked. The old Scotch loyalty to the clan is one of the finest expressions of human life. The same spirit has made the South strong and solidified. "A brother is born for adversity." God meant kinfolk to stand together; that is one of the oldest laws written into the blood of humanity. The Son of God in His dying hour, with a world's sin on His soul, took thought of His mother. The early disciples first found their own brothers. It was one bound by blood ties who saved Paul from the Jerusalem conspirators.

All parties to the rescue were persons of prompt action. Paul's nephew carried his news straight to the man most interested, untroubled by red tape. Paul sent the youth to the tribune, who waited not an hour. The honor of Rome was at stake. He had sampled the fury of that Jerusalem mob. So he straightway ordered out a troop of cavalry, and four hundred foot soldiers, to escort Paul to Caesarea. The lurking assassins were powerless in the presence of such a force. No time was left to raise a mob. Before even the Jews knew what had happened, and while they were congratulating themselves on their murderous plot, the prisoner was safely out of their reach. Rome could not be flouted. Ave, more; God's purposes could not be balked. Paul was scheduled to bear witness in Rome; and as we shall later see, no misadventures by the way could keep the great Apostle from telling at the center of Rome the story of a Greater than Caesar.

ELECTED COMMISSIONER Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 29.—The Rev. J. Marshall Rutherford, pastor of the Waynesboro Presbyterian Church, has been elected one of the five commissioners to represent the Presbytery of Carlisle at the sessions of the synod at Easton October 24.

He Married a Girl He'd Known Two Weeks

When Harold T. Webster, of Tomahawk, Wis., who draws "Boydhood Ambitions" and other interesting cartoons for an evening newspaper syndicate, came to New York a few years ago he kept bachelor's hall with R. M. Brinkerhoff, the cartoonist, and Ray Rohn, the only illustrator James Montgomery Flagg is jealous of.

Often the trio used to discuss matrimony, generally adversely, and Webster would cynically remark: "If I ever should get married it will be to some girl I've known at least ten years."

Webster was married Wednesday at the "Little Church Around the Corner," of Toledo, Ohio, who came to New York in July to study folk dancing. He had known her exactly two weeks.

SOLD CAR TO PAY FINE

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 29.—Frank Reic, of Ann Arbor, sold a perfectly good touring car for $100 to pay his fine. Reic had been arrested for driving the car while under the influence of liquor and was fined $100. He could not pay, and so when a local man offered him $100 in a joking way for the car he took it, paid his fine and left.

Brightens One Up

There is something about Grape-Nuts food that brightens one up, infant or adult, both physically and mentally.

What is it? Just its delightful flavor, and the nutriment of whole wheat and barley, including their wonderful body and nerve building mineral elements!

A crisp, ready-to-eat food, with a mild sweetness all its own; distinctive, delicious, satisfying—

Chewed Tobacco Since He Was 6; Is 94 Years Old Now

Bristol, Pa., Sept. 29.—John Sailer, Bristol's oldest resident, who celebrated his ninety-fourth birthday yesterday, boasts that he has chewed tobacco since he was 6 years old.

He was born in Riegelsville, Bucks county, and in his early manhood was one of the first captains of the Red Line deck freight boats which carried freight down the canal from Easton to Philadelphia.
